THAT BURGLARY

nd How the Rattle Rattled and the Bell ang and the Bird Sang; and the Police Came Not.

There was plenty of fun around the neighborhood of Mrs. Wiley's residence on the night of that burglary, but the pity of it is that that there was no audience there to enjoy it, and each performer was too in. tent upon the proper performance of his part in the play to appreciate it as a whole. Our alert and amiable police even were not on hand, and the loud racket of Mrs. Wiley's policeman's rattle in vain for half an hour went out upon the still night air. Nobody came. Our gallant friend Jake Long first appeared upon the field, the other neighbors hearing the great noise indistinctly in their dreams and thinking it was anything but but the cry of distress that it really was; all but our friend Lyte, of the Examiner, who listened to the exciting sounds from his window and viewed the departing footsteps of the three burglars with a calm delight that he was the only reporter about ; in the sweet consciousness of which he went back to his dear couch and refrained from going after further particulars. Our esteemed friend Reuben Baer, of the Volksfreund, was more alert in the defense of the assailed houseand afforded a very picturhold esque sight as he stood on the front portico of his residence, and swung to and fro his great dinner bell, with great girl but two years old, was unable to sweep of the arm and undulation of a body decently attired in a flowing robe of night. The din and the apparition would almost body. The child was taken into the house have sufficed to summon the hosts of heaven to succor, but it didn't even fetch a Lancaster policeman. Next door, at the residence of Mr. Shroder, a young gentle- It is feared that the child may die. The men slept whose heart would have led him to the relief of troubled womanhood whereever it was to be found, but, though he awoke, it seemed to him that it was with the sound in his ears of "dulcet symphonies and voices sweet," and he came not. But he hied himself to his chamber window and drank in the sweet tones of the big watchman's rattle, and thought as he listened that he recognized the note of a southern bird that he had heard in his travels and which was signifying its loncliness away, from its home and its mate, with these strange eries. So he sought to imitate the cry and to call the bird. It would not come; and then to his active fancy it occurred to think that he had heard that birds might be attracted into a room by the reflection of a mirror thrown upon the outside foliage, and he took down his looking-glass and exposed it to the window in every conceivable angle of reflection, and still the bird came not. And all this time Mrs. Wiley's rattle was sounding in her tired hand, while the southern bird was warbling in our young friends ears and he was whistling to it and calling it and excitedly seeking its capture ; and then came in the baritone of the Baer dinner bell with a noise to startle the dead. The story does not tell us what sort of a variation on the song of the southern bird this was understood to be, but it may be imagined that it was about this time that Mr. Schroder entered our young friend's room to find him engaged in his arduous effort to capture and comfort until some one is killed. The latest victhat bird, as he sang to it with sore throat tim is a son of Prison Keeper John P. out of his chamber window, holding in his tired arms the enticing mirror. brother, was amusing himself by shoot-The bird disappears. Milk and Butter Thieves

Last night thieves broke into a brick arch built near the residence of John Myfin, West Lampeter, and stole therefrom two crocks of milk, which they probably drank, as the empty crocks were found in a tobacco patch near by. They were no doubt after butter, as Mr. Mylin's spring- Being widely known and highly esteemed house, which is some distance from his dwelling, has several times been robbed of this delicacy, and he built the brick arch nearer the house for its greater security. Fortunately there was no butter in the arch when the thieves visited it last night The door being securely locked they effected an entrance by breaking a hole in the brick wall.

ng we ought to remind you of: We may appear to be at when we are not, because of certain tactics sometimes we do not care to use, viz., the pretending to make reone are made. We use reductions to clear stocks. That s perfectly honorable, and it is necessary in a large business. The losses thereby incurred, though sometimes considerable, are trifling in comparison with the benefit to remaining stocks.

Now then, anyone who will take measures to find out where the lowest prices are, compare sample with sample, price with price, will find we are not a whit behind ANYBODY, not even in a single item, so far as we know; and that we are below EVERYBODY on almost everything. ### REIGART'S OLD BRANDY,

Sold by our enterprising young friend, H. E. SLAYMAKER, This Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preterence over all other Brandles, no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifics would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or cases. In proof of the curative powers of THE BOARD OF SCHOOL DIRECTORS of the Lancaster City District will meet hursday evening, June 17, for the purpose of electing teachers for the ensuing term of ten months. Applicants for positions must pre-sent their certificates to the Secretary of the Board prior to that date.

It is especially recommended to families for its purity, ex-quisite flavor and health properties. Medical men certify to its valuable medicinal powers. Mr. Speer has been for years engaged in the raising of grapes and perfecting this wine, and it requires a four years process before it is fit for market.—N. Y. Baptist. This wine is endorsed by Drs. Atlee and Davis, and sold by H. E. Slaymaker, who has procured some direct from the Vineyards. It is excellent for females, especially for those with nursing infants. jl-2wd&w STATISTICS prove that twenty-five per cent of the deaths in our larger cities are caused by consumption, and when we reflect that this terrible disease in its worst stage will yield to a bottle of Locher's Renowned Cough Syrup, shall we condemn the sufferers for their negligence, or pity them for their ignorance?
