and confidence are what they need, but if the manufacturers press the tariff issue to

In conclusion Mr. Apgar exposed the outrage business of the Republican campaign shirekers, and closed with an eloquent prediction that united New York, forgetful of past factional strife, would lead the Democratic column and with Connecticut and New Jersey elect the Democratic candidates.

the forefront theirs be the responsibility

Mr. Apgar spoke for an hour and threequarters and was attentively listened to, and point after point of his telling argument was raptuously applauded. Though suffering from severe indisposition he spoke in his usual incisive style, and his rapier thrusts at Republican sophisms were as keen as the cut of a Damascene blade.

Mr. Lagen's Speech. Mr. Chas. A. Lagen, of the Philadelphia bat, a prominent young barrister of that city, native of Lancaster and son of Mr. Daniel Lagen, was introduced, and though the hour was late his first words commanded the attention of his audience and he held it fixedly to the end of his speech. He pictured the relief afforded to Pennsylvania in the dark hours of the rebellion, when troops hurried to her succor sent by the Democratic governors of Democratic New York and Democratic New Jersey. [Cheers.] That was her situation to-day and thence would come her relief and the election of her favorite son. The fight has changed. It is now for Grant on the Republican side, and should Garfield be elected the inaugura tion exercises will open not with hymn 329, but with the 306th. The stalwarts who went down at Chicago came up at Mentor. The Republican campaign for 1880 is the Republican battle for Grant in For this federal marshals are employed, for this capital is set against labor, for this intimidation of voters is resorted to. Heretofore there was one day in three hundred and sixty-five when the employee was the equal of the employer, and that was election day. (Applause.)

The Democratic party proposed to see that this should continue. The Republican party's pretense of friendliness to the workingmen is as naked as it is false. Garfield denies the letter in favor of cheap Chinese labor, but his denial is not very valuable, while at the same time his congressional record confirms his letter and not his vague contra-diction of it. Mr. Lagen read from Garfield's congressional record to prove that he favored Chines labor in competition with American. Mr. Lagen continued at length in powerful denunciation of the tricks and fallacies of Republican demagogues and closed with an eloquent appeal to Pennsylvania for Pennsylvania's favorite son, to whom her confidence had been given in the past and by whom it had never been forfeited. It was 11:10 when Mr. Lagen closed and the court house was well-filled to the conclusion of his speech, the presence of some Democratic ladies lending inspiration to the occasion.

Altogether the meeting was one of the most successful and spirited of the campaign. It bodes well for the Lancaster Democracy. Let it be followed with a general turnout.

L. Steinmetz, A. J. Steinman, Jere. Mohler and others. They were listened to with interest and enthusiasm and the whole spirit of the meeting marked the interest of the Democracy of that section in the success of their national, state and local candidates. The Indiana result has only stirred them to fresh effort and renewed courage. Under the lead of the Messrs. Mohler, Leber, Winters, Urich, Hertz and other gallant Democrats, Ephrata and her neighbors make good fight for the good cause.

A committee of the ladies of the ward, with Mrs. McG. at their head, aided by Miss Ida Dyer and others, had purchased and were to present to the company a beautiful stand of colors. The presentation speech was made by John A. Coyle, esq. in a neat and eloquent address. It was received for the Veterans in a speech by Capt, J. M. Amweg. After the presentation the Veterans, proudly carrying their flag and headed by the drum corps, marched to the court house. Mr. Apgar's speech was suspended for a moment as they marched up the aisle, greeted with cheer after cheer. The colors were placed conspicuously in the front of the room, and Veterans occupied the space outside the bar and crowded in and about the jury
