ANOTHER RAIN STORM.

Heavy Thunder-Houses Struck by Lightning At an early hour this morning a storm of thunder, lightning and rain visited this city and vicinity. The lightning was very vivid and the thunder loud. About five o'clock there was a terrible flash and crash on "the hill," that woke up all the natives that were not already out of their beds, and severely stunned many of those who had arisen. It was almost instantly ascertained that the lightning had struck two houses, No. 15 and 17 Campbell's alley, occupied respectively by Robert Templeton and George Hardy. An INTELLIGENCER reporter visited the scene and took a look at the damage done by the subtle fluid. The buildings are of brick, one and a-half stories high. They adjoin each other and the chimneys are built together between the two. The light-ning struck the tops of the chim-neys, tore away the bricks almost level with the comb of the roof. The bolt appears to have separated at this point, a part of it running down the chimney, a part down the back roof to the spouting and along the spout to a cistern in rear of the building, and a part down the front roof to the spouting and thence to the pavement. For about two feet in width from the comb of the roof to the eaves almost every slate is torn from its place, and the floor of the cistern is badly shat tered where the lightning entered the well. About two square yards of plastering was knocked from the ceiling of the second-story back room of Mr. Templeton's house, and the laths and rafters are a good deal shattered. There was a bed in the room, but no one was in it at the time. When the bolt fell Mr. Templeton was in the back kitchen in the act of making a fire. He was hurled through the kitchen door into an adjoining room and greatly stunned, but soon recovered. Neither the stove nor anything else in the kitchen was injured. That part of the bolt which passed along the front roof did not damage it so badly, it knocked a square yard or two of the plaster from the second story front room of Mr. Hardy's residence. Mr. Hardy and one of his children were sleeping in the room at the time, and a portion of the plaster fell upon their bed, which was a feather one. Neither of them was injured, though they were almost deafened by the crash. Mrs. Hardy and another child occupied the adjoining room back and they also escaped injury. Many of the neighbors were badly stun-

FIRE.

This afternoon between 1 and 2 o'clock a two-story frame stable belonging to Coho & Wiley, and situated on Arch alley a short distance below Lemon street was discovered to be on fire. The horses that were in the stable were safely removed, but the building and its contents, consisting of hay, feed, straw and harness were entirely destroyed. The loss will not propably exceed $500, and is covered by insurance in companies of which A. A. Herr is the local agent.

The first water was put upon the flames by Sener Bros.' "paid fire deputment," as it is facetiously called, as those gentlemen keep up at their expense a line of hose for emergencies like that of to-day.

There was for a time great fear of a disastrous fire, as the burnt stable was close to several piles of lumber in Coho & Wiley's lumber yard, near which are large lumber yards. Indeed, one of the frame buildings belonging to Sener and filled with sash and other manufactured lumber took fire, probably from a spark from one of the steamers, but the flames were discovered before any considerable damage was done.

STOLEN AND RECOVERED,

A Thiel Drives His Plunder to the Wrong Market. Last evening Philip Hess, who is the tenant of the farm of Mr. John F. Steinmau, in Drumore township, on which he resides during the summer season, attended a festival at Bethel church, in Fulton township. He drove a mare belonging to county ticket, as announced by the board A. J. Steinman, esq., hitched to his own buggy, in his own harness. While he was approved by nine out of every at the fair the team was stolen.

At about 10 o'clock this morning a man, who was driving a horse and buggy. stopped at the carriage shop of Norbeck & Miley, at Vine and Duke streets. Mr. Norbeck was at the shop and the stranger asked him if he did not want to purchase a buggy. Mr. Norbeck looked at the buggy and said that it looked like one their firm made. He asked the stranger where the plate, with the maker's name was, and was told that it had been taken off. Mr. Norbeck asked what he wanted for the buggy and he said $50. He also said that he would sell the horse (a bay mare) and harness and would take $80 for the whole team. Mr. Norbeck thought that the property was stolen, and after telling the man to wait for him he went and told his partner, Mr. Miley, of his suspicions. Returning shortly Mr. Norbeck told the man that he would take the buggy for $40. The stranger asked him whether he could pay him at once, and Mr. Norbeck replied that he could not unless he borrowed the money, but would pay him if he returned at three o'clock this afternoon. The stranger agreed to this and Mr. Norbeck told him to unhitch the horse and place him at one of the hotels in the neighborhood. Mr. Norbeck was confident that the property was stolen, and made this arrangement to gain time for inquiry. Before he had finished bargaining with the man he had told George W.

Fraime, who is employed at the shop, to go to Alderman Spurrier's for an officer. Fraime went to the office and accompanied by the alderman returned to Duke street. They soon saw their man, who was then walking, having placed the horse in the stable of Dr. Groff, on Christian street. They followed him to the Pennsylyania railroad depot and saw him buy a ticket. When he came out of the depot he walked up to Alderman Spurrier and asked whether the train, which was standing in the depot, was the right one to take to Harrisburg. The lderman replied that it was and allowed the man to get on the train. He and Fraime then went into the car and took him into custody. About one o'clock p. m. to day Mr. A. Steinman received a telegram from his nephew, J. C. Foltz, Quarryville, informing him that his horse was stolen. He was informed by an INTELLIGENCER reporter gram from young Mr. Foltz as being tall, with dark moustache, which corresponds with the appearance of the man who was arrested. He told the alderman that his name was John Johnson and he resided at Oak Hill. He said he had bought the team at the Buck from a man named Smith, who resided near Oxford. To Mr. Norbeck the man gave the same name, but said that he resided at Fairmount. He then claimed to have purchased the team from Joseph Brown, at Oak Hill. He was committed for a hearing on Wednesday, next at 10 o'clock. It seems quite remarkable that the thief should take his plunder right to the place where the buggy had come from, especial ly when he was warned of this by the name plate which he tore off. He could not possibly have gone straighter to his penitentiary fate.

OBITUARY.

When Harry Kuriz said "sine die,"
It seemed like "Sensenig died."
—New Era Bard.

It was eleven o'clock this morning when the Republican investigating frauds met, and of the committee all were present except Larry Burns. Major Reinoehl, Skiles's lawyer, called for the tally papers, &c., that the committee's resolution had ordered produced. President Stober announced his presence, without solicitation, and denied that he had ever been "unwilling" to come when he had any intimation that he was wanted.

J. P. Albright proposed that the com-mittee first take up the Lower Mount Joy district, then the Seventh ward, city, and then make examination of the returns from all other districts. Mr. Stober was willing to deliver all contested papers, but did not think the committee could demand all the papers of all the districts, without an order of the board of return judges. He was per-fectly willing, however, to go with the vice president and get any returns that might be called for.

II. M. North, esq., did not think the president and vice president had a right to turn over to the committee any papers except those from contested districts. Geo. Naurin, esq., of counsel for the Reformers, argued that the papers from all the districts should be produced-the investigation should go to the very bottom

Mr. North and J. Hay Brown stated that the committee had no right to the returns of uncontested districts; and that defeated candidate could not make a general allegation of fraud and then with a drag-net go through the whole county in hope of discovering fraud. As far as any specific frauds are alleged there could be no objection to their investigation.

J. W. Johnson, esq., said the commit-tee would stultify themselves if after having passed a resolution calling for all the papers, they now allowed it to fall and be-come a dead letter. It would be childish to do so, they would demand all the pa-pers. If the other side were afraid to have the papers brought before the committee there is all the more reason why they should be produced.

Mr. North replied that he was afraid to member of the committee who would carry them to Mr. Johnson or Mr. Reinohl's go into an investigation of any specific frauds alleged.

Mr. Stober made a statement to the effect that he would not deliver up to the committee the papers placed in his possession by the board of return judges. He was charged with their safe keeping, and while he was perfectly willing that the committee should inspect any return or other papers called for, he was not willing to allow them to go out of his custody. Mr. Henderson, vice president, said he was not willing to sit here and hand over to the committee one at a time the papers in his possession. He was willing to pro duce all the returns at once, and be done with it. He had confidence in the committee and was perfectly willing to trust the papers with them. After a rambling discussion Mr. Albright of the committee moved to proceed at once to take up the alleged fraud in Lower Mount Joy. Mr. Kurtz, of the committee, rose to a question of privilege. He said he was willing to sit here all summer and investigate this case if the facts and circumstances made it necessary to do so. He had been falsely accused by one of the counsel in this case, and charged with dishonesty; and he here branded the charge as false. He believed the Republican ten Republicans in the county. (Applause.) He believed further investigation unneces sary, and he therefore moved that the county ticket as declared by the board of return judges be declared by this committee to be the regularly nominated Republican ticket, and that the committee ad-

The aunouncement of the adoption of Mr. Kurtz's motion was received with great applause and a general hand shaking all round by the politicians present. The "counsel in the case" referred to parents said she was too young to marry. In September, 1879, she ran away with Hastings. They went to Oil City and were married. The new life the girl entered upon turned her head, and she became a noted flirt. Early in 1890 she and her husband were in New York. They stopped at the St. Nicholas hotel. One day a friend of Hastings, his wife, and $5,000 of his money disappeared. He could get no trace of the runaways.

ed a milliner shop in Buffalo. Her beauty attracted great attention. Levi Storms, elerk in a railroad office, fell in love with the young milliner, and they were married. They lived happily for three months. One day Storms told his wife that he was expecting a visit from his friend "Billy" Hastings of the oil region. This led to much earnest inquiry on the part of Mrs. Storms. The next day she disappeared. Hastings went to Buffalo. He was satisfied that the runaway wife of his friend Storms was his runaway wife also. He put Detective C. C. Halstead on her track. Two months afterwards she was traced to Chicago. She had been married three weeks to a clerk in Field & Leiter's dry goods house. The young woman learned that she was discovered, for on the day that her first husband arrived in Chicago with the officer she again disappeared. She took with her $400, all the money her latest husband had. A few weeks ago a gentleman from Bradford met Mrs. Hastings in San Francisco. He telegraphed the fact to her husband, who is a friend of his. Detective Halstead, armed with a requisition for Mrs. Hastings, and a warrant for her arrest on the charge of bigamy, has started for California to bring the
