DREAMS AND DREAMLAND.

FACTS OF CURIOUS BRAIN FANCY.

How Mrs. Callaghan Found Her Money, a Young Lady Recovered Her Watch, and Another Discovered a Thief.

HEATHEN LANDS AND HEATHEN LAW.

Something About the Manners and Worship of China and Burmah—Yarns About Animals.

Found by Dreams.

Harper's Weekly.

John Callaghan was a well-to-do farmer, residing in the County Cork. He was a sober, steady man and had never been known to be behindhand in paying his rent. Though his farm was not very large, still, by good management, he was able to support his family comfortably out of it. There came one summer, however, that the weather was so bad that nearly all poor John's crops failed, so that when rent-day came he had no money to meet it. There was only one thing to be done under the circumstances—he must sell some of his stock. He regretted much being obliged to do this, but he had no other alternative if he wished to retain his farm, and the agent was a very hard man, and would soon turn him out if he did not pay punctually. So the next fair-day, John took two of his best cows and some fat pigs to sell at the fair. He spent all day there trying to get a good price for them, and at last he succeeded in doing so. He was very tired on his return, and looked so ill that his wife remarked it to him. Assuring her that it was nothing but over-fatigue, and that he would be all right in the morning, he told her that he had sold the cattle very well, having got fifty pounds for them, which was enough for the half year's rent, and something over. He went to bed immediately after his supper, and did not awake next morning, however, his wife wondered he did not answer her when she spoke to him. At first she thought he was in a faint, and sent at once for a doctor, who pronounced him dead. It was supposed that the anxious state of his mind, and the overfatigue he had gone through, had hastened his death, his heart having been affected for some time past.

Yarns About Animals.

In the course of a recent journey, the horse of a J. H. Harman, of Belfast, Me., slipped his halter and went to the blacksmith alone to have its shoes sharpened.

The Rural cemetery at Albany was selected by a wild deer as a place of resort. It has frustrated every effort to capture it thus far, and when alarmed it takes to the densely wooded ravine.

An English bishop has a parrot which, at proper seasons, and appropriately to the circumstances, says "Let us pray," sometimes devoutly and with becoming solemnity, but again sarcastically or ironically.

A Middleburg (Pa.) mouse tunneled an ear of corn, built a nest in a basket to live on the grain on the outside. The ear was eight and a-half inches in length and nine and a-half inches in circumference, and it contained 1600 grains of corn.

A drunken sparrow was recently seen on the streets of Easton, Pa., and was picked up and cared for by a peasant vendor until it became sober. Some one had dropped a flask of whisky on the sidewalk, and the bird drank of the liquor until it staggered and fell.

D. T. Williams, late of Richmond, Va., had a dog that built a basket to live in, and was living on the grain on the outside. The dog was eight and a-half inches in length and nine and a-half inches in circumference, and it contained 1600 grains of corn.

A Yankee boy named Oliver, while passing through a wood in Maine, thrust his axe into the hollow trunk of a tree, and a large black bear's head made its appearance. As he attempted to come out Oliver cut off his three toes. Then the bear sprang for the lad, and he brought a well-directed blow upon his head, splitting it open from the base of the brain to the nose. The bear weighed 400 pounds, and measured nine feet from his nose to the hind paw.

WALTER A. HEINITSH.

China and Burmah.

The Land of Confucius and Buddha.

Moung Edwin, a native of Burmah, lectured in High street Baptist church, Baltimore, giving an interesting account of life and customs in China, Hindostan and Burmah. He has been in this country several years, receiving a thorough education, and will shortly return to Burmah as a missionary of the Baptist church, of which he is a member. He is a small, spare man, of very intelligent countenance, and speaks with a strong foreign accent, dwelling much upon the last syllables of words. The Chinese empire, he said, was the oldest government in the world, and its people were intelligent and cultivated. It is a Republican form of government, and politically very strong, but religiously very "low down." He criticised mainly the deplorable condition of women in all the Eastern countries, caused by the teachings of their religions. Girls in China are believed to have no souls, and to kill them is not murder, and therefore not to be punished, though the crime of murder is punished with death by torture. When parents are too poor to support the girl children they are disposed of in the following way: At regular intervals an appointed assessor goes through a village and collects from the parents all the girl children they cannot care for, when they are about eight days old. He has two large baskets attached to the ends of a bamboo pole slung over his shoulder. Six infants are placed in each basket, and he carries them to a neighboring village and expose them for sale. Mothers who desire to raise wives for their sons buy such as they may select. The others are taken to the government asylum, of which there are many all through the country. If there is room there they are taken in, if not they are drowned. The abolishment of suttee by the English has been a terrible grief to the heathen women of India, who believe they have lost their only hope of heaven, and are more unhappy than when allowed to immolate themselves with their husbands. He wanted the truth taught to these poor women. In Burmah the Buddhist priests were looked on as gods. A priest must not store up anything for himself, and could only eat once a day, both of which, he thought, were good rules. He must shave his head; must not look at a woman; must have no father, mother or sister. For instance, if his mother fell into a well he must not rescue her, else he would be punished for seven days and nights. He must not let his shadow fall on a woman nor her shadow fall on him. Churches were plentiful in Burmah, and were not only places for religious worship, but places of rest and refuge for the poor and the fugitive. The doctrine taught by the priests is that a man to become an angel was "good work, charity and self-denial."
