'And mark you the consistency: A man may not speak to his wife on these grounds, a lady to her brother, a gentle-man to two ladies old enough to be his grandmothers; but any insignificant member of the faculty whom strangers do not know from Adam, upon whose brow no look of superior intelligence sits to distinguish him from the common herd, can sit for hours talking to any lady students. Certainly, if a member of the faculty can do this and the school not fall into disrepute, why shail not a man walk with his own sister on these grounds.

"The author writes not as one desirous of spending his time with the ladies on these grounds. He has no fond dove with whom he wishes to coo on this yard; but he desires to see common sense and com mon decency exercised at this school; he wishes to see an institution fostered and supported by the public conducted in the interest of the teachers whose welfare it pretends to seek; and he desires to see men and women treated as such and not as children.

The Critic's Romarks. In noticing this paper Mr. Hipple, the critic, who has been suspended, spoke as follows:

"Just here we take the opportunity to express our thoughts pertaining to 'Auto-craev of Millersville.' The authority is particularly vigorous this term in their efforts to maintain order, and keep the students in the paths of rectifude, and they are to be commended for their zeal but probably a little more discretion would be more commendable. Unfortunately for the welfare and tranquility for both students and management, there has been too much government, and when that rises superior, look out for breakers, no matter if in the old log school house or in the modern structure with its carpeted aisles and imposing exterior. Our brief experience has taught us this. Here the two are antagonistic, and the result may be more than dissatisfaction. Affairs have reached a point to-night making it painfully apparent. The principal justi-fied himself by the proposition that the student, not being acquainted with the 'ins and outs' of the institution, is therefore not capable to judge of the propriety of the enforcement of the rules. The student is expected to follow his judgment of school government, which we are told is infallible. That is all right so far that this same judgment has led to rash complain. The critic can get along all right under the system of management What he objects to is the stand taken and the efforts put forth to suppress free speech. He who is in the right ean invariably stand the assaults of the wrong, 'For truth is mighty and must prevail.' An autocrat may attempt to and under different governments on the eastern continent. But here in the home of the free such efforts conflict with our noblest and highest principle which Wash ington fought for and Lincoln made immortal. Here is our motto; 'If a free thought seek expression, speak it nobly, speak it well.' By these our sentiments we'll stand, and if we must fall, we'll fall supporting them. "

Immediately after chapel exercises this morning quite a number of students called in the principal's office to be excused from school. Their request was refused and they were told to meet in the chapel room at 11:15. To them Dr. Brooks read a resolution which was in substance as follows: "That any student acting with or in any way encouraging students to leave, or leaving with them, will be subject to the penalty of suspension."

The students complain that this is in derogation of the previous announcement that anybody dissatisfied with the school management could leave, and they complain that the refusal to grant them honorable dismissal and certificate of good character prevents them from entering similar institutions.

The faculty, on the other hand, maintain that they deny honorable dismissal to none except those who show themselves to be banded together in a conspiracy to break down wise and justifiable regulations of school order, and that they are amply justified in enforcing these.

A TRUE STORY.

Two Gentlemen From Perry : Or. The Old Man Who Has Bought His Last Prize Package. Yesterday John Killian, an aged countryman, was standing in front of the Leopard hotel with his hands in his pockets, gazing at the boys and girls who were crowding the streets, when he was accosted by a young man. They talked for a short time and finally the young man told Mr. Killian that he wanted to engage a person to sell goods by sample, and asked him whether he would not like the job. Killian said that he might do it and the young man then invited him to go upstairs and look at the samples. went up-stairs, and when they arrived at the room where the samples were to have been Killian found a young man seated at a table, on which there was a box full of envelopes. He was engaged in filling up other envelopes with papers, &c., and the nice young man said they were samples. After they were in the room a short time a third man came in and asked whether that was the place to buy envelopes by chance. The man at the table said that was the "spot where envelopes were got." Whereupon No. 3 asked the price of an envelope. He was told that it was $10. He planked down the cash and drew an envelope from the box. He tore off the end, but found that it contained nothing. He became very angry and cursed his luck, but said that he would try it again. He put down $10 more and drew again. This envelope contained $40 which the man smilingly deposited in his vest pocket. About this time old man Killian became warmed up and just began to "tumble" to the game. The young man who had brought him into the room asked him if he did not want to try his luck. He said he had but a little money. He drew $35 from his pocket and laid it on the table. He looked at the box of envelopes, and seeing one stick out above the others he thought that was the lucky one, which might con tain a house and lot or an overcoat. He drew out the envelope, but scarcely had he done so before young man No. 1 picked up the money from the table and placed it in his pocket. Mr. Killian said that the money was his and he wanted it. The young fellow said that he could not have it, as he had received an envelope for it. The old man then tore open the envelope, but found that it contained nothing. He soon left the room, but told no one of his loss until this morning. The scoundrels

The men claimed to be from Perry county, and they were not guests at the the day and asked for a room in which to change their clothes. They were pretty sharp rascals, and the man who drew the 840, although not seen with the others, was their partner. No other persons so far as heard from were taken in by the fellows, who have undoubtedly left the city on Killian's money. The latter felt very badly about bis loss and only realized this morning how dumb he had been. YESTERDAY'S PICNICS.

Plenty of muscle at One of Them. Yesterday a picnic was held at Tell's Hain, which was far noisier than a Sunday school picnic. The main cause of the disorder was beer, which was swallowed by the bucketful by the large crowd present, many of whom know exactly what it is to get drunk, as they have "been there" before. A fight was started by three roughs from Harrisburg who, upon coming on the grounds, declared that they could whip any three men there. This found no takers, and they gave the crowd odds by offering to whip six men. Still there was no fight, and, not be called mean, the fresh youths from the capital city declared that they would again double the stake and would whip any twelve men This offer was heard by a number of mem bers of the "Star" club, who happened to be present, and persons who are acquainted with them know that they have partaken of a little "essence of fist" themselves upon diferent occasions. They were willing to tackle, the fierce-looking banditti from Harrisburg and a fight was soon in progress. When it was over the Harrisburg fiends, who had just been dying all day for a fight, were a demoralized looking trio Their faces were decorated so that they closely resembled Majolica ware and they will probably not be so anxious to whip the whole city when they again visit us. They went to the picnic for fight and certainly got it. A young man of this city named Weidle was badly beaten and had to be taken to his home. Some of the "ladies," who attended this pienic were not Sunday school teachers and they have seen nothing in the Testament as it is revised to prevent them from drinking beer. The also became mad and several musses were kicked up by them. Picnics of this kind are advertised as being "social" affairs and persons who attended this one yesterday say that they would not care to go to a place where the people were more social. Sociability and beer caused all the fights. The pienic at Green Cottage, by the Americus club was well-attended and it came off quietly, there being no fighting not spoil.

A BULLIED BULL.

Hunting His Headquarters on Barbary This morning as a very large bull was being driven along Duke street, near the court house, he suddenly becamed dazed, as it goes, but there are those who know and for a few moments looked at the "castle in the alley" then at the "Hans acts. Those are the ones, it seems, who Graf hotel" and then at the court house, as if undecided in which of these politi cal stables to quarter himself. His driver plied the thong and urged him to "move on," but the bull was tired, and seemed instinctively to know that he was in the immediate vicinity of Bull Ring provender. He first made a break for the "alley" stable, but was headed off and remuzzle the press and free speech, but will ceived several severe blows across the nose fail as has been the case at different places with a hickory wattle, which caused him with a hickory wattle, which caused him to back out and run down Duke street. On reaching the Hans Grof hotel he tried to dive down into the saloon, probably for the purpose of being "watered," but he was again driven back, and in despair made a dash for the prothono-tary's office, which is directly opseized him by the tail and pulled back with all his might. The deputy prothonotaries and clerks ran out of the office in alarm and "shoo'd" the astonished bull so vigorously and shied so many inkstands at his head, that he was very soon con-vinced he was not the "bull" that had chosen to grun the prothonotary's office. Retreating to Duke street, with the janitor still hanging to his tail, the iron gate was slammed in his tace, and there was nothing left for him to do but to "over the hill to the poorhouse." Sadly and slowly he turned into East King street, a disappointed and a broken-hearted bull. He made out to trudge along up the hill until he had passed Lime street, when from sheer exhaustion or despair he fell prone to the ground and there we left him. Whether he died and was carried to the glue factory; or finally reached the poor house and was cut into porter-house steaks for the boarders of that popular

A Man Kided While Going From Lancaste to York. Isaac Newcomer, of York, aged about forty years, was found lying on the track of the Frederick division of the Pennsylvania railroad this morning, between Stoner's station and Hellam, with his body cut in two pieces. Newcomer came to this city yesterday morning to see the fun, and like thousands of others he drank too much beer. He became very drunk and took the 7:20 train for home last evening. The conductor had considerable trouble to get his ticket from him. He was very sick in the train and when they arrived at Columbia he started for York by way of the Frederick division. When the conductor came around for his ticket near Stoner's he said he had none, having lost it. He was put off the train and was no doubt struck by the train which reaches Columbia from Frederick at 11 o'clock at night.

What the Change Has Put on the Street. The sudden change from warm to cool weather has brought out many funny costumes. The men with the straw hats and overcoats on are as plenty as counterfeit silver pieces. The man whose make-up attracted the most attention to-day was seen at the Northern market this morning. He wore a heavy overcoat which did not quite cover a very thin pair of linen pants. besides a heavy cap with ear warmers as large as vests. He believes in keeping his head warm and his legs cool.

Asserted and Denied. The political opponents of Collector of Internal Revenue Thos. A. Wiley claim to have it down fine that he is soon to be removed and Dr. S. F. Houston, of Washington, D.
