Haines' Patent DR. JOHN J. DAHLEN,

The Best and Most Effectual in Use. NUMEROUS patents have been issued and various improvements made on Safety Bridles, but here is nothing invidious in saying that the invention patented by Joseph C. Haines of this place is superior to any yet offered, combining features of simplicity and bayer in quiding and surging a barse or horse.

Joseph C. Haines—Dear Sir: After having fully t ed your safety Bridle on my untrained colts I fit that your invention embaness air that is desirable a bridle. Its simple construction, and adaptation any common bridle and any rein cannot but ma its use universal. The case with which is can be a anning or Ricking and as easy on the mouth as the common as easy on the mouth as the common it is always ready at the critical maneut, it cannot but recommend itself to all who will try or bok at it.

Respectfully yours. A. T. Hamirox, M. D.

Lewistows, December 8, 1866,

I have been driving lorses since I know anything about them, and have drove some very vicious horse and colts. In driving such with a common oride, never feel easy nor comfortal to enjoy the ride, is more annoying, however, when you have persor with you and you can tell by their countenance the threy don't enjoy the ride from fear of your hor running a little, or even running away. I have alway there might be a bridle or bit so construct them there might be a bridle or bit so construct them. when they are traveling for learther norses with take fright; and not be able to hold them. This e-minimity remembers how seriously Dr. Isaac Rothrock, of Snyder county, was burt at the crossing, at the new Tannery, last May. He found he could not hold his horse and then got out of his buggy, and the horse tore him around badly.

Reantiful Sentiment.

There's many a gem unpolished And many a star unknown— Many a bright bud perished, Neglected and alone—

When had a word been spoken, In a kindly, gentle tone, The bud had bloomed unbroken, The gem had graced a throne. Then O! scorn not the lowly, Nor do them any wrong, Lest thou crush an impulse holy, Or blight a soul of song.

The Vacant Seat.

I look around my class to-day, Sad faces there I meet, Whose tearful glances often turn To one still vacant seat.

I look within my heart to-day, Oppressed with bitter care, Its saddened beatings seem to say, A place is vacant there.

I miss the pressure of a hand,
The glistening of an eye,
For one, the youngest of our band,
Was not too young to dic. And yet there's gladness in my heart Banirhing distrust; For she, so willing to depart, Was not too young to trust.

She trusted in the Saviour's blood; She worshiped at his feet: I know, I feel, that near her God She has a joyful seat.

And as I look to heaven to-day,
I look with trusting prayer,
While answering echoes seem to say,
Her seat's not vacant there. -Sunday School Times

MISCELLANY.

SPEECH OF GOV. JOHN W. GEARY, On Assuming the Duties of President of the State Temperance Convention. Governor Geary on accepting the position of Temporary President of the Temperance Convention, held at Harrisburg, on Tuesday of last week, delivered the fol-owing well timed address: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention: Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have seen proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than make a speech.

When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of 'the Gospe', members of the legal profession, intellectual men—tutors of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object.— Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one.

You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example.
Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another war-fare. More than half a million of our felfare. More than half a million of our fellow-countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer. King Alcohol. (A propose) and and assist them against the left destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.)—When we see so many of our fellow eitizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves.

We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devising plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor.

What is it that fills our asylums! What is it that fills our prisons? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to inebriate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the father shall be visited upon the children.

For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth up. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of printing places. in all, of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.)—When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink.

I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no precessity there for the use of grant of the property of the use of grant of the property of the proper and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it.
I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! buy my nomination by giving men that which destroys the body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the carvass was exciting it was conducted at Hoffman's.

tecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheer upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a heardeem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars sing together, and the sons of God shout for joy." (Immense applause.) Rev. Dr. Torrence arose and said: For the inauguration of a Governor of Pennsylvania without the use of rum, I propose three cheers. (Given with a will.)

A Presentation Speech.

On Friday, February 22d, the anniversary of the birth of Gen. Washington, the State authorities formally presented to the city of Philadelphia the "Declaration-of-Independence-Table" and the "Hancock Chair," to be placed in Independence Hall. The presentation speech was made by Hon. L. W. Hall, and the reception speech by Mayor McMichael. Other speeches were made, but we have only room for the SPEECH OF MR. HALL.

Honored and respected Sirs, Mayor of Philadelphia, Gentlemen of the Select and Common Council of the Corpora-tion of Philadelphia: I have been requested by the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, acting thro' a committee appointed by the Senate and House of Representatives, to present the Corporation of the city of Philadelphia the chair in which John Hancock sat, and the table on which our venerated fathers so many years ago signed our Declaration of Independence. The object of this pre-sentation on the part of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, is that these venerated and holy relies may be deposited for safe keeping in old Independence Hall.

It is not necessary, sirs, that I should refer to their history; it is not necessary that I should refer to their history; it is not necessary.

that I should more than refer to the fact that these relics were temporarily loaned by the Provincial Assembly of Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress when they were holding their deliberations in Philadelphia; that the Provincial Assem-bly resumed their possession when Con-gress removed to New York. When the capital of the State was removed to Harrisburg these articles were taken along .-There they have been from that time down to this. That chair has been the seat, almost all the time, of the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and this table has occupied a conspicuous place in the public library of the State. The Legislature of Pennsylvania thought it was fit and proper that on this day, the anniversary of the birth of the Father of our country, in this place, in this sacred room
—this room more loved by Americans than any one spot on the habitable globe
—this room, with all its happy associations of the past, with all its holy associations of the present—that here and now, in Independence Hall, these articles should be placed in trust to remain forever.

Is it necessary, Mr. Mayor, that I should refer to the band of patriots who stood around John Hancock and who sataround around John Hancock, and who sataround this table? Is it necessary that I should refer to the Declaration they enacted and adopted? Is it necessary that I should refer to the struggle that followed—that struggle that tried men's souls, that struggle that ended in making America free? [Applause.] Hancock, the affluent citizen, the accomplished statesman and orator, and popular idol, as with bold hand he signed his name to that venerable document! His name alone is sufficient to ument! His name alone is sufficient to recall to us his services to his country.— Then a nation was born, and the influence of that nation has been most happy from that day down to this. [Applause.]

Philadelphia should have these holy relies; she should preserve them well; so that in the future lovers of liberty coming here may come as pilgrims to a sacred shrine to pay homage to this holy place.

[Applause.]
May we not hope that as these relics are preserved, the principles they represent—the principles of religious and civil liberty—may be preserved and our nationalization. ality made perpetual? The city of Philadelphia! fitting home for Independence delphia! fitting home for Independence Hall; fitting place to put such relies as these! What city in the United States has so honored herself and so aided in preserving this land as the city of Philadelphia? [Applause.] What city, and what public and private citizens of what city have contributed so largely of their means, and have raised so many regiments and and have raised so many regiments and supported them when in the field, as did Philadelphia during the trying time of the republic? [Applause.] What city so kind to the soldiers in the field? What city established such places for their comfort as they passed to and from the battle-fields of the rebellion 1 Proud is the State of her city, as she is proud of this hall.— On behalf of the Legislature, in trust, we deposit these relies, well satisfied that this is the time and this is the place they
