

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Before Judge Patterson. In the case of L. Power vs. B. F. Hookey judgment of non suit was entered by the court, as the plaintiff was not present when called. A motion to strike off the non-suit has been made by the plaintiff's counsel.

This morning the counsel in the case of Elizabeth Misher, administratrix of Benj. Misher, deceased, vs. P. W. Hiestand and Hilairo Zaepfel, informed the court that the case had been settled between the parties. A juror was therefore withdrawn and the case ended.

In the case of Frank Schlegelmilch vs. Mary Eckert, the defence called a number of witnesses to prove what was stated in yesterday's INTELLIGENCER. After they closed the plaintiffs began their rebuttal. Squire E. D. Roath testified that deceased always seemed anxious to provide for his daughter, she being a cripple, and he wanted to place the money in trust so that if she married a worthless husband, she could still be provided for to the extent of her means.

Appraisals from Assessments. To-day the county commissioners heard the appeals of property owners in the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards, from the valuation put upon it by the assessors of the said wards. Below we print the valuations of 1879 and 1880 for comparison:

Wards. 1879. 1880. Deduction. 4th ward. $1,297,739. $1,429,843. $122,104. 5th ward. 1,125,435. 1,245,549. 120,114. 6th ward. 1,082,925. 1,454,459. 371,534.

INCENDIARY FIRE. Small Building Burned. A small frame stable belonging to Henry Strobel, and situated on Marion alley, in the rear of his lot, No. 233 East Orange street, was burned last night. The fire was discovered about 12 o'clock by a daughter of Mr. Strobel, the other members of the family having retired; she alarmed the inmates of the house, and Mrs. Strobel ran to the stable and released the chickens, about fifty in number, none of which were burned. There was nothing else of any value in the building. The fire companies were promptly on hand, but the structure was entirely consumed.

Death of E. Norman Gunnison. The subject of this notice, formerly of Columbia, later of York, died in the latter borough yesterday, aged 42. Mr. Gunnison was a man of more than ordinary literary ability, and won for himself distinction as a poetical writer. His productions found a place in prominent newspapers and literary and religious journals, as well as in America's best magazines. He was a contributor to the Christian at Work, the United Christian Weekly, Sunday School Times, Lutheran Observer, Saturday Night, New York Weekly, New York Clipper, Scribner's Monthly, St. Nicholas, Wide Awake, New York Sun, New York Graphic, and other journals. He also published several poetical works, and enjoyed the acquaintance of many eminent men of letters. His body passed through Lancaster this morning en route for Boston, where it will be interred.

A Soldier Heard From. This morning Chas. Eichman, barber, received a letter and package from Sergt. Christian Peterman, formerly of this city, who is now a member of Co. L, United States Cavalry, and is stationed at Fort Klamath, Oregon. The package contained a pair of buckskin moccasins, which were taken from the feet of a dead Indian by Mr. Peterman. They are nicely trimmed in different colored beads and look very comfortable. Mr. Peterman's time in the army will be up in a couple of months and he will not again enlist. During the late war he was a member of the 79th regiment, since which time he has served in the regular service.

Postage on Drop Letters. At this season of the year, on account of St. Valentine's day, a large number of drop letters are mailed at the postoffice. The postmaster and clerks always have considerable trouble in regard to letters which do not have sufficient postage. Postmaster Marshall desires us to state for the benefit of the public that the postage on all drop letters containing reading matter, sealed or unsealed is two cents for every half ounce. Packages containing no written matter will go anywhere for one cent for every two ounces if left open.

The Safe Harbor Works. Mr. Isaac Reeves, who has had charge of the Phoenix iron company's mills at Norristown, but who was recently appointed superintendent of the iron works of the same company at Safe Harbor, has removed with his family to that place and entered upon his duties there. Jesse Hull, jr., of Phoenixville, has just put the Safe Harbor works in thorough repair and has added many improvements to the machinery.

A Tower. Workmen are engaged to-day in constructing on the roof of the Pennsylvania railroad depot, corner of North Queen and Chestnut street, a tower on which to hang the wires of the company's telegraph lines. The wires now hang inside the building and are constantly being corroded by the sulphur smoke from the locomotives.

THE DRAMA.

Barley Campbell's "Fate" at the Opera House. The name of Barley Campbell has recently sprung into prominence and favor with the patrons of popular entertainments by reason of the flattering success achieved by the latest production of his facile pen, "My Partner," a dramatic work of genuine merit, and one that is steadily gaining in popular appreciation. The reputation earned by this play has induced the revival of some of Mr. Campbell's earlier works for the purpose of testing their strength with the amusement-going public, and at one time within a recent period no less than five of his plays held the boards at as many leading metropolitan theatres in different parts of the country. Brushed up with the imperfections and "amateurisms" that usually distinguish early work removed or toned down as far as possible, all these plays have succeeded in gaining a fair hold on the popular estimation, and by reason of the good work he has accomplished, no less for the profession than for the general public, Mr. Campbell is entitled to a high place on the roster of popular favor, and has come to be regarded among the most valuable of our modern dramatists.

His comedy-drama of "Fate," written before he had attained to his present eminent station, was produced at Fulton opera house last evening by the Almayne comedy company, and the small audience may be attributed to the dual reason that the play and the company were both unknown in the community save for a few press notices that floated on ahead of them in their eastwardly progress, their last engagement of any length being in Pittsburgh. The performance was, taken throughout, a good one. While the story is trite, and turns in the well-worn theme of a young wife driven to jealousy and estrangement from her easy-going husband by the latter's careless and indifferent temperament and the malign intervention of a woman who has betrayed her own husband, the author has by his ingenious interweaving of striking incidents, and the occasional introduction of an effective climax, invested the piece with an interest that, beginning with the dramatic scene on which the curtain falls at the conclusion of the first act, is sustained and enhanced through the rapidly succeeding events that lead up to a happy reunion and put the schemes of the wicked one to flight. Through it all there runs a vein of pathos that plays upon the sympathies and emotions, while there is just enough of the humorous to relieve the tension upon the feelings of the spectator as he allows his interest to become absorbed in the doings of the men and women in the mimic world before him. The dialogue is good and the situations for the most part do not partake of the unnaturalness which distinguish many so-called "society dramas."

The leading female part of Helen Faraday was sustained by Miss Nard Almayne, a young lady unknown to fame in these parts, but who none the less evinced the possession of good histrionic ability. There is a subtle delicacy about her interpretation of the role that invests it with a positive charm. While she does uncommonly well in the situations calling for play upon the passions and rises to the occasion in a manner that excites the admiration of the spectator, she is equally effective in the more subdued scenes, and her assumption of the conventional tone of sympathy and unimpassioned manner is capital. Miss Almayne certainly made a favorable impression. In the main the support was good. Miss Florence Langley, in the not very attractive role of Jeno Temple, bearing off a fair portion of the honors; Mr. Nelson Decker, whose name is familiar to amusement patrons, as Frank Faraday, Mr. Selden Irwin, as David Paulding, and indeed the entire cast gave highly satisfactory renditions of their several parts.

In the Last Ditch. J. W. Johnson, esq., and other Republican managers are running around to-day asking Republicans to pledge themselves on paper to vote for Boring. Business men and others who are suspected of being shaky are to be bulldozed into putting it down in black and white. This is about the worst hull dozing yet reported, and we presume the "black list" of those who won't sign or of those who sign and do not vote for Boring is to be published in due time. A good many independent Republicans, who do not care to give Johnson a promissory note of their partisan fealty have refused to belittle themselves by signing any obligation binding their exercise of the right of free suffrage.

A pleasant social event occurred last evening at the residence of Mr. John Evans on West James street, in the shape of a surprise party to his daughter, Miss Mary, by a number of the young lady's friends. Upwards of twenty couples were present. The surprise was complete, dancing was continued without interruption until the little hours of the morning, save for the grand midnight march to the dining room where an elegant supper had been prepared, and the affair was among the most delightful of the charming episodes of a like character in which the season now brought to a close by the advent of the Lenten period has been so prolific.

Tight Squeeze. Wm Murphy, an employee of the Pennsylvania railroad, connected with the Parkersburg construction train, while engaged this morning in pushing cars into the warehouse at Columbia, was caught between one of the cars and the platform and was so seriously injured by the squeeze that he was rendered entirely helpless. He is a married man, and he was sent to his home in Parkersburg.

Check Found. This afternoon a check for $141 on the Lancaster County national bank, drawn by Amos Miller in favor of Hiram Stockholm and endorsed by Stockholm, was found on the street. If it is worth anything the owner can get it at the bank, where the finder left it.

The Bricklayers. In our local of the meeting of the bricklayers on Monday evening we stated that they adopted resolutions agreeing to work for $2 per day. The price agreed upon was $2.25 per day and no trade. Felt Down Stairs. Edward Cassidy, a young man, who is employed at Locher's tannery and boards at the Fountain Inn, slipped and fell down stairs at the hotel last night. He was terribly cut about the head and face.
