Needs Assistance.

John Cross, tinsmith, residing on North Mulberry street near Lemon, needs assistance. He is out of work, has a sick wife and a crippled daughter, and is out of money and provisions. Thirty days ago he received notice to quit the house he lives in for non-payment of rent. He is unable to pay, and liable to be set out on the street. The last quarter he carned, a few days ago, by making a colender, was spent in buying 15 cents worth of coal 5 cents worth of molasses and a 5 cent loaf of bread. It is not yet too late for warmhearted people to wish this poor family "a happy new year" in some things more substantial than words.

The Enlarged "Examiner."

Our good-looking neighbor the daily Examiner signalized the New Year by coming out in an enlarged form. It has lengthened its columns about two inches and has added an additional column to each page. We are glad to learn that the Examiner made these improvements to meet the demands of its advertising patrons. Barring its politics, the Examiner the year 1881 : is a first-rate paper, and deserving of the liberal support extended it by the business community.

A Good Picture.

We have been shown a crayon picture of Mrs. Reilly, who resides with Mr. B. J. McGrann, and of Mr. McGrann's little son Dicker, and of Mr. McGrann's little son Richard. The picture was enlarged from a photograph by J. F. Malone, a young artist whose studio is on Water street. The work has been very well done and reflects credit on Mr. Malone who has made several other fine portraits of well known citizens.
