DEMOCRACY IN SCHOOL.

BY FRANK WILLIAMS LEACH. O the rich millionaire, with his gold! O the pauper, with his penniless purse! Tho' the one shall be sought and caressed, And the other one spared with a curse, Tho' the one shall have cheers on life's highway, And the other one weeps in life's by-way; Tho' the one hath estate, nor the other a shilling, Yet life is death's propitry—death, life's fulfilling.

SECRET.

They enter the grave, of each other the equal, O the king, with his sceptre and crown! O the slave, with his shackles and thong; Tho' the one shall be sought and caressed, And the other one spared with a curse, Tho' the one shall have cheers on life's highway, And the other one weeps in life's by-way; Tho' the one hath estate, nor the other a shilling, Yet life is death's propitry—death, life's fulfilling.

MORAL.

With savant and dullard death hath the same quarrel, —North American.

OUR BOYS.

What is hope? A smiling rainbow Children follow through the wet; 'Tis not here—still yonder, yonder; Never arch'd upon its feet. What is life? A thawing ice-berd On a sea with sunny shore; Gay we sail, it melts beneath us; We are sunk and soon no more. What is man? A foolish baby; Vainly strives, and fights, and frets; Demanding all, deserving nothing, One small grave is what he gets. —THOMAS CARVILLE.

FARMER AND GARDENER.

ADVISE FROM THE GERMANTOWN TELEGRAPH.

Commissioner Le Duc's Tea. The tests which certain sample products of tea grown in the South under the auspices of the commissioner of agriculture, which have been pronounced "excellent" by the appointed tasters, may have been really something that could be sold to many consumers if the price were fixed at a very moderate figure; but in connection with testing or tasting, not a word is said as to whether it could be produced profitably at a price that tea grown elsewhere of similar quality now sells for in the market. This, when all is said, must be the actual, controlling point, what can be done in the United States as a competing tea grower.

Improving the Lima Bean. Some people complain that of all the garden products and the vast improvements that have been made in nearly all of them, the Lima bean is now about where it was fifty years ago. And it is nearly so. Latterly there has been some increase in the size of the pod and the bean, and that is all. But then may not be said at the same time that the excellence of the bean is such that there is no room for improvement in the quality, and it is true that it still requires the big long pole, which has to be planted with about the solidity of an ordinary fence-post; but when that is said we may conclude that all is said that can be against it. For ourselves, we are only too glad that we have this bean as it is vouchsafed to us, and we doubt if we shall ever see it improved in any way, except in size, and it is questionable whether that would be an advantage at all. If the pole could be dispensed with and a trellis like that of the tomato be substituted, it would be a decided advantage; but it is a natural climber, and climb it probably will to the end of its days. So be it.

Pruning Tomatoes. Many persons find much profit in pinching back the branches of the tomatoes; and it is a good practice when judiciously done. It may be overdone, however, and injury result. In the first place it is noise to attempt it after the flowers have fallen. The idea is to force the nourishment into the fruit at the earliest start; for it is at that time that the future fate of the fruit is cast. A few leaves beyond the fruit, is an advantage. It is not the growth that is to be checked. And then much damage is done by taking off the leaves as well as the fruit. The tomato plant needs all the leaves it can get. It is only the branches that are to be checked in their growth. No one who has not tried it can have any idea of how valuable the leaves are to the tomato-plant. One may for experiment take off most of the leaves of a plant, and he will find the flavor insipid, and every way poor. Of course it is the peculiar acidity of the tomato that gives it so much value. All of us; but the acid from a tomato that has ripened on an insufficient amount of foliage, is disagreeable to most tastes. The same principles has been found to work in managing grapevines. The man who judiciously pinches back the branches does well; but he who strips off the foliage to "let in the sun and the air," generally finds that he has made a bad mess of it.

Tomatoes on Stakes. A friend tells me that he was pestered beyond measure by the potato beetles last year. They not only fed on his potatoes, but egg plants and tomatoes suffered as well. He had read that tomatoes would do well on stakes, and he found that the plants so treated escape the ravages of the beetle, while those on the ground were almost devoured. The lower branches of the tomatoes on stakes were eaten, but all above a foot were untouched. The idea is that the beetle is somewhat lazily inclined, at least when climbing has to be done. The hint is a valuable one. If this is a mere accident, but a genuine protection against the beetle, it will be a new argument for stakes, although those existing are good enough. There is no doubt that the plants are more productive on stakes or trellises than when grown in any other way; and then the influence of the sun all around alike is favorable to a thorough ripening of the fruit, improving the flavor considerably, especially in the estimation of those who like to eat tomatoes raw.

It may be repeated that the stakes for tomatoes must be very stout and strong, as the weight of fruit requires something substantial to rest on; and if the stakes can have arms or knots to help sustain the branches, it will be better than depending on twine alone. The stakes must be planted in the ground firmly before the plants are set. These plants are easily kept in position by a light tying until the fruit comes, then the weight requires good judgment to secure them well.

Rhubarb Disease. These ailments follow from torpid liver and constive bowels; the skin, bowels and kidneys falling in their proper work, an acrid poison is formed in the blood, which is the source of these acute diseases. Kinney-Town produces healthy action of all secretive organs, and throws off the rheumatic poison. Equally efficient in Liquid or Dry form. —Inter-Ocean, my29-18d&w

It is a remarkable fact that Thomas' Eucalypti Oil is as good for internal as external use. For diseases of the lungs and throat, and for rheumatism, neuralgia, crick in the back, wounds and sores, it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand. MEDICAL.

REIGART'S OLD WINE STORE.

Brandy as a Medicine.

The following article was voluntarily sent to Mr. H. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a distinguished physician of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice. It is recommended to the attention of those afflicted with Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE.

This much abused Alcoholic Stimulant has never been introduced as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the most distressing diseases which afflict their annual thousands of victims.

With a purely philanthropic motive we present to the public a Brandy of such quality and purity as to be a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than

Brandy.

The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly,

A Sovereign Remedy

for all their ills and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is

REIGART'S OLD BRANDY.

Sold by our enterprising young friend, H. E. Slaymaker, this Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preference over all other Brandyes.

It is a Brandy with many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the bottles that are yearly thrown away on various hospitals, dyspepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than

Brandy.

DEPT. GOODS.

LINENS. LINENS. We have received new linens from Belfast, Barnsley, Dunfermline, Lisle, Brussels, Ghent, Silesia, Bohemia. We have ransacked all Europe for linens, and have a variety of both fabric and finish that could not be gathered in the American market. The goods are fresh, too. That's important; for linens bought in New York may be several years-old, and you know starched linens do not improve by age. The dressings used by the manufacturers is not so destructive as starch; but it does injure the fabric in time. We have another advantage in prices. We gain the importer's profit.

The result is we get the best linens in the world, in the best possible condition, and for the least money anybody can get them for. We can give you the importer's profit, and still have enough left.

Now it is proper for to consider that somebody else may be doing the same thing, and afford the very same advantages. So, if you please, whatever you wish to buy get samples of it from us and from others, and compare.

Or buy our goods, if you like; and if you can do as well elsewhere, bring ours back. This is rather a brave challenge, for, you know nobody wants remnants.

The linens now in are sheeting, pillow, bolster and shirting linens, towels, toweling, doilies, napkins, table cloths and table linens.
