The Soup House Distribution.

The third annual report of the free soup fund managers, Mayor MacGonigle and S. A. Groff, shows to the patrons of this charity that in the last season they disbursed $348.63 in money and $145.80 worth of other donations, and closed the season with $209.35 balance on hand, as a foundation for next year's operations. The report gives the names of all the contributors, and in the body of it says:

The winter has not been severe and work has been comparatively plenty. These conditions caused fewer applications than last year by more than thirty-three per cent., and also induced us to close our house for the season nearly ten days earlier than last year.

Rations issued December, 1879, 688 January, 1880, 10,505; February, 1880, 9,689; March, 1880, 3,811. Total number of rations, 24,693.

The total cost of relief being $494.43, and the number of rations issued 24,693, the cost per ration is 2 cents, very nearly. There were distributions on 64 days (we did not issue on Sunday), averaging 386 A free entertainment at Salem church, rations a day, against 512 last year, or 126 Thursday evening, April 22. The Luscious Peach.

We have had the periodical wail this year over the failure of the peach crop, but before our housekeepers take too gloomy a view of the situation, it may be well for them to ponder over the ideas thus suggested by the New York Herald :

At this season of the year gloomy reports and predictions in regard to peach erop are always in order. Something or other is perpetually happening to mar the prospects of a large crop At one time the weather is too cold or too wet, at another it is not cold or wet enough. A tornado o casionally comes to the rescue, and, when everything else fails, the transportation lines have made a combination which will inevitably have the effect of putting up prices. This year, according to the Delaware papers, we had too much frost in the beginning of the present month, so that in Maryland, south of the Delaware line, where the trees were well advanced. the destruction is said to be very great. The Middletown region, in Delaware, which is the great peach-producing district is, however, is expected to make up for whatever deficiencies may occur in other sections. There the trees have not borne much fruit in two years, and according to all peach precedents, they ought to yield abundantly this season. In the Eastern Shore counties the chances are said to be still good, so that, taking all things into consideration, there is not much reason to fear that we shall experience a dearth of ularity, as Messrs, Strawbridge & Clothier disthe luscious fruit this summer. But the tributed 5,000 of them in Philadelphia in an introuble is not yet over. There are hail storms and insects and unheard of other calamities yet ahead.

The City Work.

The new street commissioner has been busy for some days past in different parts of the city scraping mud and filling in chuck holes with broken stones. The taxpayer passing by need only stop and look at the workmen for ten minutes to convince himself that the city now gets a day's work for a day's wages. Dan Trewitz is the sort of a man who does other people's work just as well as he does his own and there is no loafing nor shirking duty on the streets while he is in command. We venture to predict that at the end of the current year it will be seen that the city got more for its street appropriation than

Everything seems to be running smoothly in the water department. The pumps work well, the reservoirs are kept full and there is plenty of water in every accessible portion of the city. All this is as it should be, and the Democratic party, the wound was a very deep one, it was healed which is responsible for the new regime, proposes to hold its servants to the same strict accountability as they asked, but never got, from the Republican administra-

These furnaces have been for many years under the personal management of A. Wilhelm, esq., attorney for the Cornwall estate.

Runaway.

Yesterday Peter Diffenbach, of this city, was driving in the neighborhood of Stoner's saw mill, which is situated on the Mill creek, about three miles from town, his horse frightened, and, running off, threw him out. He escaped without being injured, and the damage to the buggy was but slight.

" The Game of Shopping."

Messes, Strawbridge & Clothier, the great dry goods firm, Eighth and Market streets, Philadelphia, have hit upon a novel advertising device and one that will be likely to bring that well-known house more prominently than ever before the popular notice. It is in the form of an illustrated game, known as the "game of shopping," which, with many inter- It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasesting features, is devoid of the elements that rendered its popular predecessor, the "game of the oldest and best female physicians and of fifteen," such a strain upon the patience and good-humor of its votaries. The "game of shopping" is a revivication of the old-fashion-ed "parchesi," "snake game," etc. That is, the general method and movementare the same. It consists of a handsomely illuminated cardboard, eighteen inches square, designed to rep resent the varied departments of a complete and well-regulated dry goods house, such as that of Strawbridge & Clothier, whose advertisement occupies the centre of the card. The card is accompanied by an "indicator," being a block of wood divided into spaces numbered from I to 6, and upon which is mounted an arrow revolving upon a pivot, which the players spin to determine the order of their play-the game may be played by any number of persons from two to six. From this point the game is played after the fashion of "parchesi," each player being provided with a "customer," or small colored button, which he moves as many spaces on the board, which is divided into 60 sections, as his number on the indicator en titles him to. The "customer" passes from the entrance of the store to the exit, the one first reaching the latter place winning the game. The customer is subjected to the chance of an unlucky turn of the indicator, which may keep him waiting at the cashier's desk or one of the elevators, or send him back to the entrance to begin all over again, and thus detain him in his journey through the big establish ment. The game is doubtless destined to popcredibly short time, so great was the demand for them. Mr. Ireland, the advertising agent of the house, was in Lancaster to-day making arrangements for the distribution of the novel advertisement among Messrs. Strawbridge & DELEGATES TO STATE CONVENTION. Clothier's patrons in this city.

The Minstrels.-On Friday evening the minstrel troupe of John L. Carneross will appear in this city. The features of the entertainment will be "The Skidmore Guards," "Enchantment Ballet" and "Grant's Reception." Sev eral hundred seats have already been sold. The Jubilee Singers.-They were in Easton on Monday night. The Express says of them: "The Jubilee Singers received a hearty welcome from the most cultured audience that has lately filled the house, and they pleased immensely. The plantation songs and choruses were magnificently rendered, the weird, quaint music captivating the audience. The singers have improved greatly in artistic singing since they first appeared. Their strong hold still is in their plantation songs, to which they should as much as possible confine themselves. The songs were frequently encored, to which responses were always liberally given."

THE young son of Mr. Abraham Gifferons, a farmer near Stirling, III., had the misfortune to cut himself very severely in the leg; St. JACOB'S OIL was applied at once, and although in a few days without festering. "St. Jacob's On is now the 'boss' in the surrounding country," says Mr. Gifferons.

There's not a charm that light's the face With so ineffable a grace, As sweet, pink lips and ivory teeth; And nothing now, beneath the sky, Can beauties such as these supply, Save SOZODONT, that wears the wreath.

WISE MEN NEED NO INSTUCTIONS.

Tammany Convention's Address. The situation calls for the ablest, wisest and best leadership the party can have. We appeal to you to send unpledged delegations of representative men, who need no instructions to select for the Democratic THE DEMOCRATS IN WASHINGTON.

What They Think of the New York Squab Herald's Washington dispatch. That part of the Democratic party which is sojourning in Washington does not seem to care much about the New York quarrel. It has been taken for granted here among the Democrats all along that the Tildenites would control their convention, and it was not thought of much importance what it did. The Democrats here regard Mr. Tilden as out of the race, and they are of late not quarreling about candidates, but have evidently come to the conclusion that what is wanted is a strong ticket—one which will secure the respect and confidence of the country and that such a ticket will be nominated at Cincinnati without difficulty. The Democrats, who were cast down by the folly of the extra session, have of late begun to believe that with a good and reputable ticket they can carry the country. They have watched with great care the third term movement and they all hope for its success and believe that the ex-president will be renominated at Chicago and that the Democratic party will have itself to blame in that case if it does not carry the country in November. A Southern Democrat, who has a wide knowledge of what is going on in the Southern states, said today to our correspondent: "The ex-president will have almost every southern delegate at Chicago. I have not the least doubt of that. The Democrats in the South are helping him that far, for we want to see him renominated.' " How many Southern states will the ex-president carry in the election if he is nominated?" your correspondent asked.

"Not one," was the reply. "Do you suppose that our backs have forgotten the burden of the carpet-baggers he put on us? No. We have had enough of military government. We want civilian candidates and a civilian policy. If the most influential Democrat in my state should take the stump for the ex-president after he is nominated he would not carry fifty men with him out of the Democratic party; but we mean to help his nomination-you see if we don't." General Joe Johnston.

Philadelphia Times. The announcement of General Joseph E. Johnston that he will decline a re-election to Congress will be generally regretted. He has been one of the most conservative members of the House; has been one of the most earnest and consistent supporters of the army, and all measures necessary for the government, and has been the foe of every form of sectional strife. He was one of the ablest and most heroic of the Southern commanders, and he has been one of the most faithful in the maintenance of the logical results of the war after the judgment of the sword had been given against his cause. So far from the North being alarmed at the influx of Confederate brigadiers in Congress, intelligent citizens well know that the soldiers of the South have much more manfully submitted to the restoration of the Union than the politicians, and if there were more soldiers in Congress from all sections, there would be greater tranquillity to the nation. The North has, most unfortunately, cast soldiers to the rear for partisan managers who accepted the profits without the dangers of war, and the revolution-ary debates in both houses painfully remind us of the blunder every week. General Johnston represents the Richmond district, one of the most intelligent of Virginia, and his constituents would honor themselves by re-electing him without asking his assent. As one of his political faith is certain to be his successor, tions would be glad to have General Johnston continued in the House.

Marvelous Changes.

The child, sixteen months old, of John Salter, of Philadelphia, has been going through a great number of chromatic changes. Originally it was white with yel'ow; then it turned saffron; finally it was of a full, fine black hue; now, under discreet medical treatment, it is gradually fading back again, having reached the light chestnut stage. This is said by the doctors to be a case of melanosis, or pigmentation. The poor child has probably not suffered in its mind, whatever may have been its bodily pain.
