CHILDREN'S PLAY.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

I love to look on a scene like this
Of wild and careless play,
And persuade myself that I am not old
And my locks are not yet gray;
For it stirs the blood of an old man's heart,
And makes his pulses fly,
To catch the thrill of a happy voice
And the light of a pleasant eye.

I have walked the world for four score years,
And they say that I am old—
That my heart is ripe for the reaper Death,
And my years are well nigh told.
It is very true—it is very true—
I am old, and I "bide my time."
But my heart will leap at a scene like this,
And I half renew my prime.

Play on! Play on! I am with you there,
In the midst of your merry ring;
I can feel the thrill of the daring jump
And the rush of the breathless swing.
I hide with you in the fragrant hay,
And I whoop the smothered call.
And my feet slip up on the seedy floor,
And I care not for the fall.

I am willing to die when my time shall come,
And I shall be glad to go—
For the world, at best, is a weary place,
And my pulse is getting low;
But the grave is dark, and the heart will fail
In treading its gloomy way;
And it wiles my breast from its dreariness
To see the young so gay.

A Remarkable Suicide. In the Times of yesterday morning appeared the melancholy announcement of the suicide of Mrs. Elizabeth Haines, wife of Mr. Braxton S. Haines, of Charles City county, which occur-Throw away your false frizzes, your switches, your wig—And rejoice in your ewn luxuriant hair.

Come aged, come youthful, come ugly and fair,
And rejoice in your own luxuriant hair.

cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the face it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months. A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of the hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say, how are we to distinguish the genuine from the spurious?
It certainly is difficult, as nine-tenths of the different Preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown red on Monday last. What could have been the incentive which led to the terrible deed is a profound mystery, as her domestic relations were of the most congenial character, and she had health and everything of comfort around her. Mrs. Haines had only been married a few months. She was a Miss Goddin, and was the niece of Mr. Wellington, Goddin, of this city. The particulars of the distressing affair are as follows: On Monday morning, after the family had breakfasted, Mr. Haines repaired to his sitting room for the purpose of arranging some accounts, and shortly afterwards called his wife to assist him in so doing. She made no reply to the request, but asked him where his pis tol was. On being informed that it was in a drawer, she took it out and asked her husband to load it for her. He declined, and inquired what she wanted it loaded for. Her reply was if he wouldn't load the pistol for her she would do it herself. Mr. Haines paid no attention to this remark, and continued making out accounts till he was interrupted by his wife the second time, who asked him to tell her why the ball wouldn't go down the barrel of the weapon. He took it from her, and finding that the bullet was too large, trimmed it off so that it would fit, and then handed it back to his wife. Subsequently, upon her reiterating the threat that she would kill herself, Mr. Haines aske I her to give him the pistol, but she refused to do so, and it was only after a struggle that he again secured it. This time Mr. Haines went to the porch, fired off the weapon and returned it to the drawer where he had been in the habit of keeping it .-Soon after, his wife again got the pistol and sat down by him to load it, after accomplishing which she handed it to her husband and asked him to cap it. Knowing that she had frequently indulged in pistol shooting, he thought nothing of her saying she intended to commit suicide, and accordingly put the cap on the weapon and handed it back to her. Mrs. Haines ther left the house, and her husband proceeded with his accounts. Shortly afterwards he heard the report of the pistol, and immediately ran to the door to see what had happened, when the first sight which caught his eye was Mrs. Haines, with uplifted arms, running towards him and crying 'Save me.' caught her as she was about fainting and bore her into the house, where she lingered only about fifteen minutes before she died. Some time ago a wealthy gentleman of this city (who had once followed the river for a profession, but had retired from active life on his wealth and his laurels) employed some carpenters to repair his palatial residence. She saw that he was too modest to make the first advance, and so she broke the ice by inviting him into the dining room to partake of refreshments. She drew him into conversation, and bacame satisfied he was no fool. Indeed he possessed graces of person, mind and character that might well have been envied by many a scion of aristocracy who would be offended if a mechanic passed between them and their nobility. She knew that her lover (for he acknowledged that he returned her passion) would not be allowed to enter the parental residence, and so, when she met him on the street she not only recognized him, but actually made appointments for him to meet her on the street and accompany her to a certain fashionable church, of which she was a member and constant attendant. Thus it went on, in stolen interviews, until last Tuesday night, when she left her father's roof and cloped with her mechanic lover. They were traced to Jeffersonville yester day morning, but too late to arrest their flight. They have gone to Cincinnati or some other point east, and ere this have been joined in the holy

There they had their dumb pets, and fed their own chickens, ran out and in unattended, and were entirely free from the trammels of royalty. I have been there just after they had left the place, and found their work and their books lying around, and everything looking like the home of a private family. The wife of an officer in the army, who had apartments in Windsor Castle, said that the princesses would escape into her room sometimes, and beg for a glass of beer to quench their thirst. alleging as a reason for their doing so, that if they asked for it in their own home, they must wait for a barrel to be tapped, and that would cause a new office to be created, for serving beer to them between meals, and that barrel would become the perquisite of some one of the household, and a fresh barrel of beer would be tapped every time a glass of beer was called for. A Curious Lawsuit.

Vol. LVII, No. 18.

A Western paper says that in 1863, at the time of the New York riots, an old School Presbyterian minister, named Richard Curran, formerly of Huntingdon Co., went to the village of Huntingdon, Indiana The old gentleman had long been noted as a very ardent, ultra Democrat; in fact, a copperhead. He had refused to preach under the stars and stripes, and was generally considered disloyal. On this occasion his daughter, who was with him, went shopping in Wabash, and in a dry-goods store met a lady, the wife of a soldier who had just returned from Vicksburg, Mississippi. The minister's daughter wore a 'butternut' on her watch chain, and, getting into an former snatched the offensive emblem from the chain, and in so doing, broke it. The minister's daughter called upon her father for assistance, when, according to his statement, he was set upon and beaten by the surrounding crowd, and compelled to leave town in a carriage to avoid further injury. For this treatment, and loss of $100 from his pocket during the row, he claimed $5,000 damages.

'The parties against whom this action was brought, admitted that the soldier's wife did remove the 'butternut,' but denied that they in any way ill-treated the old man or encourged others to do so. The case came up in Logansport, under a change of venue, and on the trial the plaintiff was represented by Milligan, of 'Sons of Liberty' notoriety, and Coffroth, late Democratic candidate for Attorney General of Indiana, while the defendants counsel were Mr. Conner, of Wabash, and Messrs. Pratt and Chamberlain, of Logansport. The jury were out thirtysix hours, and at last returned a verdiet for the plaintiff to the amount of $100, the amount of money lost, but nothing for the pin or wounded dignity. The defendants have filed a motion for a new trial.'

A Sad Mistake.

People not well posted in biblical lore should be a little careful how they quote from memory. Very grave mis-takes have occurred before now; but the following, told by Mark Twain, shows conclusively that different commandments refer to different things, and that the captain unwittingly made a confession: Why, Captain, you appear to have very bad cold.'

'Yes, madam,' said the captain, who is fond of working in his garden early in the morning, in his shirt sleeves, 'I suppose I deserve it. I caught it while breaking the Seventh Commandment, lat Sunday.' The party male and female started, and looked blank; and then the lady who had brought out the remark said. as well as a choking fit of laughter would let her, 'Well upon my word, captain, considering the unusual circumstances of the case, and your present surroundings, it was hardly necessary for you to enter so much into particulars!"

When the innocent captain got home, he found, to his dismay, that the Seventh Commandment does not say, 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy!

Sketch of a Copperhead Leader.

The following sketch of Senator Saulsbury is from a lady correspondent at Washington: 'A portly, handsome man, with curling, black hair, dark eyes and handsome feature. A man endowed by nature with generous impulses and a kind heart, yet a man prejudiced, passionate and ungoverned, who loves caste and hates equality. I have seen two pictures of him, never to be forgotten. One, near the close of last summer's session, when clothed in handsome broadcloth in his right mind, with a prayer book in his hand. I met him with Mrs. Jefferson Davis (who was clothed like an Empress,) going to church. The other, not many days ago, when he staggered down the avenue the saddest of all sights, an intoxicated man, tobacco juice streaming from his mouth, he importuning a black man for more.'

Judge —, who is now a very able Judge of the Supreme Court of one of the great States of this Union. when he first 'came to the bar,' was a very blundering speaker. On one occasion, when he was trying a case of replevin, it volving the right of property to a lot of hogs, he addressed the jury as follows:

Gentlemen of the jury, there were just twenty-four hogs in that drovejust twenty four, gentlemen, exactly twice as many as there are in that jury box!' The effect can be imagined.

Punch says it is dreadful to hear of a child only one month old, taking to the bottle.
