The local tobacco trade has been very quiet during the week, and the only sales we have heard of as being positively made were 100 cases of 1878, and 160 cases of 1879, at private prices. There are rumors of other and larger sales of 1879, one entire packing of which is said to have been taken by a New York house at 12 cents through.

But if dealers have been inactive during the past week, the growers have not. They have been as busy as bees in their tobacco fields, and it is estimated that at least one-half and perhaps three-fourths of the crop of 1880 has been set out, and more would have been could good plants have been obtained. Planters have gone eight or ten miles, and in some cases further to get plants, and in not a few instances thieves have invaded the plantbeds and stripped them so completely as to compel the grower to become a purchaser.

From present appearances the acreage of tobacco in this county will not be much if any larger this season than last. As a rule the old growers are putting in about as much at they did last year. The late "boom in almost all branches of business has given permanent employment to hundreds mechanics and laborers who were last year driven into planting tobacco "on the shares" to gain a livelihood. Many of these will plant none this season, but doubtless enough new growers will appear to swell the total acreage in the county to its last year's proportions, while the acreage in the adjoining counties will be very considerably increased. On the whole, with good weather and no now unforeseen misfortunes by insects or storms, the crop of 1880 Pennsylvania will be larger than any previously harvested.

Cause and effect.—Saw it advertised, bought it for fifty cents, swallowed it for a cough that had troubled me four months, two doses helped one-half bottle cured. Recommend it to all. H. F. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use," For the Receiver of th H. B. Cochran, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa. 22
