The Huntingdon Journal and Huntindon Monitor have been enlarged to seven columns on a page, and the Lewistown Democrat has added an inch and a half to the length of its columns, and improved, its appearance with new type, &c. #### Congress.

The Suffrage Bill for the District of Columbia, passed in consequence of the rebel sentiment there, was vetoed by Andrew Johnson on Monday by one of those inconsistent messages for which he has become famous. The Senate promptly passed the bill over the veto, and it also passed the House yesterday.

The most important business however was the resolution instructing the Judiciciary Committee to inquire into the conduct of Andrew Johnson while Vice President and acting President under Mr. Ashley's resolution, which charges him with usurpation, violations of law, corruption in office, &c. The resolution passed the House by 108 to 38, and is in itself a stain of condemnation by the People's Representatives placed on record against only two of our highest officers since the formation of our government, to wit, Aaron Burr and Andrew Johnson.

The Black Republicans lied like so many sinners, when they insisted that the war was to "pat down the rebellion and restore the Union." They knew they were lying at the time, and yet, for saying this, democratic editors were persecuted and mobbed. Who was right? Did we not tell the truth?—Copperhead Paper.

No you didn't and you don't now-perhaps you couldn't. The republicans are doing precisely what ought to be done; they put down the rebellion, and are now engaged in restoring the Union, exactly in the same way that law and order are restored in all other cases. When riots occur, mobs pillage and destroy, or bands of thieves plunder and burn, the law officers put them down, and punish every one who can be proved to have taken part in either, and people call that putting down rioting, &c., and restoring order .-Such white-livered curses like you, however, are willing to say that perjury, treason, murder, incendiarism, and all other traits of the late rebellion, are less crimes than the petty cases before northern courts, and instead of even punishing the leaders, you are mean-spirited enough to invite these cutthroats again to rule us with slavery's power. The power to regulate the Southern States is now in the hands of Congress, and that body is holding the dog Nullification and the slut Secession by their throats, and common sense says throttle them so that no future generation will be troubled.

R. C. Gallagher, of Mifflintown lately lost $8000 in Government bonds, in Philadelphia, which he had just purchased. The bonds were picked up on the street the same day by a little boy, and returned to Mr. G. next morning, when he gave the boy two hundred dollars as a reward for his honesty.

The amount of coin in the Treas ury is $97,841,567.75, an increase of $2,672,-751.60; and the amount of currency $33,895,765.04, a decrease of $6,300,056.03. The total amount of debt on the 1st of January, less eash in the Treasuary, was $2,543,325,172.64.

The Democratic Governor of Delaware, true to his instincts, announces in his late message, that he intends to enforce a State law forbidding colored men to carry arms, and he eulogises the system of selling colored criminals into slavery as the best method of preventing crime. He ignores the civil-rights bill, modern progress, and the National Constitution.

Under the late decision of the Supreme Court that civilians charged with crime caunot constitutionally or legally be tried by military commissions, one of the Judges of that Court will it is said, shortly issue a writ by which Dr. Mudd, Spangler and others of the assassin conspirators, will be released from confinement at the Dry Tortugas, and brought before a civil tribunal for trial. The Senatorial Question.

The caucus of republican members to nominate a candidate for Senator meets at Harrisburg to-morrow evening. The Harrisburg Telegraph, in an article on this question, after discussing the impropriety of introducing instructions to members in and thus jeopardizing the success of the party, avers that a majority of the republican members of the legislature are favorable to Gen Cameron, and that he will receive the nomination, says:

Every step thus far in the proceedings of the Leg-ature—every act of the Republicans in caucus—the inions of our ablest men in the Senate and House opinions of our ablest men in the Senate and House—the judgment of those who help to win our political victories, and the preferences of the men who promote the industrial welfare of the State, have indicated, in the most emphatic manner, that Simon Cameron is the choice for U.S. Senator of the Republican party of Pennsylvania. He has more votes honestly pledged to him than any two other candidates for the Senatorship. He has demonstrated to the satisfaction of all fair-minded Republicans, that he is the strongest man in the Republican party. A majority of Republican Senators and Representatives do not hesitate to avow their preferences for him and are ready to ge back to their constituents and answer for their course. Could there be anything more honorahesitate to avow their preferences for him and are ready to go back to their constituents and answer for their course. Could there be anything more honorable in the attitude of a great man and the course of his friends? Certainly not. And at this point the question suggests itself whether the candidates for the Senatorship clearly in the minority will not be held responsible for the harmony, will not be made accountable for regions to obey the will of a majority of their party friends, at a time when our compact or ganzation rest not only the largest interests of the people of the Keystone State, but the dearest hopes of the people of the Union. Gen. Cameron's friends ask only for what is fair at the hands of the friends of other candidates. They do not ask any man to sacrice himself in behalf of their preferences. During the election for members of the Legislature, Gen. Cameron's friends showed that their first oblect was for the good of the Republican party, to secure its victory and establish its principles. His friends now ask their political brethren to display the same high regard for the organization of the party, by entering the Republican caucus on Thursday evening next, and making Simon Cameron's nonmantion for the U. S. Senate unanimous.—There is nothing lifther all in this claim. It is supported by the majesty of a far majority. It is justified by a high regard for the harmony of the party. It is only a high regard for the harmony of the party. It is only a high regard for the harmony of the party. It is not a manly obedience to the will of majorities, and that moment those who represent the Republican party of this or any other Patter, refuse to respect and obey the same power, the Republican party will seal its doom of destruction.

**The first oble of the will of majorities and that moment those who represent the Republican party of this or any other Patter, refuse to respect and obey the same power, the Republican party will seal its doom of destruction.

"It is not necessary for us to reaffirm our attachment to Simon Cameron. That regard is founded on a sense of what is noble and just; but we still have a larger regard for the harmony and victory of the Republican party. We do not want to see the victories of the Republican masses wasted inside squabbles by their Representatives. We are satisfied that those Representatives are determined this shall not be.—Therefore we most earnestly trust, as we smeerely believe it to be just, that the friends of the weaker candidates for the Senatorship will give way to the stronger. Every step in the contest makes 6en. Cameron stronger. Every man in the party, who refuses to recognize and respect this strength, as it is demonstrated by the preferences of our Representatives, puts himself in the position of a mal-content, and must expect to be held responsible by those who value the success of imacaries more than they do the triumph of inch. The friends of Gen. Cameron only ask acquiescence in the preference of a fairly attained majority, and they believe that no man, with a proper self-respect, will prop the fallen fortunes of another, when to do so is certain to bring ruin on both.

"-We write frank'y on this subject, because we know we express the feeling of a majority of the Republicans in the Legislature, as well as that of a majority of the Republicans of Penn-ylvania. Gen. Cameron has established his claims to the Senatorship by his acts. By these list friends have won a victory in his favor for the Senatorial nomination, and as that victory is respected so will continue the harmony of the Republican party."

Whatever the result of the caucus nomination may be, we hope all will abide by it. If Gen. Cameron is nominated, let him be elected. If Mr. Stevens, Gov. Curtin, Mr. Pollock, or any other suitable man, let the same course be adopted .-The Union Republican party is not so wedded or dependent upon any one man as to divide or destroy itself for his sake.

He says he has been indicted for theft, and for acts committed by another. Under that order neither he nor I went to Seguin. The present disturbed condition of the country will not admit of my

The best vindication of Gen. Camron against the charges made by Forney, Kelly and others, is the fact that President Lincoln, in a message to Congress, under date of May 26, 1862, stated that the acts of Gen. Cameron censured by Congress, were approved by the President himself and all the Heads of Departments.

The Committee appointed by Conots, have had some trouble to get an important witness before them, but by the gress to investigate the New Orleans riaid of a squad of United States soldiers they have at last succeeded in holding him. It is but justice to say that the judgment thus pronounced has not been overruled by the musical world.

Still, by the improvements lately applied by them their Pianos, it is admitted that a m strument has been made. They have accordingly achieved the paradox of making excellence more excellent. Surely, after this, they are entitled to the
