

COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.

October 4th Term. Tuesday Afternoon.—Com'th vs. Bryson Painter and John Drachbar, assault and battery. Ernest Hirst is the name of the prosecutor; he is a baker and resides on Middle street, this city. The evidence of the commonwealth showed that upon the 8th of June last the defendants came into Henri's yard; they began taking bread from his wagon, and Henri ordered them to go out, but they refused; he then struck one of them with a broom. After again ordering them to go he started for an alderman's office, the two then assailed him, beating him with stones and kicking him so badly that he was under medical care for fourteen days. The defense was that Henri first started the fight by hitting Painter with a broomstick. Soon after that Henri knocked him down, but no stones were thrown. This was the last case ready for trial to-day, and court adjourned until 9 a. m. in the morning.

Current Business. Counsel for Isaac Mishler, coroner, presented to the court for confirmation the inquisition held on the body of Daniel K. Miesse.

Thomas R. Hirst was appointed a supervisor of Sadsbury township, in place of Lewis Brinton, who resigned.

Wednesday Morning.—The jury in the case of the com'th vs. Bryson Painter and John Drachbar rendered a verdict of not guilty, but defendant to pay costs.

Com'th vs. John E. Erb, constable of Pequea township, forcible entry. A case could not be tried by the court, as the wealth, and under the construction of the court the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty.

Com'th vs. William Madlen, Jacob S. Spangler and M. Dawson Spangler, violating a subpoena. The jury in the case was Dr. Diller Luther, of Reading. The defendants live near Ephrata. Near that village is a private burying ground, in which were buried the remains of the Weaver, Martin and Miller families. In this cemetery is a vault and in it are the remains of Conrad Weaver, the great grandfather of the prosecutor, he having died in 1810.

Dr. Luther testified that from information received he visited the vault at Ephrata; from its appearance it was seen to have been tampered with, the sod having been removed. The witness described the tomb &c.

Mrs. Amanda Gochley testified that she saw the defendants at the tomb in July 1879. The Spangler was in the company, when witness was there, the young man Dawson had a skull which she said they would take home; they asked witness for a candle to go down into the vault, it was given them but as it was soon extinguished she gave them a lantern.

Jacob Zerfas testified he saw the defendants at the vault in 1879. He saw them working with a shovel opening it. They were not repairing the tomb but trying to get into it. Witness also saw the defendants on Easter Monday, in 1879, they then had just come out of the vault. Dawson Spangler and Albert Luring were then together.

Thomas Jones testified that in a conversation with Jacob S. Spangler, the latter told him that the vault was tampered with, and that it was put back; he said they had taken it out but Dawson had taken it home.

Mrs. Amanda Binkley testified that she saw Dawson Spangler come out of the vault on Easter Monday. Several other witnesses testified that they saw a skull at Jacob Spangler's house in November, 1879.

The defense was that Jacob S. Spangler, in evidence, was the son of the defendant, and that he had relations in the tomb, with the other defendants went to the vault, and when seen there they were engaged in cleaning up the place. It was admitted that Dawson Spangler took the skull to his father's (Jacob Spangler's) house, but only for the purpose of making a phonological examination; it was replaced long before any prosecution was made.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

A Hostler at Neffville Falls Down Stairs. About one o'clock this morning Julius Eibler, a Democrat, aged 25 years, who was employed as a hostler at the hotel of Samuel Brubaker in Neffville, fell down stairs and was fatally injured. Last evening the man had been drinking with a friend and about 12 o'clock he started to go to bed. He was leaning against the boarders heard a noise but did not know what it was. This morning at 6 o'clock Thomas Law, a boarder at the hotel, arose and went down stairs. Upon arriving at the bottom the stairs he found something lying against the door. He procured a light and upon making an examination found that the object at the bottom of the stairs was the head of Ehrbreiter. He was lying with his head near to the door, and had a terrible cut on the back of his head. It is supposed the man had gone to bed and arose for some purpose during the night. In going down stairs he likely fell and his head striking the edge of the door at the bottom, he was fatally injured. When found he had nothing on but his under clothing.

Coroner Mishler was sent for and he immediately empaneled a jury consisting of John A. Schult, J. B. Anwarke, Jr., Henry Brunner, Harry H. Hense, Jacob Frankford and W. H. Pennock. They viewed the remains which were examined by Drs. Bowman, Witmer and Dillman. After hearing the evidence of the physicians and witnesses the jury rendered a verdict of "death from congestion of the brain, caused by an accidental fall."

The body of the man was brought to this city and interred in the almshouse burying ground. The deceased had been living with Mr. Brubaker since June. He has no wife, but has one son in Washington, D. C., and another in Sanbury, this state. He was a soldier during the war and was soon to have received back pension amounting to $1,500.

The Republican Convention. The Republican gathering in this city, and it is expected that thousands of strangers will be present, not only from this county but from adjoining counties, from Philadelphia and other distant points. One of the features of the day will be a grand street parade. There will be of course much excitement and exultation and hurrahing, and perhaps some taunting and insulting expressions made by some of the men in line. If this should be the case, we urge our Democrats to pass it by, and to let the Republicans have their parade, as possible cause of complaint. Treat the visitors with the utmost courtesy and respect, and do not answer cheer with cheer or gibe with gibe. Let them have their parade.

There will be time enough for Democratic rejoicing after our Republican friends shall have exhausted themselves.

All good citizens of all parties will of course lend their influence and aid to the city authorities in promptly checking all attempts at breaches of the peace, should any be made, no matter by whom.

A good many Democrats of this city have signified their intention of going to York at 10 a. m. to-morrow. They will assemble at the Central headquarters.

Death of Mrs. William R. Rathvon. A telegram received by friends in this city announces the death of Mrs. Lillie Rathvon, wife of Wm. R. Rathvon, formerly of this city, for a year or two past a riding in Sterling, Kansas. Mrs. Rathvon had been in ill health for a few weeks past, but recent letters received led her Lancaster friends to believe that she was in a fair way to recover, and the unexpected death of her husband has been a great mourning among a large circle of friends. Her body will be brought to Lancaster for interment, the funeral to take place from the residence of her mother, Mrs. L. C. Porter, North Shippen street, on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

HIS BRIDE'S MAUSOLEUM.

The Memorial Church Erected by Pennsylvanians in the City of New York.

Among Finishing a Costly Mansion for Her Home, but on her Death Leaving it to the Ground.—The Consecration Ceremony.

Lebanon Dispatch to New York Sun. A new church edifice, the princely gift of a Pennsylvania iron king, was consecrated in this quiet back country borough to-day. There is quite a romantic chapter of love and sorrow connected with it. The new edifice, about a very large sum of money, and it is generally known that every dollar was paid by Mr. Robert Coleman, one of the leading members of the "house of Cornwall," founded upon three mountains of iron ore here in Lebanon county, about 140 miles west of New York. The church is in the borough proper. Cornwall, a few miles distant, is the home of the Colemans, the richest iron family in the state. Monday, being the festival of St. Luke, was chosen for the consecration of the magnificent edifice and it was dedicated with all the rites and ceremonies of the Episcopal church.

Several years ago Mr. Robert Coleman met a young lady of very prepossessing appearance in a tour he made of New England. She was the daughter of a respectable family of Connecticut in moderate circumstances. A mutual attachment followed, and not long afterward the couple were married. A short time after the marriage the young bride was suddenly taken on a trip on the continent, and she never returned. It was thought that the climate of the south of France, Italy, or Spain would be best for her. All that love and boundless wealth could give was furnished with the most liberal hand.

A fine site was chosen, and level and elevated with a commanding view of a long stretch of the beautiful Iron valley. The Coleman estate comprises about five thousand acres. In one part of it is a large tract containing some thirty or forty acres. The valuable animals are quartered in rooms having mirrors on the walls and Brussels carpet on portions of the floor. Five monstrous furnaces are smelting one night and day on the site. These furnaces have made millions of a dozen families or more. Robert Coleman is the youngest of the iron kings of the present line of owners. Interested parties and heirs are steadily employed. Mr. Coleman remains in complete charge of the estate. Everything is conducted in princely style. Every employe lives on the place, rent free. The cottages are models of neatness, cleanliness, and convenience. A chess, billiard, and other necessary wants are fully supplied. The great farm supplies employees with wheat, corn, potatoes and vegetables at far below market price. Splendid family mansions occupy prominent places. Tallly cooched, dark stone, bay windows, the members of the Coleman family and their many visitors to the neighboring towns and railway stations. Hence the new mansion that was to be erected by Mr. Robert Coleman as a monument to his wife, and to be dedicated to her memory, was something exceedingly grand. The foundations were massive and built of granite and limestone. The underground divisions were commodious and finished in the most modern style. A hard cement floor was laid. The framework of the bay windows for the first floor weighed several tons apiece. The superstructure was to have been of marble, iron and granite. The work was proceeding splendidly and some fifty men were steadily employed. Carried a load of material was arriving and being put in place. All efforts were made to rapidly push on the completion of the work. Every detail of furniture and upholstery had been decided upon, and the architect had received his special instructions. In fact, everything had been fully arranged looking to the rapid completion of the mansion, when a telegram came over the sea that the young bride was very ill in Paris. Quickly followed another which stated that she was dead. Every tool in the new house was dropped. The young husband, stricken with grief, was for a time not to be consoled. He ordered the workmen on the new mansion to go to the office and draw their pay, and their tools to be taken to the other property. In a few days orders were given to tear down what had been put up; to throw in the excavations, and plough the place over. All that remained of what was to have been a palace was ordered to be obliterated.

The construction of the beautiful church dedicated here to-day concludes the story. The remains of the dead bride were embalmed and brought back to America, and were interred in a vault under the construction of the church walls had been sufficiently advanced to receive them. The new edifice is cruciform, 96 by 75 feet. The floor is of Spanish tile from Valencia. The woodwork is of oiled oak. A massive lower, twenty-four feet square rises one hundred feet in the air. The structure is of gray stone, even to the window sills. A hydraulic engine in the basement supplies the air for the organ. The style of finish is old English, with massive granite columns. The leading Episcopal clergymen of the eastern section of the state were present at the consecration, including M. De Wolfe Howe, bishop of this diocese, who was consecrator; the Right Rev. Dr. Elliott, of New York; the Right Rev. Dr. Lane, bishop of Nebraska; T. T. the Rev. Dr. Oliver, of Nebraska, the Right Rev. B. Wistar Morris, missionary bishop of Oregon, and other distinguished clergymen from the Episcopal convention in session last week in New York. The Rev. Chancellor Hart is the rector of the parish. The new church has a seating capacity of about 500. It was filled to overflowing to-day by the leading citizens of this section of the state.

Police Cases. On complaint of Elizabeth Witz, Jacob Espenshade, farmer, was arraigned before Alderman Samson, of the Sixth ward, to answer for assault and battery. It appears that the Witzes were peddling and Mr. Espenshade asked them what they had in their wagon. He was told it was none of his business, whereupon he hinted that they had stolen some of his corn. This stirred up the anger of Mrs. Witz, who with her boys' hats, caps, gloves, shirts, underwear, knickerbockers, &c., and that is why they are selling so many goods and getting busy.

COLUMBIA NEWS. OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE. Democrats Parading in the Rain.—Fremont to Harvest Notes About Town. The very inclement weather and the "forty hours devotion" at Holy Trinity Catholic church together had abated for the worse in the turnout last evening of the 1st and 3d wards, however, of this place, but notwithstanding all countering influences the procession in point of numbers and in enthusiasm, as well as in strict attention to marching and preserving good order, was a decided success. The Third ward contingent did not turn up at all, a large number of its members are likewise members of Holy Trinity church and preferred attending to their church duties to parading through town with torches on their shoulders. The battalion of 1st and 3d wards, however, turned out a large percentage of its number, and despite the falling rain, held to the ranks and marched the route like veterans. The several companies of the battalion formed at the points designated at the appointed time and followed the route published in Monday's INTELLIGENCER, constantly passing before handsomely illuminated residences and giving cheer upon cheer for the well-wishing occupants. The only visiting delegation was from Maytown, which accompanied by the Maytown band. The Citizens' band of this place furnished the music for the Columbia battalion. The line was dismissed after accomplishing the route of procession on Third street near the Keystone Democratic Club.

A Wise Decision. "Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family so well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors running to us so long." "Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time and kept my family well and saved a doctor's bill. Three dollars' worth of it kept us all well and able to work all the time, and I will warrant it has cost you and most of the neighbors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time. THIRD EDITION. WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCT. 20, 1880. HORRIBLE HOLOGAST IN CINCINNATI. ANOTHER RAILROAD ACCIDENT. ANARCHY IN TURKEY. A DENIAL FROM GARFIELD. News by Wire and Cable. SHOCKING HOLOGAST. Five Women Burned to Death in Cincinnati. CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—A shocking calamity in connection with a fire occurred shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. A fire broke out in the shoddy manufactory of Benjamin Hey, Second street and Broadway, in such a way as to cut off escape from the third story, where a number of women were at work. The firemen made heroic but ineffectual attempts to rescue the women. After extinguishing the fire they succeeded in extricating the dead bodies of five women, two of whom are not yet identified. The other three are Mrs. Daggett, aged 40 years; Mrs. S. E. Gnar, aged 50, and Mrs. Jackson, aged 30. One of the bodies not identified is supposed to be that of Mrs. Barrett. The loss by the fire is estimated at $25,000; insurance, $12,000.

FIFTEEN PERSONS HURT. A Railroad Collision in Ohio. CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—A collision on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad this morning, at Jones station, nineteen miles north of Cincinnati, resulted in the injury of fifteen passengers—none were killed outright and none are yet dead. The train known as the Sidney accommodation left Hamilton at 8:32 o'clock, two minutes late. At Schencks, a station below Hamilton, it was detained five minutes on account of a freight train. On reaching Jones station, being too late to reach its regular meeting-point of an outgoing train, it was taking a side track when train No. 413, which had left Hamilton at 8:40, came up behind it and caught the rear car which had not yet left the main track. The engine struck the car, broke its own upper works and filled the car with escaping steam. The injured are Dr. A. C. Jones, Connersville, Ind., head cut and upper body scalded; Sarah Mahan, Knobknoster, Johnson county, Mo., hands scalded; Maggie Mahan, Nicholasville, Ky., scalded; Silas Mahan, Nicholasville, Ky., hands and face scalded.

RIPE FOR REVOLUTION. Anarchy and Violence in the Turkish Provinces. LONDON, Oct. 20.—A despatch from Bucharest to the Times says trustworthy intelligence from the border land between Macedonia and Albania represents that the Christians are ripe for revolution. The Bulgarians and Mussulmans are armed and assassinations on both sides are common occurrences. Anarchy reigns supreme. It is believed that the chief purpose of the Turkish authorities in inducing Albanians to flock to the Northern and Southern frontiers is to establish troops in the interior where they can control the lawless population and crush their ideas of independence. If some steps are not taken to restore order, the population will probably be diminished by mutual extermination.
