LINENS!

We have received new linens from Belfast, Barnsley, Duntermline, Lisle, Brussels, Ghent, Silesia, Bohemia. We have ransacked all Europe for linens, and have a variety of both fabric and finish that could not be gathered in the American market. The goods are fresh, too. That's important; for linens bought in New York may be several years old, and you know starched linens do not improve by age. The dressings used by the manufacturers is not so destructive as starch; but it does injure the fabric in time. We have another advantage in prices. We gain the importer's profit.

The result is we get the best linens in the world, in the best possible condition, and for the least money anybody can get them for. We can give you the importers' profit, and still have enough left.

Now it is proper for to consider that somebody else may be doing the same thing, and afford the very same advantages. So, if you please, whatever you wish to buy get samples of it from us and from others, and compare. Or buy our goods, if you like; and if you can do as well elsewhere, bring

GARFIELD'S DEVIOUS WAYS. GOING TO CHICAGO TO EFFECT HIS OWN NOMINATION FOR PRESIDENT.

Lancaster Intelligencer.

An Alleged Understanding With Pennsylvania Independents—Sherman Deceived and Wharon Barker Sorely Disappointed.

Philadelphia Record. Early in 1880 an association of Pennsylment, was formed, one of the chief objects of which was to secure the defeat of Grant brought out at the Covert Co and Blaine at Chicago. The master spirits of this association where Wharton Barker and Wayne MacVeagh. To effect their purposes it was thought advisable to be prepared with a candidate or candi-dates of their own, who should be brought forward at the proper time. It was finally decided that either Garfield or Edmunds should be their choice. This fact was communicated to Garfield some time in the spring of 1880, and it was soon ascerfixed upon by the Barker-MacVeagh asso-ciation, and he went on to Philadelphia some weeks before the Chicago convention to ascertain whether he himself could not secure the assistance of the Independ-ent Republican element. While in Philadelphia, he went down the river with a few friends in a revenue cutter. Among those on board was Wharton Barker's special praise. father. In conversation with the latter, Sherman's candidacy was mentioned, and Sherman intimated that he would be glad of the support of the Independent Republican association. Mr. Barker thereupon frankly told him that the association had selected Garfield as their first choice. Sherman expressed surprise at that anconneement. He at once returned to Washington, and sets his wits to work to thwart this Garfield movement, and for the purpose of heading him off, he and his friends urged Garfield to go to Chicago at the head of the Ohio delegation to repre-sent his (Sherman's) candidacy. Garfield at once informed his Philadelphia friends of Sherman's wishes, whereupon Wharton Barker came to Washington to consult and advise Garfield. He asked Garfield whether it would not be a good plan for him to accept Sherman's commission to Chicago and thus be in a position, in case the contingency should arise, to effect his own nomination. Garfield's reply was,

"I will try it." It was a matter of comjust before starting for Chicago an intimate friend, a member of the House of Representatives, inquired of Gartield:

"Whom are you going to nominate at "Well, I think I have as good a chance as any of them," replied Garfield. Garfield's remarkable speech in nomi-nating Sherman, and which it was generally conceded had much to do with securing his own nomination, and the general facts connected with the proceedings of the convention are well known. During the campaign Wharton Barker had assurances from Garfield that it was his intention to appoint him secretary of the treasury. These assurances are uncounty cases: In Mullin's appeal, the court derstood to have been made both orally and by letter. So confident was Barker that he met the president-elect en route to Washington at some point in Ohio and rode with him as far as Harrisburg. When he reached Philadelphia Mr. Barker was court; motion refused." entirely satisfied that he would be made secretary of the treasury, and at the request of the editor of a Philadelphia discretion of the court below on a quesnewspaper, he prepared a brief sketch of tion of this character, unless there appears his life, which was put in type and ready very palpable abuse of it. We cannot to be used when the cabinet was announced. On the night before the cabinet nominations were sent to the Senate Mr. sented by one of the administrators. One Barker was informed by the president that | reason given was that the other adminisa recast of the cabinet was necessary, and would involve the appointment of some out better knowledge of all the circumone from the Northwest for the position stances known to the court below and of secretary of the treasury. The recast was made, and Barker was left out. Since these occurrences, and particularly in view of the appointment of MacVeagh, his associate in the original Garfield movement, Mr. Barker has learned that the president had decided upon MacVeagh's appointment as Pennsylvania's representative in the cabinet soon after the November elections. ----DR. HIGBER AT LOCK HAVEN.

He Intends to Make the School Laws More

The preparations for representing the "Œdipus Tyrannus" of Sophocles in the Sanders theatre, at Cambridge, are now nearly completed. The performance of ancient classical dramas in the original tongue is not entirely unknown to this period—though nearly to this country—and the old English public school custom of giving a comedy of Plantus or Terence at Christmas is even yet maintained at Westminister; but a produc-Early in 1880 an association of Pennsylvania Republicans, mostly belonging to what is known as the Independent element was formed one of the shief chiests. The "Antigone" of brought out at the Covent Garden theatre during the winter of 1844-5, with Mendels-sohn's music; and not long after was re-peated, under Mr. Murray's management, at Edinburgh, the exquisite Miss Helen Faucit appearing as the heroine and Mr. Glover as Creon. Many of our readers will recall DeQuincey's "Antigone" essay, which was evoked by this performance. The experiment of giving the "Agamemnon" of Æschylus in the original language was tried, however, in the tained that "Barkis was willing."

Meanwhile John Sherman got wind of the Philadelphia movement, though at first he was not aware of the candidate truly Grecian simplicity in details—very simple music in the Gregorian mode being composed for the choruses. This experi ment met with success, and the performance was subsequently repeated at Edinburgh and at various places in Englandin St. George's hall, London, among others—the students who impersonated Clytemnestra and Cassandra receiving The idea of giving a Greek tragedy in Greek at Harvard has been many times mooted by Prof. W. W. Goodwin and a performance of the "Antigone," with Mendelssohn's music, was seriously pro-posed for the dedication of the Sanders theatre several years ago. The production of the "Œdipus" grew almost imme-diately out of a social talk between several Wachusett last summer, in which Mr. Allen, the professor of classical philosopy at Harvard, and Mr. J. W. White, assistant professor of Greek at Har-vard, took the chief part, and it may be said, it was then definitely decided to bring out "Œdipus," which Professor White had edited, if the thing were found to be feasible. In conversation not long after with Mr. Geo. Riddle, Professor White found that the former gentleman had become much interested in the character of Orestes in Euripides' tragedy of the same name, and a suggestion from the professor sufficed to which followed, last autumn, it was offi cially determined to produce the tragedy. It is but fair to say that, notwithstanding the general preliminary talk on the subject, the success of the "Agamemnon" at Oxford was probably the immediate occasion of the present attempt at Har-

Judgment affirmed. In Long's appeal the decree was affirmed and appeal dismissed at the cost of the appellants.

A Terrible Catastrophe.

Man, His Children and Sister Drowned. A crowd of German excursionists from Columbus, Newark, and other points, paid a visit on Sunday to Licking Lake. a pleasure place fourteen miles north of Lancaster, Ohio. Owing to the roughness

About three o'clock Stowe got into a boat and rowed across to the Shell house, returning safely. Being emboldenwave the water dashed over them. Notwithstanding this alarming fact the man, in his foolhardiness, continued to push out into the lake, and had reached a distance of probably three hundred yards from the shore when the importunities of the women induced him to make an effort to

He bent his oars and had partly turned the boat when a huge wave struck it broadside and upset it. The man, his sister and two of the children disappeared and were almost instantly drowned, but Irs. Stowe, who is a very large woman, was kept up by her clothing long enough to be reached by a couple of men in a boat who fortunately happened to be near, and was rescued. The scene that followed among the remainder of the party on the shore was heartrending. Men, women and children ran along the beach shouting and crying until strangers reached them and crying until strangers reached them and they were quieted. A party of Lancaster men procured boats and grappling hooks immediately and worked for hours in a vain endeavor to recover the bodies. The sufferings of Mrs. Stowe when she realized the terrible calamity that had overtaken her family, were pitiful indeed, and she was finally carried unconscious into the hotel. The parties were all Germans and had been drinking beer, but none of them were intoxicated.

The Republican Campaign.

Exchanging the Compliments of the Season Mr. Warfel said : "Capt. McMellen is a wonderful organizer. He has more political ability and sagacity than any man in the county, and if he could only resist the tendency to strike a head he does not like, could forgive a wrong and, in fact, use more policy he would be the greatest politi-ian in the county."

Sensenig's Virtue. Examiner says Sensenig said so. On Sunday night Mart Sensenig, who was then a clerk in the Recorder's office, came to me at the Examiner office and took me to one side. He said Johnson had sent him and that he was authorized to offer $4,000 to have me count High in. Harvard and Yale professors at Mount I told Jack, Brown and Strine. I told Mart I could'nt do it.

An Abandoned Idea.

Some time ago they arranged with a famous Philadelphia artist, of the shorthand lightning school of caricaturists, to get them up what John Mentzen ealls a "gardune."
