ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA.

[The New York Evening Post is mistaken in its statement that the poem of Antony and Cleopatra" was written by General William A. Lytle "just before his death on the battlefield." This poem is to be found in Goggeshall's "Poets and Poetry of the West," published by Follett, Foster & Co., of Columbus, in 1860, and it had then gone the round of the newspapers. We can not fix the exact date of its composition, but it was probably written in 1857 or 1858.]

"I am dying, Egypt, dying!
Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast,
And the dark Plutonian shadows
Gather on the evening blast;
Let thine arm, O Queen, enfold me,
Hush thy sobs and bow thine ear,
Listen to the great heart secrets
Thou, and thou alone, must hear.

"Though my scarred and veteran legions
Bear their eagles high no more,
And my wrecked and scattered galleys
Strew dark Actium's fatal shore;
Though no glittering guard is surround me,
Prompt to do their master's will,
I must perish like a Roman,
Die the great Triumvir still.

"Let not Cæsar's servile minions
Mock the lion thus laid low;
'Twas no foeman's arm that felled him
'Twas his own that struck the blow—
His who pillowed on thy bosom,
Turned aside from glory's ray—
His who, drunk with thy caresses,
Madly threw a world away.

"Should the base plebeian rabble
Dare assail my name at Rome,
Where the noble spouse, Octavia,
Weeps within her widowed home,
Seek her; say the gods bear witness,
Altars, augurs, circling wings,
That her blood, with mine commingled,
Yet shall mount the throne of kings.

"And for thee, star-eyed Egyptian!
Glorious sorceress of the Nile,
Light the path of Stygian horrors
With the splendors of thy smile;
Give the Cæsar crowns and arches,
Let his brow the laurel twine—
I can scorn the Senate's triumphs,
Triumphing in love like thine.

"I am dying, Egypt, dying:
Hark! the insulting foeman's cry;
They are coming; quick, my falchion,
Let them front me ere I die,
Ah, no more amid the battle
Shall my heart exulting swell
Isis and Osiris guard thee—
Cleopatra, Rome, farewell!"

Raising Ducks for Profit.

It is a pleasing fact that the increase of the supply of ducks in our markets is very sensible in the last few years, and they are readily bought-up at good prices as a change from chickens and turkeys. Farmers tell us that they are as easily raised as chickens; indeed cost less for food and bring a better price, especially if the kinds are raised which look plump and appetizing on table. These are the Rouen, the Pekin and Aylesbury. They are of good size, and in their growth they consume almost anything and really keep the premises clear of many things that would prove an annoyance, such as insects, grubs, offal, wormy apples, &c. In October and November, meal or oat-meal mush, fed a little warm, mixed with sour or skimmed milk, will in about two weeks fatten them for market. From every farm from twenty-five to fifty pairs should be annually sent to market, the returns of which would do a full share in filling the family purse from the pleasanter and lighter branches of the farm.

Beet Sugar Making in Delaware.

Our readers know how often we have referred to the business of making sugar from beets, and on several occasions to the project in Delaware, which was started some two years ago under the auspices and pecuniary assistance of the Legislature. The scant success in 1879 in Delaware was owing, as it was asserted, and very reasonably too, to a short supply of beets in the first place, and the newness of the machinery and employees, in the second place. Last year those engaged in the operation announced that they would be well prepared to test the manufacture of the sugar from the beet thoroughly, and it was proclaimed successfully. Our readers also well know that we have not subscribed to the idea of this success—not because excellent sugar could not be made from the beet, for this was patent to the people of France and Germany; but that it could not be produced with profit, or rather without loss. This divergence, too, was not owing to the superiority of their beet or to their machinery or skill. It was owing to an equally important factor—the higher cost of labor here. Thus far it has been the only barrier, and we cannot conjecture when and wherefore this will be removed.

However, not to prejudge things or to anticipate results, we must expect to hear at a very early date, what the trial now about closing will produce in Delaware. The trial in Maine for 1880, also under state assistance, which only a year ago promised very favorably, has failed so utterly as to cause the manufactory to shut up and the machinery to be taken away. Let us hope—though it would seem to be hoping against hope—that we will hear pleasanter sounds from little Delaware.

What is Good Grape Culture?

A friend joyfully told us a few days ago of his anticipations in the grape way. He had bought a little place in the vicinity, and had made up his mind to have things right. His maxim was that what was worth doing at all was worth doing well, and he meant to do it. He had done it. He had dug out the dirt three feet into the clay, and had filled with rich compost, through which the roots might push their way in ease and comfort, and live on the fat of the land. He had spent considerable money in doing the job well. He intended to get only the best vines, and felt sure such an expenditure would result in magnificent grapes and plenty of them. He had done his work well.

It is strange that such a course as this should ever have been recommended by horticultural writers, but it is a fact that they have. Grapes are now so easily and cheaply grown—fruit often four and five cents a pound—that we had well-nigh forgotten that this was the standard advice of the books years ago. But our friend produced it in black and white from the pages which he had chosen as an authority, and then we knew how it was in the olden time.

Now, our readers at least would know that instead of such a proceeding as this being an evidence of doing it well for the grape, it is simply an act of folly. The grape root needs to be warm and dry, but this deep well in the clay encouraging the collection of water from all around it has just the contrary effect. The roots are damp and cool and not warm and dry.

Indeed, it is only of late years when peple have given up all this expensive foolery that grape-culture has become a tolerable success. Under the old plan we had failure after failure, and we came to believe only those varieties which were little removed from the wild fox or the frost grapes could be grown. But now we have the finer kinds getting quite common. As soon as we gave up this deep trenching nonsense, grape-culture—real grape-culture—took a fresh start, and this real culture consists in little more than planting a vine in good earth, of less depth than we would any ordinary tree, and see that it does not suffer for want of food. This is good grape-culture in a nutshell.

Can't Preach Good.

No man can do a good job of work, preach a good sermon, try a law suit well, doctor a patient, or write a good article when he feels miserable and dull, with sluggish brain and unsteady nerves, and none should make the attempt in such a condition when it can be so easily and cheaply removed by a little Hop Bitters. See "Truths" and "Proverbs," other column. jl5-2wd&w

Don't Get the Chills.

If you are subject to Ague you must be sure to keep your liver bowels and kidneys in good free condition. When so, you will be safe from all attacks. The remedy to use is Kidney-Wort. It is the best preventive of all malarial diseases that you can take. See advertisement in another column. jan24-1wd&w
