DRY GOODS.
WHO IS UNDER?

We do not want you to get the impression that great reductions are being made in the prices of goods elsewhere and not here.

We are, as usual, below the market, and intend to stay there.

The following list embraces enough of our stock to give some clue to the rest of them. We quote articles now in great favor as low-priced goods; but in general they are not reduced. We have been there all the time.

Star Linen, 20 inches, per yard..... 12 1/2

But one thing we ought to remind you of: We may appear to be at a disadvantage when we are not, because of certain tactics sometimes employed, which we do not care to use, viz., the pretending to make reductions when none are made. We use reductions to clear stocks. That is perfectly honorable, and it is necessary in a large business. The losses thereby incurred, though sometimes considerable, are trifling in comparison with the benefit to remaining stocks.

Now then, anyone who will take measures to find out where the lowest prices are, compare sample with sample, price with price, will find we are not a whit behind ANYBODY, not even in a single item, so far as we know; and that we are below EVERYBODY on almost everything.
Samples sent when written for.

BACK FROM CINCINNATI.

RETURN OF THE LANCASTER DELE-GATES.

An Enthusiastic Reception Tendered Them on Saturday Afternoon—Immense Throng at the Depot.

SPEECH BY GEN. EWING.

The Hackney Orator's Masterly Contrast of the Parties and the Candidates—Short Sharp and Inclusive Utterances of Major Cooper of New York.

The Local Delegates Returned.

Owing to the great difficulty experienced in getting comfortable railway accommodations eastward immediately following the Cincinnati convention, Messrs.
B. J. McGrann and W. U. Hensel, the delegates from Lancaster county, remained over a day, and at the invitation of Hon.
Edward Cooper, mayor of New York, took a section in his special car which left the Queen City at 8 o'clock on Friday evening and passed through Lancaster at 5 p. m. on Saturday. Their trip homeward was made under the most delightful circumstances and in the best of good company. Of the mayor's party in the special car were the mayor, Andrew H. Green, Hubert O. Thompson, ex-Police Commissioner Charles F. MacLean, Col. John Tracey, William Henry Hurlbert, editor of the World, Charles H. Traux, Gen. Martin T. MacMahon, Gen. Gustavus W.

Smith, Col. John R. Fellows and William S. Andrews. Among the Democrats from other states who traveled with the mayor's party were Gen. Thomas Ewing and Hugh Ewing, of Ohio; Malem Hay, chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation; Congressman William S. Stenger, B. J. McGrann and Chauncey F. Black of Pennsylvania, and W. U. Hensel of the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER. Among the passengers on the train were Jerome Buck, Gen. John O'Byrne, ex-Judge Joseph Koch and Assemblyman Louis Cohen of Philadelphia, Orestes Cleveland of Jersey City and John Foley, a delegate from California. Much of the time occupied in the journey was devoted to a free discussion of the convention, its proceedings and its results; friends of Tammany and Tilden joined in the unanimous conclusion that the ticket was inevitable and would carry New York by a large majority.

The party was met at Harrisburg by Mayor John T. MacGonigle, of Lancaster, and when the train reached here it was greeted with cheers from a very large throng of people, headed by Clemmens's City band. The car "Malvern," was surrounded at once, and from its platform Mayor Cooper spoke as follows to the large and enthusiastic assemblage:

We of New York congratulate you and ourselves that the state of Pennsylvania has furnished for election to the presidency by the Democracy of the nation, in her gallant son, one who belongs to the whole country by reason of his education and his patriotic services. Here, near the battlefield of Gettysburg, we naturally think first of his pre-eminent military achievements. But he is not only the superb soldier of Williamsburg and the Wilderness, and the able commander who defended the homes of Pennsylvania at Gettysburg. On many occasions in his career, Gen. Hancock has shown himself worthy of the title of citizen soldier, which he has earned by upholding the civil dignity and civil power under the law. New Yorkers came here years ago to do battle under three Pennsylvanians. Two of them have left you and us. In the coming contest we will rally under the remaining one of that patriotic trio, who was nominated by the votes of our delegates, even as we would under the eminent citizen of our own state who was elected president of the United States in 1876. The candidacy of Gen.
Hancock, which is ardently supported by the citizen soldiers of the North and South, is a political campaign as well as a campaign of reunion, by which all vestiges of civil strife and sectional animosity shall be blotted out from the hearts of the American people.

The mayor's speech was received with hearty applause, which broke into cheers for Hancock and English, as the train moved out of the depot.

"Tom" Ewing.

Gen. Ewing of Ohio, kindly consented to stop off until the next section of the train came along, and being escorted to the front steps of the Cadwell house amid the cheers of the dense throng, he made a brief address in his usually eloquent style.

He began with a reference to the local associations called up by Lancaster, as he himself came from New Lancaster, Ohio, a section largely settled by people from this county, and among whom such names as Stauffer, Shaeffer and Fenstermacher are as familiar as here. He touchingly referred to the Cincinnati convention of 1856, which gave the nation a Democratic president from Lancaster, and it was a happy coincidence that one of the first messages of congratulation on Hancock's nomination came from Buchanan's home, from the lady who had presided with such rare grace at the White House during the last Democratic administration. General Ewing said he had just come from the Cincinnati convention and took pleasure in congratulating the people upon the auspicious outcome of its deliberations. Never was there a convention in which there was more forbearance, more brotherhood, more harmony and greater joy at the final result. It was unlikely the Chicago convention of this year, and among whom such names as

House during the last Democratic adminis-
upon the auspicious outcome of its deliberations. Never was there a convention
in which there was more forbearance,
year, and among whom such names as
vention of 1856, which gave the nation a Democratic president from Lancaster, and
