COCHER'S COUGH SYRUP IS THE BEST

Lancaster Intelligencer. MONDAY EVENING, FEB. 16, 1880.

One Burglar's Conscience.
The Story of a Pleasant Old Gentleman and a Common Man
Worcester Spy.

Reginald was a pleasant old gentleman, with a fine sense of humor. He had considerable property, and lived on Wimbledon Common.
He had one beautiful daughter—but that is not to the point.
One afternoon, old Reginald was reading books in his drawing room, it was announced to him that a Common Man desired to speak with him.
He gave orders that the Common Man should be admitted. And admitted the Common Man was.

He was a very common man, indeed Talk in a shocking fellow, with an irresolute manner and shrinking eye.
He was dressed as costermongers are dressed when following their calling.
"What is your pleasure, good sir?" said old Reginald.

"Beg pardon, gov'nor," said the Common Man. "I hope you won't be hard on me."
"Not at all," replied old Reginald.
"I'm—I'm a burglar," said the Common Man. "Indeed!" said Reginald. "Take a chair."
"Thank you, kindly, gov'nor," said he, "but I'd rather stand."
And he did stand.

There is nothing very incredible in my story. But it gets more remarkable as it goes on.
"How do you like your profession?" said old Reginald.
"Well, gov'nor," said the Common Man, "I don't like it noways, and that's it."
"That's what?"

"That's why I'm here. I belong to a gang of twelve wot's working these parts just now. We crack cribs by turns. It's my turn to-night." "And the burglar wept like a child."
"This, I presume, is remorse," said old Reginald.
"No, gov'nor, it ain't remorse," said the burglar. "It's funk."
"The same thing," said Reginald.
"It ain't the being a burglar that I object to. It's the having to commit burglaries.
I like the credit of it; it's the danger I object to."
"I see."

"Now, by the laws of our gang, we're bound to crack in turn. That is to say, one of us cracks the cribs while the other eleven stops outside and gives the office."
"I thought burglars always worked in pairs or threes?" said old Reginald.
"P'raps I ought to know best," suggested the burglar.
"Perhaps you are right. Indeed, I am sure you ought. What crib do you propose to crack to-night?"
"This here one."

"Mine?"
"Yours."
"Oh!"
And old Reginald prepared to ring the bell.
"Please don't do that, gov'nor. You ain't never goin' to give me into custody?"

"I think I had better."
"No, no, gov'nor, don't do that. Listen to me first. I ain't agoin' to hurt you.
It's my turn to crack your crib to-night.
Now will you help me?"
"I hardly see my way," said old Reginald, thoughtfully. "Still I'll be of any use."
"Look here, gov'nor, each member of our gang is bound to get fifty pounds of swag away from each crib he cracks. If he don't he's shot. Now I see a handsome silver salver and coffee-pot and cream jug as I came in here. We might be the value of that handsome silver salver and coffee-pot?"

"The cream jug is electro. The coffee pot with sugar basin and salver, may be worth $12, $14, $16 and $20."
"That's near enough. I'll take 'em.
Here's a flimsy for fifty quid."
And he handed old Reginald a bank note for the amount.
"Still I don't quite understand—"
"I want you, gov'nor, to be so good as to leave your bedroom window open tonight, and place that silver and them silver traps where I can't get 'em. I shall have cracked my crib, bagged my swag and made myself safe until my turn came round again."
"Certainly," said old Reginald, holding up the note to the light. "But let me ask, how can you afford to pay so handsome for your depreciation?"

"There's a dozen on us, sir. Each on us cracks a crib once in four months, and each swags a crib at least fifty pounds —often more, but at least that. After each plant the profits are divided. Last quarter the two cribs I cracked brought us in eleven hundred pounds—that's ninety odd pounds apiece. When my turn comes I pay a fair price for the fifty pounds worth of swag (for I have been honorably brought up), and I gets forty pounds to the good. And forty pounds a quarter is a hundred and sixty pounds a year. And I live on it. Sometimes it's more—now and then it's less, but whatever it is, I live on it."
And the honest fellow took a receipt for a note and departed.

Old Reginald was as good as his word.
He left his bedroom window open and placed the silver where the honest burglar was as good as his word, and at two in the morning he came and found it.
So far all was simple and straightforward enough. But now comes the curious and incredible part of my story.

The fifty-pound note was part of the proceeds of a previous burglary. The number of the note was known, and traced to old Reginald, who had to account for its being in his possession.
Now the twelve burglars had in the meantime been arrested by the police (this also is incredible), and were condemned to penal servitude for life.
So old Reginald had no hesitation in stating the facts as I have stated them.
No one believed him, as no one will believe me.

So he appealed to the honest burglar to corroborate his story.
But the honest burglar, having discovered the whole thing, coffee-pot, salver and all, was some commonest electro, was so shocked at old Reginald's dishonesty, that not only did he decline to corroborate his story, but actually, and I think very properly, identified him as an accomplice.
And old Reginald was also sentenced to penal servitude, and he and the honest burglar worked for years together on the same works, and had many opportunities of talking the matter over from its moral, social and political point of view.

A HUNDRED office-holders recommend
Mr. Boring for mayor and ask disinterested citizens to let themselves be used as cats-paws to rake out chestnuts for those who want the honors and profits of the party.

A FEW YEARS ago, through the influence of Thos. B. Cochran, Chas. A. Boring, the would-be mayor's brother, got a "snap" at Harrisburg, by which in one winter he drew over $1,000 from the state treasury, for services that he could render without any exertion except to receipt for the money; in return, the other day, Chas. A. Boring had himself substituted on the county committee to elect Tom Cochran to the state convention to cast the vote of Lancaster for the third term and against Blaine. That is chapter No. I. Now Cochran has undertaken to elect Brother John mayor, on condition that he is to be allowed to manipulate the city government to punish Cochran's enemies and elect his friends at the Republican primaries. Yet chapter No. II. has not been finished yet.

Tobacco.
The New York Seed Leaf Market.
U. S. Tobacco Journal.

Stillness characterizes our market. A few hundred cases of Pennsylvania, a hundred Connecticut and a hundred Ohio, a few Wisconsin are all that has been dealt in.
It is a mystery to many from where the large cigar manufacturers, who are still extraordinarily busy, draw their supply of leaf. Some claim that they have a large stock of '77 and '78 goods on hand; some again hold that they are working up all the remnants on hand in their factories in order to clasp the '79 crop tightly. Many of the purchasers of the '79 crop will never see their dreams of a golden future when their tobacco is ready for market. There will be no ready tobacco waiting customers for prices to rule high, even granting the fact that the tobacco is exceptionally good.
Cigar manufacturers want good tobacco, but want to buy it cheap. It is expected that the opening figures for medium '79 Pennsylvania will be from 10 to 12 cents for running. Packers of '79 Connecticut are at once retreating the claimed fine and that the crop is not so good as concerns and Ohio of the '79 crop are considered dead articles in the market at present. Be that as it may, business will nevertheless be lively during the year.
There is plenty of tobacco, and especially there are plenty of packers of the '79 Pen-sylvania crop who can afford to lose on their investments.
Havana.—Active. Sales, 650 bales. No change in prices.

Gans's Report.
Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J.
S. Gans's Son & Co., tobacco brokers, Nos.
84 and 86 Wall street, New York, for the week ending February 16, 1880: 300 cases 1878, Pennsylvania, fillers 9; 10 cents; assorted 11 to 13 cents. 200 cases 1878,
New England, seconds 9 to 11, wrappers 15 to 25 cents. 200 cases 1878 Ohio, 10 to 14 cents. 50 cases 1878 Wisconsin, 7 to 11 cents. 100 cases sundries, '77 and '78 crops, 7 to 8 cents. Total 850 cases.

Bound to Have "Information." Detroit Free Press.

There are many attractions in and around the Union depot to interest people who are waiting for trains. There is the big buffalo head, the fat policeman, beautiful time-tables, advertisements of oyster canses and fights between boot-blacks, but one no sooner gets settled down to solid comfort than he is made to realize how cold the world is. Yesterday was a sample case. A man who had an hour-and-a-half to wait was putting in the first quarter by looking at the sign: "This way to the ferry, where long-haired, straight-nosed man touched his arm and inquired:

"My friend, are you posted on Biblical history?"
"No, sir," was the immediate reply.
"Sorry. I'm a little bewildered on a certain matter and I wanted information.
Never read the Bible much, then?"
"No, sir."
"Sorry. It's a very good book—very good. Were your parents in the ark?"
"Yes, sir, and so am I, and I'm pretty wicked besides."
"Sorry. Which way are you going?"
"None of your business, sir! I want you to go away from here!"
"Do, eh? Do you know where the ark rested?"
"No, sir, and I don't want to talk to you!"
"Sorry. Why did the children cross the Red sea. Why didn't they go round it?"

The other walked round the ticket office to get rid of his questioner, but while he went one way the old man went the other and as they met the latter asked:
"If the rotary motion of the earth was to be increased one-half what would be the effect?"
"I'll tell you what the effect of your following me around will be!" sternly replied the other. "The first thing you know you'll have an awful swelling between the eyes!"
"Sorry. Do you remember the task imposed on Archimedes?"
The infidel walked out towards the river and the other slowly followed. When they reached the wharf the former halted and said:
"You've got to quit this or fight."
"Why, I only wanted information. They say that Hamlet was a Dane, but do you know whether he was or not?"
The other reached out and got one in on the old man's chin, but it was rather unfortunate. He with the long hair suddenly started up like a runaway engine, and in about a minute was seated astride of the other and had him boxed off and bottled.
When the employees of the freight house rushed out he was saying:
"Sorry, very sorry, but if you know where the ark rested you've got to whoop up the information, or I'll give you a week's headache."

Mr. Boring's proposition to increase the city tax rate had prevailed, every foot of real estate in Lancaster would have felt the burden and every renter would have had to pay his share.

Mr. Boring has been tried in councils and found wanting.
