WHO IS UNDER?

We do not want you to get the impression that great reductions are being made in the prices of goods elsewhere and not here. We are, as usual, below the market, and intend to stay there. The following list embraces enough of our stock to give some clue to the rest of them. We quote articles now in great favor as low-priced goods; but in general they are not reduced. We have been there all the time.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

Table listing various goods such as SILKS, DRESS GOODS, COTTON, and WOOLENS with their respective prices.

Table listing various goods such as BLACK GOODS, GREYADINES, PLAIN BUNTINGS, and LACE BUNTINGS with their respective prices.

But one thing we ought to remind you of: We may appear to be at a disadvantage when we are not, because of certain tactics sometimes employed, which we do not care to use, viz., the pretending to make reductions when none are made. We use reductions to clear stocks. That is perfectly honorable, and it is necessary in a large business. The losses thereby incurred, though sometimes considerable, are trifling in comparison with the benefit to remaining stocks.

Letter From Savannah—How They Ratified Down There.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 30, 1880.

EDS. INTELLIGENCER: Savannah, with peculiar unanimity, agrees with the infelicitous press that the ticket nominated at Cincinnati is the strongest that could have been placed before the American people, and is especially enthusiastic in its endorsement of the nominees. The news of the nomination of Hancock and English has turned the city "upside down," and the wave of enthusiasm is growing in volume and power. The ratification demonstration which took place here in honor of the Democratic nominations for president and vice president exceeded even the anticipations of the movers. This place has not been so thoroughly aroused in twenty years. The entire city was alive, the streets were packed with people, and the air was filled with the shouts of the enthusiastic multitude. But to a description of it.

The bulletins in front of the Morning News, the leading Bourbon journal of the county, kept all posted on what was going on in the Democratic convention. Early in the day the sentiment of the populace seemed to be in favor of the "big man from the little state," but at noon, when the brief dispatch "Hancock is nominated," was received, it seemed from the continuous cheering and shouting that he was the first choice of all. All that day, that night, and the next day, the excitement grew more and more intense, and reached its climax in a "grand, sublime, magnificent, transcendental, never-before-surpassed" torchlight procession—to use the language of the News.

At 8 o'clock the members of the Catham artillery announced themselves in readiness to move. Forming in twos and headed by the Savannah Guards band, they marched down Whitaker street. They had with them two "big dogs of war," and two Revolutionary guns, and were followed by over two thousand citizens; some bearing torches, others illuminating the vaulted arch with pyrotechnic display, yet all indulging in the most vociferous and enthusiastic cheers for "Hancock and English."

After a short street parade, terminating at the public common, the cannons were drawn into position. The common is situated at the foot of Houston street, and contains many acres. Here a large bonfire was lighted, the flames leaped high into the air, brilliantly lighting up the street for several squares, which presented a dense mass of people. A large number of ladies with escorts were also present, and it is estimated that there were fully five thousand people in the vicinity.

The firing was opened by gun No. 1, followed by Nos. 2, 3 and 4 in rapid succession. One hundred guns were fired, at the conclusion of which the band played "Dixie," "America," &c., the stirring music greatly increasing the enthusiasm, culminating in three cheers for Hancock and English, and were given with vigor from hundreds of throats. A mammoth procession was again formed, and moved up Bay street into Whitaker and past the Morning News building, which was brilliantly lit up from cellar to garret, while from its cupola floated the stars and stripes.

The guns were now returned to the armory, and after the Cathams had reformed into line they marched down Bay to Jefferson and halted in front of the palatial residence of Col. R. E. Lester. In coming down Bay street the colored men—who numbered nearly a thousand strong—upon whom the excitement was working like "cotton gin," began to get the fever worse than ever and began to sing their old time melodies—substituting the name of Hancock regardless of the rhythm. Enthusiastic calls were made for "Lester"—to which the colonel responded by his appearance on the veranda, and was greeted with the most vociferous cheering. When silence was restored Col. Lester thanked the vast assemblage for the honor; made an earnest and eloquent speech in favor of the nominations; expressed the conviction that the ticket would sweep the field, and predicted that victory would perch upon the banner of Democracy carried by such a standard bearer.

Capt. S. Yates Levy followed Col. Lester. He also ratified the nominations and considered the action of the convention a wise one. At a reference to Hancock's acknowledgment of the supremacy of the civil over the military power and his record as a statesman and a warrior the enthusiasm of his auditors knew no bounds. Mr. J. R. Samsy and Capt. W. W. Payne also spoke in the same congratulatory strain and predicted the triumphant success of the ticket.

The demonstration was an honor to Savannah, although gotten up on short notice by a small number of citizens and all the expenses being defrayed by voluntary subscriptions. And—but I have written too much already, I close my little "Hancock boom" for the present. J. E. D.

Colorado Correspondence.

How a New Western Town Booms.

KOKOMO, COL., June 26, 1880. Kokomo is booming! The daily arrival of passengers and emigrants on the different stage lines running from Georgetown and Leadville is largely on the increase, and ere the brilliant mountain moon we now have is on the wane, not a cabin, hut or canvas tent can be rented or bought unless at enormous rates. Building is rapidly being done; the click of the hammer and the buzz of the saw greet one on every side. Our sawmills are kept constantly at work and yet are unable to supply the enormous demand for lumber. Property in all parts of the city is rapidly advancing in price; lots which on the 1st of May could be had for $150 cannot now be purchased for $400. Log cabins rent from $10 to $25 per month, and ordinary store and restaurant buildings command from $100 to $150.

Our energetic mayor, Capt. Smith, has a force of men at work grading and removing the rocks from Ten Mile avenue. When this is completed we will have a business thoroughfare that will compare favorably with those of any mountain city.

The railroad enterprise is being rapidly pushed forward, and ere the snows of winter virtually hem us in from the outer world we confidently expect to hear the puff! puff! of the steam engine and the rumble of the cars echoing through these hills and mountains.

The mines are looming up fine. Rich strikes are constantly being made on Fletcher and Copper mountains and Sheep mountain is rapidly being developed. The greater part of the mining in this camp is done by tunneling instead of the usual shaft sinking. The mineral is very rich; numerous assays had ranging all the way from 40 to 400 ounces in silver, with from 40 to 90 per cent. in lead and some gold. The smelters are working hard with a full force of men smelting the ores, and a number of the mines will soon commence the shipment of bullion.

The various kinds of weather we have in this country are truly amusing. Yesterday morning I mounted my horse for a canter over the hills (of which ride I shall again write you) starting in the shine and glow of the bright morning sun. Before my return the clear blue sky clouded over, and I was caught in a snow-storm. At noon, during the continued snowing, loud claps of thunder re-echoed through the hills. At two o'clock p. m. the sun was again brightly shining and it was as warm as a May-day in "God's country." In the evening the air was so cool that an overcoat was necessary to comfort. To-day a roaring hot pine wood fire is not out of place. Now all this may seem incredible to those residing in "the states." All I can say to them, is come to our camp, buy a good mine, and I will guarantee to furnish them with specimens of weather as varied as the colors of the rainbow.

I was favored a few days since by a call from that genial and ever pleasant gentleman, Willis B. Musser, esq., of your city. He is making a tour through this mountain region and, I think, intending going as far as the shores of the Pacific before returning. He was much pleased with both our town and its surrounding mountain scenery.

Kokomo will send home a glorious majority in November for the standard bearers of the Democracy selected at Cincinnati—Hurrah for Hancock and English! F.

Odds and Ends.

A New York Chinaman was asked his age, for the census. He thought it was the draft, and, wishing exemption, he replied, "ninety years old, allee timee."

Major (to witness with bandaged head) "Did he have any provocation when he struck you?" "Witness." "He may have had something of the kind conveyed about his person, but it was a brick he struck me with."

Robinson (after a long whist bout at the club)—"It is awfully late, Brown. (What will you say to your wife?" Brown (in a whisper) "Oh, I shan't say much, you know." "Good morning, dear," or something of that sort. She'll say the rest."

A Sheffield manufacturer is reported to have told his workmen to vote just as they pleased: "In fact, I shan't tell you how I am going to vote," he said. "After it is over I shall have a barrel of beer brought into the yard." ["Hear, hear," shouted the men.] "But I shan't tap it unless Mr. Wortley, the Tory candidate, gets in."

"Wouldn't you like to have a bow?" said the bold young archer as they sauntered down the street. "After it is over I shall have a barrel of beer brought into the yard." ["Hear, hear," shouted the men.] "But I shan't tap it unless Mr. Wortley, the Tory candidate, gets in."

Messrs. Parker & Laird, of Hillsdale, write: "Our Mr. Laird having occasion to visit Scotland, and knowing the excellent qualities of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, concluded to take some with him. The result you will find by enclosed letter, which speaks for itself. We may say that in several instances it has effected cures when ailments had been pronounced incurable by eminent practitioners."

MALT BITTERS.

UNFERMENTED

MALT AND HOPS!

BLOOD POVERTY.—The cause of the debility to be met with in every walk of life may be traced to Poverty of the Blood. Too close application to business or study, late hours, dissipation, want of exercise or sleep, have enfeebled the digestive organs and rendered the blood thin, watery and powerless to fulfill the great purpose for which it was created.

MALT BITTERS are prepared without fermentation from Canadian BARLEY MALT and HOPS, and warranted superior to all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

Ask for MALT BITTERS prepared by the MALT BROTHERS COMPANY, and see that every bottle bears the TRADE MARK LABEL, duly signed and enclosed in WAVE LINES.
