Under the head of "Pay your Taxes," the Democrat of last week makes an ungenerous attack on Collector Clarke, who, it alleges "advertises in Radical papers only, as if desiring to keep Democrats in ignorance of the days appointed, so that some may fail to make payment, and thus give him an opportunity to inflict one or both of the penalties imposed by the law," and then charges the abolition party with having imposed burdensome and unreasonable taxes on the people.

We believe legal notices of all kinds ought to be published in two papers—one of each party—in every county, but in this case the Democrat has no more right to complain of Collector Clarke than we would have of Sheriff McEwen for taking his notices to the Democrat. The law directs the collector to have handbills printed and publish his notices in one paper in each county, and the Gazette was selected years ago as the medium through which such notices was to be given.

The taxes imposed on the people are the natural result of the Southern Democratic Slave Rebellion, and no good Democrat ought therefore to find fault in paying them; for had Northern democracy not urged on and abetted the South, we should have had neither rebellion nor taxes.

The Action of the President. The President and his Cabinet, remarks the New York Tribune, decided that the opinion of the Attorney General necessitates the revoking of those acts of the District Commanders which he declared to be illegal.

Political. Thomas J. Nicholson is the candidate for R representative from Beaver county, which elects in connection with Washington county. The Republicans of Washington county have nominated John Ewing and J. R. Day, both of whom have served a session in the Legislature.

A. W. Kimmell and W. C. Gordon, of Indiana county, and T. F. Gallagher, of Westmoreland county, were renominated, each having served a session in the House. John Weller, of Somerset county, has been renominated for the Legislature, having served last session.

Ohio again honors one of her true and faithful defenders in the nomination of Gen. R. B. Hayes, now member of Congress from Cincinnati, for Governor. His military career was a bright and honorable one, commencing as Major 234 O. V. I., June, 1861. He served faithfully with the regiment until 1864, when he was promoted a Brigadier General for gallantry. He was severely wounded at South Mountain while leading a charge. In the last Shenandoah Valley campaign he commanded a division. The other nominations are as follows: Lieut. Gov., Samuel Holloway; Judge of Supreme Court, John Welch; Auditor, Jas. A. Gadsman; Treasurer, Sidney L. Warner; Attorney-General, Wm. H. West; Comptroller of the Treasurer, Moses R. Brailey.

The Democratic Convention of Pennsylvania preserved its consistency by ruling out of order a resolution thanking Gen. Sheridan. The Republicans of Venango county held their Convention on the 18th inst., and nominated the following ticket: Assembly—Col. A. P. Duncan; Associate Judge—Jas. L. Connelly; County Judge—T. A. Morrison; County Commissioner—Wilson Davis; County Auditor—J. H. McCombs; Jury Commissioner—Robert Maill.

Great Fire in Philadelphia. PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—About 9.30 last evening, whilst the ballet girls were performing the "Demon Dance" at the American Theatre on Walnut street, fire was discovered in the second story, which soon reached the dressing room, &c., and spread with remarkable rapidity. In less than half an hour the whole building was a total wreck.

The audience numbered about 1,800 persons, all of whom, with the entire corps of performers, escaped uninjured; the latter however, with the loss of their wardrobe. Six or eight buildings on South Eighth street were damaged to a considerable extent in the rear, and several on Walnut street. Amount of damage unknown.

Choice morsels of Democracy.

The People's Press, a paper in Washington county, Southern Illinois, whose Democracy is of the most straight-haired character, gives the following appreciative notice of a Sunday School Convention that was held in that place: "This knowing body assembled in our town last week, and owing to the frowns of Almighty God, assisted by the cold shoulder given by the 'unwashed' Democracy, fizzled out, sooner. Whenever a convention of this character is sought to be converted into an institution for the praise of poor, soft-brained Yankee-burning fanatics, we hope the Lord and the Democracy will assist in bringing it to naught."

Henry Clay Dean, a bushwhacker democrat, who spoke copperheadism in this State a few years ago, is boldly advocating repudiation. He takes the ground that the Government has no Constitutional authority to coerce a sovereign State against its will; that when a State wills to leave the Union it has a clear right to go; that war to retain it before going or bring back a State after it has gone, is usurpation; and that all debts contracted to furnish supplies for such a war, are illegal; and he, therefore, advocates the repudiation of the national debt. Henry Clay Dean is endorsed as a reliable Democrat by a large majority of the Copperhead press of the country. Is not the party which these organs represent, therefore, in favor of repudiation?

The Canada Thistle Law. We have already mentioned that several of the State Legislatures have lately enacted laws against the Canada thistle, and we trust they all will whenever there is the least danger of its making its appearance. In our own Legislature, it will be remembered, some five years ago there was a similar law passed against this vilest of all the encumbrances of a farm—mortgages scarcely excepted. This law provided, in effect, that, "Hereafter any individual or corporation allowing the Canada Thistle to ripen seed on his or her premises, shall be liable to a fine of ten dollars, upon each complaint that is properly established; and any one who may fear the spread of the Canada Thistle upon his premises from the lands of his careless or thoughtless neighbor, may, after five days' notice, enter upon any lands where the weed is found growing, cut it, and recover full costs for the labor and trouble."

This is to the point, and in order that farmers may know it, the newspapers throughout the State should republish the law or this article. If the people of Pennsylvania could see to what a formidable extent this pest has taken possession of several of the interior counties of New York, say Schoharie for instance, they would fly to arms against it as they would against an invading army.

Yesterday was the Sabbath. I attended the American Chapel in the morning, and heard a sermon from the Rev. Mr. Schenck. The Holy Day is not observed here as it is with us. The theatres are open, the stores doing business, and work of nearly every kind going on as usual. Several are engaged for many reviews, balls, and public amusements of every character.

I have neither time nor space to describe the various points of interest I have seen in England, and the various points of interest in the Garden of Plants, is a public institution, containing a botanical garden with spacious hot-houses, several galleries of zoology and mineralogy, a library of natural history, and a collection of living animals. After visiting the various points of interest, we visited the celebrated tapestry and carpet manufactory, and then went to the Royal Palace, where, among other things, we saw Napoleon Bonaparte's clothes, plate, camp equipments, furniture, &c.

The principal part of our time has been spent at the Great Exposition. The Champ de Mars, the place where it is held, is an immense oblong space over three thousand feet long and sixteen hundred broad. It was used for many years for the review of the army as its great parade and review ground. This martial area has been converted in a few months into a peaceful gathering-place for the products and people of all the nations of the world.

DELEW, June 21.—Joseph Meany, who was lately confined in the penitentiary for the proposition of the State to award a joint commission to inquire into the grievances and demands of the people of Canada.

HAVANA, June 17, via NEW YORK, June 23.—The capture of Santa Anna at San Jacinto, was proclaimed here yesterday by a proclamation he issued on shore to create a pronouncement in his favor.

DELEW, June 21.—This morning, accompanied by my party's desperate Culp's Hill, the scene of Geary's desperate struggle and grand victory, and to other parts of the battle-field not visited yesterday. They also visited the Soldiers' Orphan, General Grant, General Fremont, and Porter had their photographs taken with the school. At noon they left Gettysburg, General Grant going to Washington, going on a fishing excursion up the Potomac. Both General Grant and Governor were much pleased with their visit.

A TRIP TO EUROPE. LETTER NO. III.

Paris—Hotel du Louvre—Cean Stone—French Habits—Wine-Drinking—Fashions—The Sabbath—Places of Interest—The Great Exposition.

PARIS, May 27, 1867. We arrived here on the 24th, shaking the trip from London in 10 1/2 hours. We are stopping at the largest and most celebrated hotel in Paris, Le Grand Hotel du Louvre. It occupies a whole block, having four fronts, each facing on a different street. The entrance, however, as is the case with most of the palaces, hotels, and large establishments in Paris, is not directly from the street, but from an open court in the interior, into which you drive through an arched passage-way.

Paris is a beautiful city, composed of palaces, parks and gardens, presenting to the stranger, as he passes from point to point, the appearance of a vast panorama. The streets are wide, and generally paved and partly macadamized. Most of the prominent structures are built of the famous Caen stone. When it comes from the quarry it is almost as soft as chalk and can be cut with a pen-knife.

Such a thing as home comfort or domestic happiness does not exist here. Their houses are their lodgings simply; their meals are taken at the cafes or restaurants; their time is spent in promenading and pleasure. It is one constant whirl of excitement day and night. No one works in the city, and no one is idle. The men do little else but drink wine, and the women nothing but dress. I have frequently heard it said that traveling Europe is like passing through a wine-cellar, and that the women are like a wardrobe.

Yesterday was the Sabbath. I attended the American Chapel in the morning, and heard a sermon from the Rev. Mr. Schenck. The Holy Day is not observed here as it is with us. The theatres are open, the stores doing business, and work of nearly every kind going on as usual. Several are engaged for many reviews, balls, and public amusements of every character.

Trial of Surratt.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1867. In his testimony in the Surratt case today, Sergeant Dye swore that he told a lady who leaned from a window on H street, and asked him what was wrong down town, that the President had been murdered. This lady is supposed to have been Mrs. Surratt. It was testified by Weichman before the Military Commission that when her house was searched by the detectives, on the morning of the 14th of April, Mrs. Surratt concealed the whole affair, and on his telling her of the murder she said to him, "My God! Weichman, is it possible?" or something to that effect.

Today developed more evidence for the prosecution, showing Surratt's presence in Washington on the night of the assassination. The companion of Sergeant Dye, one Cooper, corroborated Dye's evidence, and testified to being introduced by Harold to a man at Willard's Hotel, on April 14th, who looked very much like Surratt. The latter stood up and eyed the witness steadily to see if he could be identified by him.

When a witness from St. Albans, Vermont, testified to a man sleeping in the railroad depot on April 17, 1865, who appeared to him to be Surratt, and who was wearing a hat, and evinced the keenest anxiety to hear every word of the testimony. When the handkerchief was produced, which Surratt had dropped, more than two years ago, he was not disposed to throw any doubt upon the truth of what he said. It could do so without seeing a sober person. As far as my experience and observation go the people are half-fuddled all the time.

The trial of Surratt is still continued. A number of witnesses have been examined, and their testimony differed but little from that of other witnesses already published. On Saturday, Mrs. Martha Murray, wife of the proprietor of the Herndon House, testified that Payne, who had boarded at the house, left on the afternoon of the assassination, saying he was going to Baltimore. W. H. Bell, servant of Secretary Seward, Hon. F. W. Seward, Mrs. F. W. Seward, Col. Augustus Seward and Gen. F. Robinson testified to the facts of the assault upon Secretary Seward by Payne.

Odds and Ends.

Several arrests have been made in Virginia of rebel whites for perjury in getting themselves registered as voters. The Cambria Freeman is troubled about spoons at New Orleans. A wonder what became of the "spoons" at Tyrone last fall? Why could not the Cambria Freeman have said a soldier produced the lines he comments on? The poetry was his production and gave his opinion of Jef Davis and H. G., not the Gazette's.

In all of the twelve resolutions adopted by the Democratic State Convention, not a syllable is uttered on the subject of a Free Railroad Law. According to copperhead logic the Pennsylvania Railroad must have bought up the convention, lock stock and barrel. It appears that the southern rebel who addressed the recent copperhead State Convention has the title of reverend prefixed to his name. Preachers it seems are only political hypocrites when they talk patriotism; when copperheadism is their theme, they are democratic saints.

Gen. Sickles, commander of the Carolina District, has asked to be relieved from his command, in consequence of Stantberry's opinion of the military reconstruction act. He says if that opinion is carried out, the late rebel States are menaced with ruin. The Harrisburg Police made another grand raid on houses of ill fame in that city last week, and arrested Mrs. Mary Glassine, Mrs. Eliza Snyder, Jennie Somerville and Sallie Coyle, the keepers, and quite a lot of visitors. One of our citizens thinks that a raid or two by our officers on a few disorderly houses in this town, and the arrest of all they almost nightly contain, would be worth a dozen sermons on the subject.

Those who can call to mind the veto of President Johnson of the military reconstruction act, will remember it was charged that it would place "all the people of the ten States therein named under the absolute domination of military rulers, and the preamble undertakes to give the reason upon which it is justified. It declares that there exists in those States no legal governments and no adequate protection for life or property, and asserts the necessity of enforcing peace and good order within their limits." That act became a law, and now the President declares that the act gives the military commanders no power at all over even the worst rebel officers!

Two men named Rapp and Jacob Tausig have been arrested at Harrisburg for receiving and selling books and documents alleged to have been purloined from the State Capitol, and sundry messengers were also bound over for their appearance at court. It is time a stop was put to these stealings, which have been carried on for at least thirty years under all administrations, and some punishment meted out to the guilty. The documents, it is claimed, were given to the messengers by members, but as some old and valuable books from the library were recovered they at least must have been stolen. As an instance of the depravity existing, and showing that it was not confined to one party, it is said that when the democracy vacated the land department, hardly a pen, ruler, inkstand, pencil, Digest, &c. was left. Gov. Geary has determined to probe the matter to the bottom and correct the evil.

THE GREAT HORSE REMEDY.—Charles L. Smith, well known in the interior of this State, thus testifies to the efficacy of Dr. R. Martin's great Horse and Cattle Remedy, the Excelsior Oil.

DR. MARTIN:—Few persons have had larger experience with horses, their diseases, and treatment, and the various remedies offered than myself, and those who know me will believe me when I say, as I do most unhesitatingly, that your Excelsior Oil is the most efficient remedy I have ever employed. During the last trip I made with my team one of my horses received a severe and extensive wound from a kick immediately over and down to the stifle joint. Desiring to make a point on my route I drove two days before reaching my destination, and during which time his leg became enormously swollen and so powerless he was forced latterly to drag it after him. I commenced using the Excelsior Oil, commencing on Saturday evening, and on Monday started with my wagon, free from all inflammation, and all troublesome symptoms removed. I also with the same medicine healed a large ulcer on the shoulder of my other horse in three days, driving him all the way to my home.

I regard your Excelsior Oil an unequalled and invaluable medicine. C. L. SMITH. Lewistown, May 23d, 1867.

Important to Farmers. THIS is pronounced by those who have seen it, the most desirable Pitch Fork ever invented. The peculiar construction of this fork is that the tines are separated, so that it either becomes a rake, or a pitch fork, at a moment's notice. See our Circular, Sent on Application. J. J. HOFFMAN, Sole Agent for Farmers at low prices. F. J. HOFFMAN, ju5-1m
