

Lancaster Intelligencer.

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 26, 1880.

Presidential Candidates.

The third term boom having shown its weakness, we are favored with an announcement that General Grant proposes to make a public declaration that his business engagements forbid him to be proclaimed a presidential candidate.

A FEW weeks ago the Cameron folks hereabouts were boasting very largely that they had the power to elect third term delegates to the Republican national convention from this county and would do it.

MINOR TOPICS. BAZAR playing is the fashionable accomplishment now of society girls of Washington, D. C.

REPUBLICANS are ungrateful—Philip D. Baker was rejected by the delegates of his own ward.

THE Tribune's regular correspondent at Washington believes that the recent events in Maine have advanced Senator Blaine's prospects as a candidate for the presidency.

THE machine convention which nominated Boring exemplified its appreciation of the free school system by giving Joe Samson a unanimous vote (26 members), and not a single vote for Mariott Brosius.

OF course Adam Eberly didn't want to be re-nominated as school director. His present duties as select committee of the Fifth ward will be sufficient to engage his surplus talent until such time as he shall be called upon to act as district attorney.

THE Republican school board has twice done itself honor, and aided the cause of education, by electing Mariott Brosius a member of the board to fill vacancies, and twice has the convention, composed of "the best workers of the wards," kicked him out. "Inflating archer, would not one suffice?"

A CORRESPONDENT of the Washington Republic claims that it was Zach Chandler who originated Sherman's grand march to the sea, as early as December, 1861, in a letter to Simon Cameron, as secretary of war.

There are several gentlemen in the Republican party who think with the senator that none of his honors are too good for them. Mr. Blaine considers that he has groomed himself for the presidential nomination in first-class style by his exploits in Maine; and probably he has, for it is success at such schemes of fraud that dearly recommend a politician to a Republican convention.

PERSONAL. The official banquet to General Grant at Havana was tendered on Friday night. After the banquet he attended the opera.

General Grant has invited his old comrade in Mexico, General ROBERT PATTERSON, to spend the winter with him in Mexico, and the latter has accepted the invitation.

Mrs. KATE CHASE SPRAGUE gave a dinner party last week to a few gentlemen and ladies, among whom were several members of the supreme court. Senator Conkling and Mrs. Conkling were present.

General Gordon has received a long dispatch from Waltham, Lamar's law partner, saying that he wishes the friends of LAMAR to understand that George's election to the Senate is a triumph of the former's friends, and that the two senators will be in perfect accord on all national questions.

Gen. HORACE PORTER, formerly on Grant's staff, has made about $200,000 in New York since he left the president's household. From his father's estates and salaries he had acquired about $40,000.

THE Grant boom. Washington Dispatch to New York Herald. It is reported here, on what is believed to be trustworthy authority, that the personal friends of the ex-president in Philadelphia who are nearest to him state to persons interested that before the meeting of the Pennsylvania convention, ten days hence an authoritative declaration had been made in behalf of the ex-president conclusively taking him from the field as a contestant for the presidential nomination.

Such an authoritative announcement, if it should be made, would be a great relief to the Republican political managers in Pennsylvania, who have begun to late to fear that the third term policy would cause serious disturbance in the convention and among the Republicans of the state.

THE editor of the Tobacco Journal is very worth because the price of tobacco stays up. It seems to have been in Lancaster a few days ago to find out for himself the reason of it and to have gone away no wiser nor more amiable than when he came.

THE "flashes of wit" that are seen in Congress when the humorists of that body come into contact, in accordance with previous arrangement, do not dazzle the average reader nearly so much as they seem to delight those who hear them. There may be something excessively funny in the appearance and manner of these funny men that the cold types do not reproduce, for on no other ground can we understand the "laughter," "intense merriment" and "marked interest" that pervade the assemblage when Mr. Cox and Mr. Hort make their sallies upon each other. Their poems and epigrams read like the thinnest and coarsest kind of trash. If these have any redeeming or interesting quality Congress ought to provide means to inform the public "why we laugh."

A bar of gold weighing 235 ounces, valued at about $46,000, has been brought to Halifax from the Sherry and Kennedy ledge, at Montague. It is the result of three weeks' work of fourteen men.

In Elizabeth, N. J., Thomas Quinn, aged 13 years, John Stryker, aged 9 years, and Edward Ulrich, aged 9 years, were arrested for breaking into and robbing Newcomb's grocery store at Crane and Union streets. They effected an entrance at an early hour, collected all the money drawers, and cleaned out the money drawers. The money Sullivan pocket and with it purchased a heavy amethyst ring.

Four well-dressed men, apparently ordinary travelers, arrived by train at Danforth, Iroquois county, Ill., the other night, and soon afterwards masked themselves and entered the village at Danforth, and after knocking him down and gagging him blew open the safe in his room and secured $4,200 in cash, after which they escaped, leaving him securely fastened. He was released the next morning after a night of terrible suffering.

In Detroit, Mich., two men, each named Henry Hachen, uncle and nephew, who had been drinking together for several days, engaged in a dispute while in a dispute in a grocery, which ended in both drawing revolvers and shooting at each other. Five or six shots were exchanged, two of which struck through the body of the elder Hachen, from the effects of which he died. The nephew, who was not hurt, was promptly arrested.

A prize fight occurred on Saturday between Prof. Clark, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Dick Murray, of New York, for $100 a side. The contestants, together with a small party of their friends, went through the body of the elder Hachen, from the effects of which he died. The nephew, who was not hurt, was promptly arrested.

THE Probable Winter in the Arctic. Although no intelligence has been recently brought to the attention of the Arctic ocean north of Behring strait directly indicating the character of the winter which the American Arctic expedition is there experiencing, there are not wholly wanting the means of forming some idea of the present season in that region.

THE New Era on Boring. A candidate of their own selection, who, if successful, is expected to use the official patronage at his disposal to aid the present senator of the southern district in securing the vote of the city next fall.

THE Harford Democrat published at Bel Air, Md., says: "Last week Andrew Boyle sold a farm of 75 acres, with fair improvements, to Arthur Thomas, of Lancaster county, Pa., for $2,000. Mr. Thomas will establish a carriage factory on part of the property and devote the balance of the cleared land to raising tobacco. Mr. Boyle has leased part of another farm to another gentleman for the same purpose."

OF our local trade there is little to add to what was said on Saturday. Crops are being received at several of the warehouses, but there is no rush and crush as there was two or three weeks ago. Packing continues active at all the warehouses, giving employment to hundreds of men.

At a meeting of the American Mechanics' building and loan association the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President—Richard Blickenderfer. Vice Presidents—E. J. Erisman, Henry Garrecht.

Treasurer—John D. Skiles. Secretary—William T. Jeffries. Directors—Henry Baumgardner, Amos Miley, J. Willis Westlake, John Z. Kenning, M. M. Barton, George W. Corney, David T. Robinson, Oliver Roland, Daniel G. Baker.

Auditors—John H. Baumgardner, Henry Garrecht, Daniel G. Baker. The third series of the association's stock, which is nearly nine years old, has just matured and the value is $202.62. The association made 20 per cent. on their capital stock for 1879.

At a meeting of the Lancaster Typographical Union, No. 70, the following officers were elected: President—Wm. H. Clepper. First Vice President—J. S. Daveler. Second Vice President—B. F. Metzger. Recording Secretary—Percy Carpenter. Financial Secretary—Wm. A. Laverly.

Treasurer—J. M. Gaintner. Business Committee—J. L. Vogan, J. R. Widmyer, B. F. Metzger. Sergeant-at-Arms—G. W. Brown.

Sale of Real Estate. Henry Shubert, auctioneer and real estate agent, sold at public sale on last Saturday evening, at Michael's hotel, for Emanuel E. Miller, assignee of Patrick Carr and wife, the following properties: No. 1, a one and a half story brick dwelling, situated at No. 623 West King street, to H. E. Miller for $730. No. 2, a two-story brick dwelling, situated on the west side of Plum street, No. 38, to Christian Gitlich for $1,576. No. 3, two building lots, situated on the southwest corner of Chestnut and Marshall streets, to R. J. Houston for $291.

Normal Anniversary. On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

The Shepherd's Fold.

Just now an asylum for children called "The Shepherd's Fold" is undergoing investigation in New York before one of the judges of the supreme court, sitting in chambers. The superintendent of this institution is the Rev. Mr. Cowley, who is receiving and adopting children and youth of both sexes between the ages of twelve months and fifteen years who are orphans, half orphans or otherwise friendless, these to keep, support, educate, apprentice and place out to service, trades and schools; also to receive such children of poor parents deemed eligible, and to receive other children and youth for education and training to such extent as in the judgment of the trustees may be expedient.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

At the time the New York society for the prevention of cruelty to children made its investigation against the superintendent of the "Shepherd's Fold" it contained twenty-seven inmates, some of whom were placed there by their parents, who paid $4 a week for their subsistence against the Rev. Mr. Cowley were the parents of the children who had been entrusted to his care, the teachers of the public schools to which some of the inmates of the "Fold" had been sent, and three or four of the larger children, who go to the common schools.

TOBACCO.

The New York Market. The Tobacco Leaf says: "There has been an increased demand for seed leaf 1878, Pennsylvania and New York state being the favorites. The sales for the week amounted to 2,365 cases.

Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J. S. Gans' Son & Co., tobacco brokers, Nos. 84 and 86 Wall street, New York, for the week ending Jan. 26, 1880: 300 cases 1878 New England, seconds, 101@111c; wrappers, 13@25c. 800 cases 1878 Pennsylvania, 101@15c. 800 cases 1878 Ohio, 94@101c. Total 2,650 cases.

Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, editor of the Journal, who has been doing everything in his power, fairly and unflatteringly, to break down the prices of Pennsylvania, and failed miserably, came on to Lancaster last week, and in two columns and a-half of drizzling nonsense professes to give his readers an account of what he saw and the condition of our local market. He reiterates his oft-repeated statements that the buyers of the 79 crop are idiots and fools; qualifies this statement by another that they have not paid more than half as much for the crop as has been reported; then lies outright by declaring that there remains 35,000 or 40,000 cases as yet unsold, that prices are fast diminishing, and that within a few weeks good crops will be purchased at 12, 5 and 3 cents, or even less. The Journal acknowledges the New York market to be "lively," quotes 1878 Pennsylvania as being "the best tobacco next to Havana," and quotes the prices at 101 for fillers, 11 for running lots, and 109 for wrappers. The 1879 crop is reported "a magnificent one in size of leaf and appearance, and that manufacturers will in the near future be supplied with a cheap and extraordinarily profitable tobacco."

About the only paragraph in Mr. Hammerstein's rambling letter worth reproducing is that in which he frankly states the opinion entertained of him by leading tobacco men: "They were bent upon proving to me that my occupation as editor of a paper was a distressing failure. Mr. M. Lachenbruch of New York; Mr. Banzel of New York; Col. Teller, of Philadelphia; Mr. Pennington, of New York, and a goodly number of others, but all tobacco packers, began the recital of all my mental and editorial deficiencies, at 12 midnight, and stopped two hours later. Did I dream that Mr. Lachenbruch had called me 'no editor nor a gentleman'?" that the colonel of Philadelphia had referred to me as "a fool"?" that the sombre Mr. Banzel had mentioned "a certain institution where I could be treated gratuitously"?" and that the rest of the argumentative and demonstrative assemblage had moved uncomfortably close and expressed the desire of seeing some one "hit him over the head"?"

There is an increasing demand for 1878 tobacco. John Kautz sold to Fatman & Co. three acres of tobacco for 22, 8 and 3. C. Blessington, of Strasburg, has sold his crop of tobacco of 43 acres to John Moore for 24, 10 and 5; he sold and delivered one to Joseph Altheuse for 25 and 5.

Martin K. Mylin, Leacock township, sold 3 acres of tobacco to John Moore at 19 and 3, and 2 acres at 16 and 3. The Harford Democrat published at Bel Air, Md., says: "Last week Andrew Boyle sold a farm of 75 acres, with fair improvements, to Arthur Thomas, of Lancaster county, Pa., for $2,000. Mr. Thomas will establish a carriage factory on part of the property and devote the balance of the cleared land to raising tobacco. Mr. Boyle has leased part of another farm to another gentleman for the same purpose."

OF our local trade there is little to add to what was said on Saturday. Crops are being received at several of the warehouses, but there is no rush and crush as there was two or three weeks ago. Packing continues active at all the warehouses, giving employment to hundreds of men.

At a meeting of the American Mechanics' building and loan association the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President—Richard Blickenderfer. Vice Presidents—E. J. Erisman, Henry Garrecht.

Treasurer—John D. Skiles. Secretary—William T. Jeffries. Directors—Henry Baumgardner, Amos Miley, J. Willis Westlake, John Z. Kenning, M. M. Barton, George W. Corney, David T. Robinson, Oliver Roland, Daniel G. Baker.

Auditors—John H. Baumgardner, Henry Garrecht, Daniel G. Baker. The third series of the association's stock, which is nearly nine years old, has just matured and the value is $202.62. The association made 20 per cent. on their capital stock for 1879.

At a meeting of the Lancaster Typographical Union, No. 70, the following officers were elected: President—Wm. H. Clepper. First Vice President—J. S. Daveler. Second Vice President—B. F. Metzger. Recording Secretary—Percy Carpenter. Financial Secretary—Wm. A. Laverly.

Treasurer—J. M. Gaintner. Business Committee—J. L. Vogan, J. R. Widmyer, B. F. Metzger. Sergeant-at-Arms—G. W. Brown.

Sale of Real Estate. Henry Shubert, auctioneer and real estate agent, sold at public sale on last Saturday evening, at Michael's hotel, for Emanuel E. Miller, assignee of Patrick Carr and wife, the following properties: No. 1, a one and a half story brick dwelling, situated at No. 623 West King street, to H. E. Miller for $730. No. 2, a two-story brick dwelling, situated on the west side of Plum street, No. 38, to Christian Gitlich for $1,576. No. 3, two building lots, situated on the southwest corner of Chestnut and Marshall streets, to R. J. Houston for $291.

Normal Anniversary. On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of Denver, Col., and a recitation will be delivered by Miss McCurdy, of Philadelphia.

On Friday evening next, 30th inst., the Normal literary society of the Millersville normal school, will hold its anniversary entertainment in the chapel building. Howard Jacobs, esp., of Reading will preside, and Miss Junkins, of Williamsport, act as secretary.

The anniversary oration will be delivered by Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover, of Carlisle; the normal oration by B. Lehman, of Media, Pa., an essay will be read by Miss Overholzer, of