BART ITEMS,

From our Regular Correspondent. In and around Georgetown the pork season is at hand and the ears of the early risers are saluted with the soothing squeak of some neighbor's porker as he protests against the keen edge of the head butcher's knife.

The most industrious men of our neighborhood are the blacksmiths. The smooth horses must be made rough to be able to stand on the smooth roads. Two shops in the village with three smiths, and three shops in the township outside of the village are unable to meet the demand

The gunners are still in search of the fat rabbit, and the report of fire arms is heard in all quarters. The most expert of the Bart sportsmen is a young man in this village, James Russell, jr. A few days een helwas informed that a rabbit was as sitting under his father's hedge. Arming himself with the most convenient weapon, -a revolver-James started out to do an extraordinary shooting. Stealing along as silently as a Sioux Indian, he at last caught sight of the long ears of cotton-tail, James felt his blood begin to course more rapidly, his eyes sparkled, and over his countenance spread an unmistakable grin of satisfaction. He knelt down in the road some eight feet from his game, steadied his trembling hand on his knee, cast his sparkling eye along the bright barrel of his revolver, pulled the trigger, and away sped the leaden messenger into the body of-not the rabbit-but an apple tree some twenty feet further on. Some unforescen occurrence had misplaced his ..im and he had missed. As soon as James could open his eyes he looked at the spot where his game was seen, and to his great joy discovered the long ears still unmovable. Again he braced his nerves and fired-into the ground some four feet from him-and when a second time the smoke cleared away, making it safe for this chivalrous youth to open his eyes, lo! the ears were still erect. Maddened to desperation, James straightened out his arm, grasped his revolver with more determination and fired three shote in quick succession, making the snow and dirt fly some twenty rods out in the field. As soon as the marksman recovered from his nervous stress he looked at the spot where he expected to see his prey stretched out in the last agonies of death. And there, as be-fore, were the extended nose, the sparkling eyes and long ears of the game. What to do James could not tell; his ammunition was spent; gunners were passing the spot at short intervals, and if he went for more cartridges some one might shoot the rabbit. After contemplating the long ears for a few minutes he thrust the reears for a few minutes he thrust the revolver into his pocket and concluded to steal quietly up to the undisturbed rear of the rabbit and by a dexterous plunge of color are unequaled. went home a sadder but wiser man. We noticed in the Inquirer of Lancas ter an article under the title of "He Slopeth"-purporting to be a transcript from the daily INTELLIGENCER, regarding a Doctor Kelly of Georgetown, Having resided in Georgetown and been familiar with all comers and goers for the past thirty years, we can truthfully say that no Dr. Kelley has either married a widow or had been for "one month's time" in our village. One Dr. Keeley marrieda widow Baney some two years ago in this place and is now residing with her, next door west of the writer of this article, and attending to his practice.

ODD FELLOWSHIP.

Exempiffication of the Unwritten Work, Yesterday afternoon and last evening James B. Nicholson, secretary of the Grand Lodge I. O. of O. F. of Pa., visited Lancaster and met members of the order in the Odd Fellows hall for the purpose of exemplifying the unwritten work of the order. There was a large attendance, not only of members of lodges and the encampment in this city, but also from other lodges in this and York counties. Some important emendatations have recently been made to the ritual of the order, one of the principal changes being the establishment of three degrees for subordinate lodges in lieu of the five degrees heretofore in use. There are also many important changes in the work of the encampment, which has beenimproved by the striking out of un necessary parts and beautified by the addition of others. The members present expressed themselves much pleased with CONGRESS.

Proceeding in the Senate. WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec.8.-Mr.Morgan introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution giving Congress authority to establish rules and regulations for certifying, transmitting, receiving and opening the votes of the electors and for counting such votes by the two houses and declaring the result. At one o'clock Senate went into execu tive session.

When the doors reopened, Mr. Randolph gave notice of an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the bill for relief of Fitz John Porter. It authorizes his reinstatement in the army with the rank of colonel on the retired list, without pay between the time of dismissal and restora-

The Senate adjourned until to-morrow.

In the House. After considerable discussion Mr. Wood moved to dispense with the morning hour, which motion was defeated by the Republicans.

The speaker then proceeded to call the committees, but no bills of a public character were reported. Mr. Cox (N. Y.) introduced a joint resolution, authorizing the president to place Gen. Grant on the retired list with rank and pay of general. Referred. The House resumed consideration of the Senate concurrent resolution relating to the electoral count.
