BUSINESS SUITS

CLOTHING.

We have somewhere in the region of one hundred styles of business suits now ready to put on. A list of them would be the dullest of reading; and yet we want you to know substantially what they are like.

The lowest price is $8.50, and the highest is $20. They are all of wool. $8.50 is very little to get all-wool cloths, sponging, cutting, trimming, making, watching, handling, rent, book-keeping, advertising and selling, out of; but we manage to do it by dividing the costs among so many of you that one hardly feels his share at all; he pays for materials and work, and very little more.

We'll take another day for the rest; but you may as well come and see now as later. Seeing is better than reading.

A JOYOUS CELEBRATION.

WORSHIP, MUSIC AND FLOWERS.

General Observance of the Festival of the "Christ is risen." tell the tale O'er sea and plain, o'er hill and dale; For us He burst the bands of death, "Fear not its sting" to each He saith. "Christ is risen," from the tomb, He calls us all from sin and gloom; 'Let the gloriou-, cheering sound In earth's dark places loud resound.

"Christ is risen," say the flowers,
Peopling out from leafy bowers;
"Christ is risen," sing the trees,
Their young leaves flutt'ring in the breeze.

"Christ is risen," chirp the birds, All nature seems to breathe the words, And sweet fall those upon the ear That, " with the Saviour grows the year."

Notwithstanding the prolonged severity of the winter, Easter-day never broke more bright and beautiful over Lancaster city than yesterday morning, and the occasion was never in our local history made one of such general observance. Although winter has so long kept icy hold upon the earth, nature and the spring have asserted themselves, and springing vegetation and singing birds yesterday welcomed the anniver sary of the day when Christ burst the bonds of death and sealed the evidences of the holy Christian faith with His final triumph over the powers of darkness. Year after year the full significance of this victory and of its a lequate commemoration have become more and more vividly impressed upon the church, and while the Catholic and Episcopal churches, relieved from the tension of Lent, still give it the greatest importance in the church calendar, few denominations are unmindful of its special character. The custom of sending Easter cards, ex-changing gifts, and elaborate use of flowers in churches and homes, which has been steadily growing of late years in the larger cities, has fully taken possession of our community, and our bookstores, confectioneries and florists have trebled their usual business in this line the present sea sons. Thousands of Easter cards, many hundred-weight of confections, in quaint Easter devices, were sold here in the past week, and the florists were kept busy until late Saturday night filling the orders with special ceremony are appended. In the churches and on the streets, it were in town, and family reunions were the order of the day. Most of the young ladies and gentlemen of the city, who are away at school took advantage of short vacations to come home, and persons working out of town, who reside here, were very generally with their families yesterday.

EPISCOPAL. In the Parish of St. James. It being so widely known that in the old Episcopal church of St. James, the floral decorations and music of Easter are objects of long and careful preparation, the interest of persons outside of any church connection was probably more generally attracted to this church than any other yesterday morning, and before the regular hour for the opening of the services, every seat in the sanctuary was taken. As usual the decorations in the chancel were elaborate and tasteful. The silken hangings and sacred banners used on high festal occasions adorned the walls. Most conspicuous among the floral adornments was the Easter gift of Richard Jenkins, esq., of Camden, N. J., to the memory of his mother. It was placed to the right of the chancel upon the stone baptismal font, which is a perma-nent Jenkins memorial. Broad ferns cov-ered the top and sides of the font, and upon them was a bank of red rose buds. out of which arose a cross about four feet high, the arms of which were of white carnations and the most delicate white rosebuds. In the centre of the cross on a red ground, fringed with lilies of the valley, was wrought the sacred monogram, the whole producing a striking effect. On the pulpit was another beautiful cross, the McMurdy memorial, offered by Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Eshleman. Rich bouquets of white rosebuds, carnations, callas and lilies of the valley and a profusion of cut flowers filled the chancel, and their rich The execution of the musical programme by the male choir, whose careful training

The sermon in the morning was on the theme "Christ is risen and become the first fruits of them that slept." To day and to-morrow the communion is administered in St. James and on next Sunday at 5 p. m. there will be Easter service and an Easter sermon for the Sunday school flowers and rose buds, being at once a cross, crown and anchor. Another white cross stood in the chancel and on either side of it numerous bouquets and hangings of smilax. In the morning Mr. Barker preached an Easter sermon from

St. Luke xxiv., 5, and in the evening he the reading by the pastor, Rev. J. Max. preached from St. John vi., 47. In the Hark, of the narrative of that first Easter conclusion of his remarks he referred feelingly to his long residence in the parish and the community, and to his pleasant sponsive reading of the "Te Deum Laurelations with both. He spoke with deep damus." At the half past ten o'clock gratitude of the treatment he had received and his profound regret at the sundering of many happy ties. He invoked the blessing of God on the parish and upon the whole community, and prayed that all might enter into the "life everlasting" than at the earnest devoktors. The place of the scribed Easter litany took the place of the one customarily used. Rev. Hark's sermon was characterized by the eloquence, earnestness and scholarship which mark which he had made the theme of his first and last discourse. After the service many members of the parish and personal friends went forward and bade the rector farewell. The music at both services was excel-lent. In the morning Rev. Barker baptized thirteen persons, a total of fifteen this Easter season. During his term as rector he has baptized 545 persons, buried 298, and assisted at the funerals of half as many more, married 150 couples and confirmed 286 individuals.

Mr. Barker goes from here to reside in Germantown and will engage in no active ministerial work for six months or a year, when he can only accept a call to serve a smaller parish than that which he leaves, so strengthened and enlarged under his ministrations. His people greatly deplore their loss in his departure and are casting about for a successor. A strong feeling prevails towards a recall to the parish of its former rector, Rev. Dr. E. W. Appleton, now of Chelton Hills, Pa.

CATHOLIC.

St. Mary's Church. In St. Mary's, as in the other Catholic churches of the city, the sombre purple coverings of the altars, pictures and images have been replaced by the garments of praise and joyousness. The sanctuary has been converted into a spectacle captivating the eye and quite charming the beholder's sense of the beautiful. Bouquets and which had almost exhausted their spacious other devices adorn the altar in abundance, and the shrines at each side display The spring fashious also are generally similar ornamentation. The flowers are held in check for exhibition on Easter Sun- all of the rarest and costliest, and whilst day, though the tardy approach of warm there is not much opportunity for variety weather somewhat abated the usual distinction here, the evidence of good taste in the formation of the bouquets and other designs and in their general arrangement is not lacking. B. Altick and of Miss Lizzie Strobel, the accomplished organist, heard with renewed pleasure the fine rendition given to this celebrated and difficult composition. In every detail it showed careful preparation and patient and successful efforts to master the difficult parts in which the work is so prolific. The chorus effects were uniformly full, accurate and satisfying, while too much praise cannot be awarded to Miss Della Doyle's sweet soprano, Miss Edith Johnston's rich and powerful contralto, and Mr. Altick's excellent tenor, heard to such fine effect in the many beautiful solos, duets and trios of the mass. Of Miss Strobel's admirable work at the organ words of praise would be superfluous; suffice it to say it was marked by the artistic finish that has given this young lady such high rank among our local musicians.

At 10 o'clock high mass was served by the pastor, Rev. Father Grote-myer and Dochauer's grand mass was sung by the choir, Harry Decker having charge of the organ. Kapp's arrangement of the hymn "Haec Dies" was sung by Miss Amelia Diehl, whose fine soprano voice was much admired. The usual vesper services were held in the afternoon. MORAVIAN. Beautiful and Impressive Observance.

The floral decoration of this church is of the same elaborate and tasteful character that in past years has distinguished its observance of the Easter festival. The pulpit platform has been converted in a perfect garden of beauty, the profusion of rare and elegant flowers being devoid of obstrusiveness or ostentation by reason of the admirable taste displayed in their arrangement. The central object is a large cross of evergreen, entwined with roses and other bright-colored flowers, occupying the foreground. Flanking it on both

From a base of growing plants and a profusion of cut flowers arose an exception of cut flowers arose an exception of the collection including also in addition to a large number of magnificent specimens of that splendid flower, roses fuch and rare, and geraniums, heliotrope, fuch sias, with a plentiful sprinkling of Nile lilies, and many smaller cut and pulpit are neatly set off with smilax, the effect withal being artistic in the extreme and strikingly heaptiful especially when quisite device wrought in choice white and strikingly beautiful, especially when viwed from the choir gallery.

The first service was held at 6 o'clock in the morning, the attendance being large and the exercises marked with singular beauty and solemnity. The Easter morning liturgy was said, followed by day nearly nineteen hundred years ago. The service was concluded by the reservice the congregation was even larger than at the earlier devotions. The preearnestness and scholarship which mark churches. Too much credit cannot be all his pulpit utterances, the theme being appropriate to the day, the text from St. John's narrative of the resurrection, and its masterly treatment evolving food for olemn thought and the instruction and edification of his attentive hearers. The evening service was of special and peculiar in:erest. The church was crowded, every inch of available seating space was occupied, chair and benches were brought in to accommodate the throng, and many persons were turned away, unable 'to secure admission. The exercises began with the entrance of the children of the Sunday school from the southern doors on each side of the pulpit platform. They proceeded down the main aisle, and took front seats in the main body of the church. Responsive scriptural reading appropriate to the occasion by the boys and girls comprised the first portion of the exercises, interpersed with singing. At intervals little children (entered from the Sunday school bearing magnificent floral emblems which were added to the pulpit decoration. The first was a cross and crown which was placed on top of the large cross already described; afterwards a beau tiful anchor was brought in and placed at the foot of the cross; and subsequently a large heart composed of crimson flowers was placed alongside of it. These additions, as may be supposed, greatly enhanced the flue effect of the or-namentation. A brief and felicitous ad-dress by Mr. Hark accompanied his

The Moravians concluded their solemn Passion week services on Saturday night by a love feast in the church which was largely attended.

LUTHERAN. In Old Mother Triulty. . No sermon was delivered in the morn ing at the Trinity Lutheran church, Duke street. The scriptural lessons were read by Rev. Mr. Reed, of Christ church, on West King street. Dr. Greenwald spoke for a few moments of the present religious occasion, of the solemuities of the season of Lent, and of the transition of the soul into the happy, joyous Easter time. The reverend gentleman also spoke of the peculiar importance of the communion at the present period, saying that it was a eucharist of a joyful commemoration. Af-ter these remarks holy communion was administered to a large number of communicants, Dr. Greenwald and Mr. Reed officiating. The altar was very prettily decorated with festoons of ivy, and a number of beautiful flowers.

At the Grace Lutheran church, North Queen street, communion was observed in the morning, and at the children's services in the afternoon the rite of infant baptism was administered. In the evening the the pastor, Rev. Robinson, preached, his pastor, Rev. Charles Elvin Houpt, preached a very interesting sermon from upon the utter necessity of a full reliance discourse at the ten o'clock mass, and in upon God, His omniscience, and the free and ample salvation of those who seek and find the truth; the sermon being all through a fervent and deeply touching appeal to a'l to seek salvation and enjoy the glories of Christianity. The floral decorations of the church were tasteful, conspicuous among which were a vase of beautiful lilies, a heart and anchor of pretty flowers suspended and smilax surmounting a pillar in the chancel, and floral cross and bouquets on the altar. During the morning service the choir, under the lead of Mr. J. B. Kevinski, rendered a grand with orchestral accompaniment by Keffer's orchestra. The duet in the piece was sung by Mrs. A. A. There were no services at Christ Lutheran church yesterday morning. The Sunday school in the afternoon was very largely attended, and the church was very prettily decorated with flowers-a large semi-circular wire frame in front of the pulpit being filled with rare plants, and two large and beautiful bignonias being placed on the posts of either end of the pulpit. In the evening the church was greatly crowded. The choir sang the anthem "Praise the Lord," as arranged by Bissell, and the pastor, Rev. Reed, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion from Revelations i., 18, after which the communion was administered to 87 communicants, including those confirmed on Good Friday. St. John's Lutheran.

There was no formal decoration of St. John's church, but there was one very pretty floral piece on the altar, represent. ng Faith, Hope and Charity; it consisted present receiving a bountiful supply of of the cross, the anchor and the heart, and was presented by several ladies of the congregation. There was no special Easter services, but Rev. Sylvanus Stall, the pastor, preached a sermon on the resurrection in the forenoon. There was no evening service. On Sunday next this church celebrates the communion.

There were no decorations in Zion or st. Stephen's Lutheran churches. Rev. At the First Church.

The First Reformed, Rev. J. A. Peters, pastor, was very fully attended and very tastefully decorated with living flowers of choice varieties, callas, geraniums, smilax and bignonias being especially conspicuous. The altar, pulpit and baptisimal font, indeed the entire chancel, was ornamented. On each side of the pulpit stood vases of growing ferns, while upon the platform were pots of flowers—on the one side calla lilies and on the other geraniums, bignonias, etc.—arranged in the form of pyramids. Immediately in front of the pulpit, and upon the communion table, stood a small marble cross, at whose base was heaped a profusion of choice cut flowers, mostly rosebuds. Within the chancel rail were several stands on which were placed a number of handsomely arranged bouquets, while from the altar gracefully hung the twining smilax. The decorations as a whole were very elaborate and were not excelled by any of her sister given to the ladies of this church, especially Miss Acnie Zahm and Mrs. E. J. Zahm who superintended the decorations that added so much in making Eastertide 1881, a grand success. The first service of the day was held at 6 a. m. ; the prescribed Easter service was read, and the singing, being of a very fine order, was rendered by a choir of fourteen boys. At the 101 o'clock service Rev. Peters did not preach a sermon, but simply made a few remarks relating to the great event celebrated and its influence upon the Christian world. The sacrament of communion was administered and very largely attended The singing at this service was unusually fine, and the anthem, "Christ our Passover"—the solo by Miss Alice Troyer and the trio by Miss Laura Locher and Messrs. Stamm and Prezinger-are worthy of special praise. In the evening the regular service was held; the sermon was based on the theme of Christ's resurrection and the singing, especially the anthem solo, "O God of My Salvation," by Miss Troyer, was very finely rendered.

St. Paul's. This church observed to some extent the Easter festival. The services both morning and evening, especially the sermons of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Shumaker, were based on the theme of Christ's resurrection. The decorations, though limited, were very beautiful. On both sides of the pulpit were placed handsome bouquets, while the communion table was covered with pots of egg, and happily rounded out the growing plants arranged in three special egg, and happily rounded out the interesting services. It is proposed to have the floral decorations here photopyramid. The services were M. Luke's.

St. Luke's Reformed, Rev. W. F. Lichliter, pastor, was very tastefully decorated with flowers. There was Easter service at 6 o'clock, a. m ; communion at 10:30 a. m.; Sunday-school at 2:30, and preaching on the resurrection at 7:30 p. m. The attendance was large.

Sr. John's (German). At the morning service, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Dahlman preached a sermon on the resurrection, after which the communion was administered, the pastor prefacing the solemn sacrament by a pertinent address. It is usual in this church to administer the first communion to the ciass of catechumens on Easter Sunday, but owing to a change of pastors before the course of lectures to them had been completed this service was postponed this year until Whitsuntide. In the evening Kev. Dahlman con tinued his sermon on the resurrection. There were no floral decorations, the custom in this church being to decorate only on Christmas.

METHODIST.

No Flowers Displayed. In the Presbyterian church of this city there were no flowers, although on frequent occasions a nosegay has decorated its communion table. Rev. Dr. Mitchell preached on the theme of the season, but explained that owing to his engagements at presbytery and at a funeral in Philadelphia during the week he was unable to prepare the special Easter discourse which he had expected to deliver. In the memorial chapel there were no floral decorations. Rev. J. C. Hume preached from 1 Corinthians, xv., 21.

Easter at the Rockland Undenominational Sunday-School.

The resurrection of Christ was appropriately commemorated at Rockland Sunday school yesterday afternoon Long before the hour of opening the school, the room was filled with children and friends of the school, all anxious to witness and take part in the services of the hour Evergreens, flags and mottoes de-corated the room. At 2 o'clock the beautiful hymn "Rejoice and be glad," was sang by the school, Mr. Theo: dore Bowman playing the accompaniment upon the cornet, which was greatly enjoyed by the children. The 16th chapter of St. Mark was read by the superintendent, A. C. Leonard, followed by prayer, after which a hymn was sung by the audience; recitations, songs, etc.. by the children and others followed. The Beatitudes and Lord's Prayer were repeated in unison; "Rescue the Perishing" was sung, after which there was a general distribution of presents to the little folks, every child colored eggs. Special presents of book and umbrellas and pocket-knives were given to fifteen children who have been present at school every Sunday for three months, many having been present every Sunday during the last three years. The exercises closed with singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

At Mount Joy.

The Presbyterian church in Mount Joy observed the festival with a completeness that had not previously marked this conuncommon interest, the pulpit being at-and other growing and cut flowers. The sermon by Rev. W. C. Whitcomb, the new pastor, was suitable to the occasion and very impressive. In the occasion the control of the very impressive. In the evening the church was densely crowded. Vincent's beautiful Easter service was rendered by the young people of the congregation, the service consisting of Scriptural passages, etc., pertaining to the history of the resurrection, interspersed with music. Rev. Whitcomb deserves especial praise for the carnestness with which he labored to make this celebration a success, and his effects to impress the service of the and his efforts to improve the matter of the church in the organization class of young folks for the purpose standy were manifest in the really excellent character
