

Lancaster Intelligencer. FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 28, 1881.

Home of the Poets. Nine Silhouettes of the Times of American Authors.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich lives at Pookapog, a part of the town of Canton, in Massachusetts. Although a very charming place, Pookapog was never noted for its enterprise, and the location of a railroad some two or three miles distant has left it very much in the condition of Bailey's Four Corners, described by Mr. Aldrich in his story of "Miss Mabel's Son."

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. Her summer home in Gloucester is a two-story brown cottage, with doors and windows opening out upon a piazza facing the sea.

Miss Perry's home is in Providence, in little Rhode Island, though she was a Massachusetts girl, and is so much in Boston that many people have a bias that she lives in that city.

The dwelling is one of those grand, old-fashioned farm-houses, built to last as long as the island, and which folks had plenty of time to put together.

Mr. C. H. Thayer. The cottage at Appleton Island is perfectly plain. No bay-windows, balconies or other pretty appendages; no fanciful gables, or Gothic points; no newness of paint; no vines or trees.

Mr. J. F. Platt and Mrs. S. M. Platt. The Platt house itself is built at the center of many beautiful landscapes, the Ohio river being the commanding feature.

It is a street, said to be on Milton, midway between the Mt. Vernon and the Center; and the pleasant vista windows look away to blue hills which bound the horizon.

The home of J. T. Townbridge, the poet and story-teller, is a neat brown wooden house, two-and-a-half stories high, on Pleasant street, in Arlington, Mass.

Richard Henry Stoddard. The Stoddards live in New York, in an unpretending little house in East Fifteenth Street.

Can't Preach Good. No man can do a good job of work, preach a good sermon, try a law suit, doctor a patient, or write a good article, when he feels miserable and dull.
