Two Stories of the Famous Tom Ochiltrer, esq., of Texas, Chicago Times. Jem Mace, the celebrated English prizefighter now in Australia, once spent a amuse himself and his admirers by betmas, when she was young, as sets me to ting the drinks with them that they could him and he simply to ward off the blows. Tom Ochiltree, of Texas, who has gained more reputation from the fast running horse which was named after him, happened to be in New Orleans during the winter. Some of Ochiltree's friends told him of Mace's favorite bet. Ochiltree is a short, thick-set, powerfully built man. His hair is just red enough to indicate a flery temper. As soon as he was told of bet the crowd a champagne supper that he could hit Jem Mace. The bet, of course, was taken at once, and the whole party started out in search of Mace. at the bar in the act of taking a drink. Ochiltree stepped quietly beside him and hit him suddenly a stinging blow on the cheek. Mace quietly placed his glass on the bar, and scarcely moving his body, brought his right hand up and struck Ochiltree a fearful blow just under the ear. Ochiltree immediately fell to the floor in a heap. His friends rushed towards him, gathered him up and carried him to the nearest hotel. Doctors were sent for in a great hurry, and after two or three hours of hard work they succeeded in bringing Ochiltree back to this earth. He was con fined to his room in the hotel for three weeks, however. When he finally reap-peared he was forced to furnish the cham pagne supper. Some of his friends said to him: "What in the world made you such a blanked fool as to hit Jem Mace?"

"Why," said Ochiltree, "I thought I would just tap him without his knowledge and would then explain to him." Among the numerous good stories told at Ochiltree's expense is the following He had just arrived in New York one winter from Europe and was fairly resplen dent in a new overcoat and a very elegant sealskin cap. He was talking with some friends in a hotel lobby, and one of them expressd great admiration for Ochiltree's French countess. Such a dear little crea-

very handsome presents, which I will show you some time, and among them was this hat." One of his friends who had become quite interested in the hat by this time, took it off Ochiltree's head, and there, pasted in the top of it was a trade mark with "Knox. Hatter," printed on it. "Look here, Tom," cried his friend "how is this." Here is 'Knox, Hatter,' in the top of so he answered very promptly: "Why, just as we were coming into the dock, this morning, my cap blew off into the water, stood on the dock and saw the accident I took it up to Knox to have it repaired, Boston's Wealth. Boston, whatever may have been its adverse fortune, still remains an extremely wealthy city, as a list of its rich men and women shows. The real estate of the city is valued at $437,230,600. The person property is estimated at $201,858,600. There is a total increase of valuation over that of 1879 of $25,766,500. It is intimhall their custom from hold Sampson, and ated that there is a large amount of property which never comes under the observation of the assessors, or is exempt from taxation, or pays only a state tax. There are not many millionaires in vate fortunes of from $500,000 to $800,000. About $9,000,000 is raised by taxation. The rate is $15.20 per $1,000 There has been a marked advance in the value of real estate, and the outlook for the future is declared to be flattering. Boston has been greatly benefited by the rise in the Western railway securities during the last year; but the general tendency is to invest in home real estate.

A Railway on Ice. The London Pull Mall Gazette says : Ac ording to the Globe, an ice railway is projected between Cronstadt and Oranienbaum, principally for the transport of goods. The Baltic railway company will supply the neccessary rolling stock for this branch, which will, of course, communicate directly with the main line. A certain amount of traffic must be guaranteed before a beginning is made; but once this is done, and the ice has attained the requisite thickness, the work will begin by the laying of the rails, and the whole business will be finished within eight days. The time is not too short for the laying of an absolutely level line without either cuttings or embankments, and with a surface of exactly the same consistency throughout.
