TUESDAY EVENING, OCT. 12, 1880.

MOUNTVILLE AWAKENED.
A MONSTER DEMOCRATIC DEMONSTRATION.

Over 1,100 Persons in the Parade and Fully 2,000 at the Meeting.

The Democratic meeting at Mountville last night was a grand success in point of attendance and enthusiasm; and whether as an oration to Col. Forney, the guest and orator of the evening, or an outburst of popular enthusiasm, it confessedly far exceeded the expectation of its managers and proved one of the finest demonstrations ever seen in that section.

The stand was erected at the east end of John Yohn's hotel, and was handsomely decorated with flags, portraits of Hancock and English and a beautiful arrangement of laurel and evergreen. Early in the evening the people began to congregate around it and knots gathered in the streets. The Democratic residents brilliantly illuminated their residences and marshals gaily dressed could be seen riding lither and thither. At 7½ p. m. a special train brought down over 300 uniformed members of the H. M. North marching club of Columbia, 175 from Marietta and Maytown, and a large number in citizens' dress. Then about 100 members of the Lancaster clubs, accompanied by the Glee Club, arrived in omnibuses and private conveyances, and the delegations began to roll in from Washington borough, 75 strong, Millersville, Rohrerstown, Landisville, Ironville, Silver Springs and surrounding country. There was a brilliant display of fireworks and at 8 o'clock promptly the line began to be formed, John S. Hoover marshaling the footmen and I. H. Kaufman taking charge of the horsemen. When fully organized the line of parade made a beautiful display and lumbered west-north a thousand men. It marched westward through the town, down to the railroad and past Mr. J. H. Kaufman's residence, which was brilliantly lighted up, back to the village and down to King's, counter-marching through the village and up into the northern part of it and around to the main street, dismissing at the speakers' stand.

The formation of the line was as follows by close and accurate count:

Formation of Line.
Mountville Band.
Lancaster Staff Officers—J. K. Metzger, Geo. McNabb and David Winters, in full uniform.
Lancaster Delegation—128 men.
H. M. North Club of Columbia—292 men fully uniformed, and 25 citizens of Columbia.
Sixty-four citizens of Maytown.
Marietta Band.
Marietta Hancock Legion—65 equipped men, 15 un-equipped.
Prospect Bands—J. S. Fisher, C. C. Fraich, Adam Fishel.
Washington Club—90 equipped men, and 10 citizens.
Ironville Band.
Ironville Delegation—65 men.
Hamburg Band.
Twenty men un-equipped.
Millersville Band.
Millersville Delegation—100 men, part uniformed.
Three hundred horseman.
Total number in line, 1,181.

The following officers were then chosen to act as marshals, aids, &c., for the parade:

Chief Marshal—J. S. Hoover.
Aids to Chief Marshal—D. Forry, Chas. Shopf, Clem Yohn, C. C. Fraich, Adam Fishel.
Marshal of Horse Delegation—I. H. Kaufman.
Aids—Ed. Kaufman, W. Wertz, John Lutz.
Marshal of Foot Delegation—W. Hayes Grier.
Aids—George Marks, Abram Kaufman, David Yohn.

Meanwhile and long before the parade had returned, the meeting, with at least 1,000 persons in attendance, had been organized by the selection of the Officers of Meeting.

President—Abram Collins, of Marietta.
Vice Presidents—I. H. Kaufman, John S. Mann, S. S. Detwiler, Henry M. Weller, Joseph Hoover, Levi Sener, Leonard Resh, Henry Baker, Hiram Lockard, John Clark, H. M. North, G. W. Zecher, John M. Weller, Levi Heidler, Geo. Mann, Abm. Gram, Conrad Crouse, Amos Charles, Daniel Forry, John S. Hoover, Bernard Keady, Joseph Habacker, Conrad Waltz, John Sheirich, Hiram Detwiler, Henry Humphreyville, Robert Ferguson, A. B. Kaufman, John S. Given, Ed. Kaufman, A. C. Kepler, David Robinson, David Yohn, Abraham Ferguson, Henry McLain, Uriah Bitzer, Michael Hartman, Jac. Habacker, John Yohn, Jacob Gamber, John Reese, John Kaufman, John L. Jacobs, John Lutz, Henry Mann, John Miller, Jacob Marks, Adam Dietrich, Jos. Charles, Jacob Stauffer, Fred Fenstermacher, Wm. Patton, Samuel Sizer, Adam Fishel, Geo. Morrison, Lorenzo Eckman, John Resh, John Pontz, Solomon Zeamer, John Lawrence, Dr. F. S. Albright, Jacob Sneath, Col. John Barr, Cyrus Strickler, Uriah Heitz, Roland Brubaker, S. P. Eby, Geo. John Cramer, Martin Weidler, George M. Cline.

Secretaries: William Hayes Grier, Penrose Nissley, M. S. Moore, Wm. Clarke, John Humphreyville, O. B. Shertzler, Jacob Frick, Dr. Miller, John Beck, Harry Shenk, E. L. Hambright, C. C. Fraich, Uriah Kaufman, J. B. Douglass, Jos. Miller, John Stall, Harry S. Grabill, George Marks, Joseph Couz.

Mr. Collins introduced W. U. Hense, who spoke until the parade had returned and broken ranks to allow those engaged in it to mingle with the main meeting. When thus swelled to an immense gathering, Col. John W. Forney was introduced and for an hour spoke to a listening, though enthusiastic audience, and addressing them in his usual happy manner, told them why Republicans, as well as Democrats, of Pennsylvania, should vote for Gen. Hancock. He was followed by B. F. Davis, esq., in an incisive and effective speech, and after he had concluded the glee club and the bands entertained the throng with music, while the displays of fireworks and other features of the evening gave much zest to the proceedings.

Throughout the evening good order prevailed and though many Republicans were present and gave respectful heed to the speeches the best of good feeling was notable. Two young fellows, with a little bad blood between them, started to fight out an old grudge, at Witter's hotel and the proprietor Mr. Jacob S. Witter interposed and they drew and fired revolvers, one ball just grazing Mr. Witter's cheek. He asks us to say that the parties offending had no connection with the meeting, nor did their affray grow out of any political feeling, and that the order observed by those who composed the meeting was exceptionally good and highly creditable to its management.

—Since writing the above we learn that Witter was not struck by a pistol ball, but received a smack on the face with a torch, while in a crowd, denouncing a set of Democrats whom he and his friends called rebels, &c. The only persons who fired off pistols were Republicans, one of whom acknowledged it. During the evening two young Republicans named Hess and Myers, threw stones at the procession. One of them also admitted it. It was reported in the city this morning that Witter had been badly wounded. The Republicans did all in their power to circulate the report, which was without foundation. The scratch on his face is so slight that it can scarcely be seen.

THE COUNTRY SAFE
UNDER DEMOCRATIC RULE.

THE PARTY OF STABLE CURRENCY.
From Bayard's New York Speech.

Recommended to Lancaster "Business Men."

"But a cry has gone up and been echoed on the stump and in the press, and reiterated in every region, that it will not be safe to intrust the business interests of the country nor the public credit in the hands of the Democratic party. And certain eminent stock holders, who had rigged the market for a fall, screamed out that the deluge was coming and that they would be lost, when the news came that Maine's Maine! (immense applause)—had gone 'Hell bent' against the Republicans. It was gravely declared that a Democratic victory had produced a decline in the stock market. The events of the week that has elapsed have enabled these 'shorts' to cover in their engagements, and Maine no longer affects the market, although Maine has affected greatly other and more important matters than the stock market in Wall Street. It has indicated a drift, nay, a current, may, toward public opinion, that in November next will proclaim to the Republican party, 'Go; you are discharged from further power to obstruct the restoration of the Union and impede the tide of your country's prosperity.' (Great cheer.)

"But it is declared that the Democratic party is an unsafe guardian of the country, and therefore that its ascendancy will injure the business of the country. At the head of such speakers is the secretary of the treasury, Mr. John Sherman, of Ohio, with whom I have the honor to sit on the Senate finance committee, and whose former place as chairman of that committee I have held since March 4, 1879. Mr. Sherman and others have modestly claimed what he is pleased to call a resumption of specie payments, with which phrase he means the present redemption of United States demand notes in gold and silver, and their immediate reissue by the treasury, to have been the work of the Republican party, and very largely of Mr. Sherman himself. In the face of history and the events now proceeding before our eyes, such a claim is refreshing at least for its coolness, its audacity, or, we might say, its cheek. (Laughter.) In March, 1869, when Hugh McCulloch left the treasury department and was succeeded by Mr. Sherman, the latter received as custom duties, and calling in at a large premium his own long bonds, which the holder desired to retain. From 1869 to 1874 this insane and fatal policy was pursued, and not until Mr. Bristow was placed at the head of the treasury, did the policy change, and he attempted to resume specie payment. I am wrong; from the only Democratic member of the committee on finance, he who now addresses you—(applause)—frequent appeals came, beginning in March, 1874, and continuing through the long period of Mr. Boutwell's sales of gold and purchase of long bonds, urging that refunding the public debt was of secondary importance to the reestablishment of a sound money as the basis of our whole financial system, and it was all in vain. I introduced resolutions to this effect, and they went to Mr. Sherman's committee and were buried there.

"During all these years a false money was doing its evil work. Speculation was rampant and prices grossly inflated. In 1875 the bubble burst and then came from ruined speculators a cry for more money—more money to keep up the intoxication. The majorities in the Senate and House were overwhelmingly Republican and well do remember the countless and vigorous speeches in favor of increased money issues by the government by Senator Morton, of Indiana; Mr. Ferry, of Michigan; General John A. Logan, of Illinois; Senator Howe, of Wisconsin; and other leaders of the Republican party, not to mention Mr. William D. Kelley and others. First, Mr. Boutwell and then Mr. Richardson had assumed the power to reissue the greenbacks which Mr. McCulloch had paid and cancelled, and a bill passed both houses with Democratic opposition to restore the volume of greenbacks to $400,000,000. This bill was reluctantly vetoed by General Grant, and there is a curious statement by him showing how he knew his party to stand in relation to the question. (In John Russell Young's history of his voyage around the world.)

"But a compromise, as it was styled, was made, and a bill authorizing the reissue of about $28,000,000 of the greenbacks paid and cancelled by Hugh McCulloch passed the Senate, with Mr. Sherman's aid and advocacy, passed the Republican House and received Gen. Grant's approval. This was a most decided step backward from specie payment. In 1875 the bill called a Resumption bill was introduced by Mr. Sherman from the party caucus, providing for a resumption of coin on January 1, 1879. It was a juggling measure, plainly open to two opposite constructions, one of which made it a measure of contraction of the volume of greenbacks and the other a measure of inflation. In open debate in the Senate I and others asked Mr. Sherman what the act meant and he declined to give a construction. I asked him whether he would allow me to amend the act so as to prevent the reissue of the greenbacks when retired—to add the words 'and destroy'—but he refused and I declined to vote on such a bill. I was then for reumption and I am now for reumption and the Democratic candidate for president and vice president want the same kind of reumption that I do—a real not a sham reumption. We want the reumption intended to be secured by the resolution I offered in the Senate last December, which went to the committee on finance and was reported back adversely by a Republican majority, Messrs. Allison, Ferry and Jones, and by two Democrats, and with a minority report in its favor by three Democrats, Bayard Kernan and Wallace, and one Republican, Mr. Morrill, of Vermont. It was a resolution right on the ancient pathway of the constitutional Democracy, withdrawing from the treasury notes when paid and redeemed at the treasury any power of enforcing legal tender when reissued. This was a honest and real effort to make reumption actual, to keep our measure and standard of value secure and to save all men from the dishonesties and dangers of a fluctuating currency liable to depreciation. Well do I remember the grand memorial, fifty by tens, with its massive contents, presented to the Senate by the worthy and faithful Democratic senator from New York, Mr. Kernan, signed by more than 1,500 of individual and co-partisanship names of the wisest and best financiers and guardians of public and private property in the country. But what was the administration? Where was Secretary Sherman? Where were the Republican guardians of public credit and sound finance in the Senate? I never was in a Republican caucus, but the newspapers generally held out every promise, and it was a public secret that a caucus had been held by the Republicans and it was agreed the resolution should not pass. Certain it is no man of the Republican side ever said a word in its favor; no aid or comfort or suggestion was given to me from a Republican administration and no vote was ever reached upon the measure.

"Few citizens, a vote ought to be reached; for I tell you a great and vital issue close upon us in the near future is whether we are to have a good or a bad money in this country. It is essential for our prosperity that the resumption of coin payments should be stable and secure. There is great danger to us, and our prosperity is and will be in great jeopardy so long as a legal tender currency is in existence. I speak to-night to men who know the truths of finance and I protest against the evasions and delays of the secretary of the treasury and his party when he tells you we are secure in reumption, and yet consents to the reissue of the notes as fast as they are redeemed. I warn you of these dangers, and I believe you will find in a Democratic administration a relief from them. (Cheers.) Over and over have I seen the absurd claim set forth that the Republican party owe reumption. I declare that to the exigencies of the party and the tricky arrangements of its leaders we owe a postponement of reumption, for at least five years, and the continuance of an inflated and fluctuating currency which led to wild speculation and disastrous results.

"Need I refer to the dark and unhappy history of the overthrow of the first and most deliberate decision of the supreme court, solemnly declaring that it was not competent for Congress to create fictitious values in the face of history and as legal tender? How President Grant and his attorney general Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, with the aid of a Republican Senate, accomplished the overthrow of this wise decision by a change in number and amount of the bonds?

"And here, let me ask the intelligent merchants, bankers and business men of New York what has made reumption or redemption possible and enabled it to be continued? Has it been the act of February, 1875? The Pope's bull against the pope, Mr. Partington's mop against the waves of the North sea, were of equal effectiveness. It has been the labor and economy of our country, favored by providence with weather that permitted full crops at the time. He visited the British Isles with his wife and best was unfavorable seasons upon the agriculture of the continent. Redemption of treasury notes has been made possible by the status-manship of the plough. Let me put the plain question to candid and intelligent men, is not the cotton crop of the Southern States to-day and has it not for years past been our chief item of export which enables us to maintain the balance of foreign trade in our favor. I do not omit our vast shipments of breadstuffs in the calculation, but I do now ever that but for the industry of the Southern people and the production of their staples the balance of trade would have been against us steadily and be so to-day, and that reumption would have been impossible. Yet Northern audiences, and here in this centre of intelligence, are taught to believe the Southern States are inimical to Northern prosperity, and that a policy which discourages their industry and alienates their affections and sympathies is the safe, proper and patriotic course to follow. Fellow-citizens, when I read the silly and vaporing platform of Mr. Pierpont and the self-adulations of Mr. Sherman and his associates claiming for themselves and their party restoration of a sound currency (not yet restored) and the prosperity which has come, despite the interference and obstruction in the South and the continuance of war tariffs in time of peace, I am reminded of the complacent proclamation with which a country justice of the peace always concluded his marriage ceremony. Said this self-satisfied person: 'Thou whom we God Almighty have joined together let no man put asunder.' I am not aware, however, that Mr. Sherman and his party are willing to admit the Almighty into their copartnership in producing crops of America or the prosperity of her people and the consequent reumption of specie payments."
