Two Instances of Pare " Luck." Omaha Republican.

About four years ago a poor but industrious prospector in this county had the misiortune (or good fortune) to lose his horse. It was an old bay horse, and, like his master, was a wandering prospector, only that he prospected for grass, while the master prospected for quartz. This particular day the old bay wandered further than he was wont to do, probably because the bunch grass was few and fai between. At any rate the prospector desired to move camp, but could not do so without the assistance of his bay companion. He must needs find him. He was at last successful, and while returning with the truant he noticed the head of a mountain run sticking in the rocks. Stopping to examine it he saw rich-looking quartz scattered about, and following it up he hit upon what is now the noted Ramshorn mine-the longest and richest silver lodge that we know of. The district was named Bay Horse, as it should | have been, and is the richest silver district in the Saimon river country. On a mountain trail in California there used to be a big boulder which furnished a favorite resting place for tired footmen. Thousands of men had sat on that stone and rested their weary limbs. In fact, it was of so peculiar shape that it seemed to fit every one who tried it. With long usage it had wora as smooth as ivory, and was greasy with frequent contact with miners' clothing. One day an old prospector squatted himself upon this favorite resting stone and, while getting his wind he carelessly and unconsciously pecked away at boulder with his pick. A piece of rock flew off and revealed to him the surprising truth that he was sitting on a Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rich chunk of quartz. He at once prooeeded up the hill and found the ledge, and it was full of gold and brought him much weafth.
