IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

To-day we open a full line of Spring and Summer Goods for Men's Wear, which has never been eclipsed in this city or any house in the country for quality, style and high toned character. We claim superiority over anything we handled before during our experience of quarter of a century in business, and our reputation is established for keeping the finest goods in our line. Our opening to-day is an invoice of Novelties captured from the wreck of a large Boston house, whose failure has precipitated these goods on the market too late in the season and consequently at a sacrifice, so they are within reach of all desiring a first-class article at a moderate price. The consignment includes a full line of the celebrated Talamon's French Novelties, the handsomest and finest goods imported to this country, a new feature in Silk Warp: Talamon's Tricot a-Long, Serpentine Tricots, Cork Screw Diagonals and Granite Weave. A full line of Taylor's English Trouserings of beautiful effects. Also a fine line of Choice American Suitings as low as $20 a Suit. All the Latest Novelties in Spring Overcoatings at moderate prices. All are cordially invited to examine our stock and be convinced that we are making no idle boast, but can substantiate all we say and respectfully urge persons to place their order at once before the choicest styles are sold, for they cannot be duplicated this season. NEW DRESS GOODS, ETC.,

—AT—

JOHN WANAMAKER'S,

PHILADELPHIA.

One of the finest buntings we know of (if it had a border, it would be a nun's veiling), which we have sold up to within a week at $1, is now 60 cents. How it got to 60 cents is one of the curiosities of the trade. It is made, right here in Philadelphia, of the finest foreign wool; we buy of the maker; and sell at a profit; 44-inch, at 60 cents.

Next-outer circle, Chestnut street entrance.

Canton pongees, very light color and extraordinary quality, $9.50 and $10.50 for 20 yard pieces.

Summer silks mostly at 55 cents.

Bronzes, 75 cents and $1; bronze satin merveilleux, $2.25; bronze damasses, $1.50.

Millinery damasses at 75 cents, all silk; used also for dresses. All silk colored damasses 75 cents. Black damasses, $1.50.

Bonnet black silks a fifth off. American black silk $1.35. Black surah, light, 24½-inch; heavy 19-inch; both $1.50. Canton crepe, $2.

Next-outer circle, Chestnut street entrance.

In the whole range of dress goods our trade is highly satisfactory. It is evident that we have provided acceptable goods, and that our prices are regarded as liberal. In five distinct lines of dress goods it is perfectly clear that we have the largest variety and the choicest patterns in the city. These are: black grenadines, fine French woolens in plain colors, cashmeres, illuminated melanges, cottons, especially fine French cottons.

Nine counters, north' south and east from Center.

Zephyr shawls, with fringe more than a lady will care to see, 50 cents to $5. One at 50 cents is a surprise to those who expect little at such a price. A large double zephyr, for an invalid, $4.50.

Shetland shawls, without fringe, also in great variety, 75 cents to $8.

A zephyr shawl knit by hand in what is known as the crazy stitch is one of the curiosities from Boston; large and heavy; too heavy, maybe, for an invalid; at the amazing price of $3.50. Is it possible that in Yankee Boston human life is worth no more than $3.50 for knitting such a shawl?

East from Chestnut-street entrance.

Lace mits, 50 cents to $4.50. The writer has forgotten of how many sorts, but hundreds, and of the choicest. Lisle gloves for both ladies and gentlemen at 25 to 75 cents.

Sheepskin gloves, made rough side out, for gardening, 35 cents.

Chestnut-street entrance, outer.

Bathing suits for men; all wool flannel, mostly blue, trimmed more or less with braid.

Old pattern, seven sizes, $2.75 to $4.

Yoke pattern, $4; indigo-dyed, $4.50; white flannel, $4.75.

The yoke pattern fits more perfectly than the old. The white flannel is, of course, conspicuous; and as a conspicuous garment ought to be, it is very fine in quality.

Boys' bathing suits; old pattern, $1.50 to $2.50, yoke, $3 to $3.75.

Market street middle entrance.

Tapestry carpets at $1.15 down to $1; and at $1 down to 75 cents some time ago; not all gone.

SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 18, 1881.

The Way of the World.

Phases of Wickedness and Wantonness—Calamity and Sorrow.

John Cummings, of Licking county, Ohio, was fined $25 and costs for cruel punishment of his child, by putting a split stick, with a tack in it, on his child's tongue.

The wife of Senator Logan has been suffering for several days from what her physicians fear may be a renewal of the attack that prostrated her in Washington last spring.

The only daughter and heiress of the late Dr. Ayer, the millionaire pill manufacturer, is in Paris. A correspondent says that she received an offer of marriage from a Bourbon prince, a cousin of Don Carlos of Spain. She refused, and when the importance of the honor was urged she replied: "I don't want a title half as much as he wants cash."

George T. Larkin, deputy United States marshal, attempted to arrest his cousin of that name in Hawking county, Tenn., charged with violation of revenue laws. The latter resisted arrest and, Larkin says, attempted to cut him with a knife. The deputy marshal fired at his cousin, missing him. The second shot took effect, causing death in a short time.

The schooner R. J. Hart, from St. Johns to Labrador, with fishery supplies and a large number of people of both sexes, was crushed by the ice on Tuesday night twenty-two miles east-southeast of Cape John. All hands were rescued and landed at La Scie on the French shore. The women and children were almost naked. Vessels have been sent to convey them to safety. The crew saved nothing, barely escaping with their lives.

Some time ago the wife of Elkins, an artist of Chicago, sued Cudney, a saloon keeper, for $25,000 under the civil damage law for selling her husband liquor, and assisting him in the career which has ruined him professionally and consigned him to an inebriate asylum. It was in evidence that Elkins's professional earnings had been $10,000 a year. The trial lasted ten days. The jury, after having been out all night, was discharged, having failed to agree.

In Bradford, Ind, William Brannon, yesterday reported to have been assassinated, was engaged in an affray with John Huff, his son-in-law. They had had differences, and agreed to go near the church and fight it out. They met alone, both armed. Huff fired first and killed Brannon. A man who heard the firing reached the place in time to see Huff running away.

During a thunderstorm in Milwaukee, the house of Fred Dittmann, in the suburbs, was struck by lightning. A portion of the house was demolished, and Mrs. Dittman, who was at work in the pantry of the kitchen, was killed. The kitchen stove was torn to pieces, and every utensil twisted out of shape, the furniture in three rooms was battered, and all the locks and hinges in the house torn from their fastenings. The dead woman was not disfigured and the only mark about her person was a blue spot on her temple. Six children in the house escaped without injury.

In Constantia, N. Y., a party of glass workers went to an outdoor dance at Brown's Mills. While Julian Montross was calling off the numbers of the dance, Alonzo Wood began to make fun of his manner. A fight between Moutross and Wood resulted, during which Montross struck Wood over the head with a bottle, making a dangerous wound. Thos. Dunn drew a revolver and threatened to shoot any man who should attempt to interfere. Mr. Frederick Cole, a lawyer, who had been on the ground with a constable serving papers, nevertheless took hold of Montross. Dunn leveled his revolver at Cole, but it was knocked out of his hand. Montross then drew a knife and stabbed Cole in the groin from which wound he died this morning. Montross is under arrest, and extra guards have been stationed for fear of lynching.

Captain Johnson Dennison, formerly of Ottawa, was killed by a bear on the 6th inst. at Great Opeongo lake. He went about eight miles up the lake in company with a little grandson eight years of age. He left the child within hearing distance and went to look after his traps. Shortly after he met a bear. He shouted to the child to go home, which he did. Next morning Captain Dennison and the bear were found lying dead together, having killed each other. Deceased was born in the county of Cumberland, England, in 1799. He came to Canada in 1833 and served as a captain in the militia during the rebellion. During the last eleven years he has lived at Great Opeongo lake.

At Bordentown, N. J., Boarding School.

On Tuesday night last, upon the annual address and the essay, three of the students, one from Egg Harbor, another from Matteawan, and the third from Brooklyn, strolled carelessly out with the large audience. They repaired to a neighboring street, where awaited them three young men, said to be named, respectively, Stahle, a barber; Smith, a cornet player, and formerly a pupil of Levy; and Coing, a cigarmaker. Each of the young men had a fall-top buggy and horse in waiting, and the party drove rapidly to a neighboring village known as Three Tunns, four miles from there, where a strawberry festival was in progress. They are said to have remained there an hour or two, but they did not return to the college buildings until nearly 3 o'clock in the morning.

Instead of being met and admitted by the servant, as on previous occasions, the young women are said to have been encountered by President Bowne. They were permitted to remain until morning, when they were directed to pack their trunks, and were sent home permanently. The mother of one of them was in attendance upon the exercises. She accompanied her daughter home

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

"A prominent railroader tells the secret of the resignations of Vice Presidents John King and William Keyser, of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company. He says the personal strength and influence of President John W. Garrett in the company, which is a matter too clearly outlined and understood to need explanation, is at the bottom of it all. Robert Garrett, the third vice president of the company, is the son of the president, and has a great deal of influence with his father. When Mr. Garrett went to Europe the road was left in the charge of Keyser and King. During President Garrett's absence abroad, my informant says, Robert Garrett wanted to take several important steps which were not approved of by either King or Keyser, and they would not allow the plans to be carried out. On the recent return of President Garrett he was informed of all this and more, too, by his son, and is said to have been very angry about it, claiming that Messrs. King and Keyser had overstepped their authority. This, he states, was what led to the resignations."

Sad Suicide.

Garrett Rosenkrans Huston committed suicide on Wednesday night at the graves of his kindred in the Newton, N. J., cemetery. Mr. Huston, before the war, was a steam-boat engineer on the Mississippi river. He was thoroughly loyal to the Union, and gave up his position at the outbreak of secession, and returned home after passing through many exciting adventures with the fire-eaters, who infested the river steamers at that time, and before whom he made no secret of his contempt for the rebels. Mr. Huston grew up a Jackson Democrat, and because of his adherence to that school was always after familiarly called "Jack." He became a well-known man in Sussex county, by reason of his strong patriotic declarations during the war. He was a man of rare honesty, and of strong and decided convictions. But for the failing of intemperance he would have been a valuable citizen. He possessed uncommon natural abilities, and his youth gave promise of a strong and brilliant career. It is believed that shame and mortification at his failure in life caused the sad deed. He was seen about 11 o'clock at night in a state of intoxication, and it is supposed went to the cemetery with the settled purpose of ending his life. He had frequently been heard to say lately that he would take his life if he thought he could muster the courage. He was 60 years old and unmarried.

Southwestern Stage Robbers.

On Wednesday night the north and south bound stages running between Fayetteville and Alma, Ark., were stopped by two armed men and the mail and passengers robbed. When the north-bound stage was about 20 miles from Alma, and in one of the loniest places on the road, between two mountains, the driver was commanded to halt. The driver, on looking ahead, discovered two armed men on either side of the road, about ten yards ahead, with drawn pistols. After the stage stopped, the robbers commanded the passengers and driver to get down on the ground. They then made the driver turn his back to them while they tied and blindfolded the passengers. Then they tied and blindfolded the driver and placed him in front of the team, telling him that if he moved hand or foot he would be a dead man. After this they took all the money the passengers had, amounting to about $30. The driver asked them to loosen the strap on his wrists, as it was hurting him, and one of the robbers replied that he would as soon as they had robbed the south-bound stage, which was then heard approaching. As soon as the south-bound stage arrived, the driver was ordered to halt. The stage contained only one passenger, Mr. Gray, of Fayettville, from whom the robbers took $5 in money and a gold watch and chain. They took the mail from both stages, cutting open both sacks and taking all the registered letters and packages which appeared valuable. The robbers then untied one of the passengers, telling him that if he moved before they told him they would kill him. They then took to the woods.

An Aged Clergyman's Death.

The Rev. George F. Kaylor, a Baptist preacher, 85 years old, living near Kentuckytown, Texas, was found dead in his field near his house. The appearances indicated that he had been murdered. Several bruised places were found on his head and body. Suspicion pointed to John Gunter, whom Kaylor owed thirteen days' work and refused to pay because Gunter refused to work a full month. Gunter went to work for Lewis Melton, who testified that Gunter on one occasion said Kaylor would regret his refusal to pay him, on another that Kaylor would suffer for not paying him, and on the morning Kaylor's body was found he remarked that old man Kaylor would be found dead in his field some day. Gunter was seen going toward Kaylor's house, about 200 yards from where the body was found, and tracks were found going to and from the body which fit Gunter's shoes. The examining physician says the bruises would not have caused death, and gave as his opinion that death resulted from apoplexy. Gunter was bound over in the sum of only $100 to await the action of the grand jury, and in default of bail was put in jail. The general impression is that he is guilty.

NEW FOUND LAND NEWS.

A Terrible Fire Devastating the Country.

A terrific forest fire has been raging around the mining colony of Litle Bay, which is situated on the north side of Notre Dame bay. There is a population of 2,000 people in this settlement, comprising about 800 miners and their wives and children. Little Bay is now the chief copper ore mining territory in Newfoundland, and, together with Betts Cove, is owned by the consolidated copper mining company, the chief representatives of which are New York capitalists. The wealth of this mining centre is enormous. Not less than 40,000 tons of ore were shipped from it as the output of one season's operations, and the result of the current year's work bade fair to eclipse the productiveness of any former year. The whole aspect of affairs that but a week ago looked radiant with promise has suddenly diminished by the terrible conflagration that has wrapped the little colony around as with a sheet of fire.

Two hundred of the miners have been dispatched, under the command of the mining captain, to fell the woods around the mining quarter of the town, and the remainder of the operatives, aided by women and children, are burying underground all their furniture and household utensils and every portion of the mining plant that is of a perishable character. This labor is being performed under circumstances of extraordinary difficulty. The smoke from the forest flaming for miles all round the place is binding and oppressive, and occasionally the atmosphere, grown dense from the exhalations of burning resinous pine trees and balsam firs, becomes almost unbreathable.

When the Hercules left Little Bay the prospects were indeed gloomy. At one point the fire had reached the town and had swept away six houses. At several points it was rapidly advancing, notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the band of axemen told off to effect as many fire breaks, as possible. Two large iron steamers laden with ore and ready for sea were detained to act as a relief part in the event of the people having to leave their homes to the devouring element and content themselves with saving their lives. As there is no telegraphic communication with Little Bay some days may elapse before further particulars can be ascertained of the fate of the most prosperous mining settlement in New Foundland. The rain is now pouring down in torrents and in this Providential succor rests the forlorn hope for the colony of Little Bay.

HOW MR. BINGHAM GOT A WIG.

The Assistant Postmaster of Philadelphia Acts the Solomon in a Trenton Court.

An incident occurred on Thursday in the United States district court at Trenton which culminated in unexpected good fortune for Mr. James Bingham, who has been assistant postmaster of Philadelphia for ten years or more. In company with Inspector Barrett, Mr. Bingham went to Trenton on Thursday last to testify in a case against the postmaster of West Creek, Ocean county, N. J., who has been charged with defalcation. On coming into court Messrs. Barrett and Bingham modestly took seats near the lawyers, and bided their turn. There was a case on trial in which a German named Gustavus Rauchfuss was charged with smuggling. Rauchfuss was a barber on Broadway, New York city, and one evening about a month ago he went on board a Bremen steamer lying at Hoboken. When he came off three-quarters of an hour afterwards his overcoat and pockets were nicely padded. The fact was observed by the custom house officer, who hailed him and wanted to know if he had anything dutiable on his person. Rauchfuss became indignant at such an insinuation, and began to talk about "outrages on citizens." He then started to go away, but the custom house official detained him and made him take off his coat. From the sleeves and the breast pockets and also from the inside of the pants were produced a bundle of long white hair, which had come over from Bremen, and which by some process had been made to resemble the gray hair of old age. In some of the barber's pockets were what ladies call "Angoras," which are little small curls of the same white hair, made as if twisted on the finger. In the barber's pockets were also found a gross of fish scales, which are used in preparing the frame for wigs, and which, having been colored and moulded in imitation of the scalp, are attached to the hairs to make a perfect wig. The goods were confiscated, Rauchfuss was arrested, and on Thursday last he was arraigned for trial in the Trenton court. The government proved the facts as here given and Rauchfuss as a defence asserted that the goods which he had stowed away upon his person were brought from his barber shop on Broadway to be dyed by a man named Snyder, who lived on Hoboken that Snyder's speciality was to work up and dye this white hair to suit blondes or brunettes, as might be required. To show that the barber had brought these goods from his Broadway shop, and had intended that Snyder should dye them, a memorandum was produced giving the weights of the various parcels, which Rauchfuss had taken before leaving the shop, in order to require a proper return from the dyer. This paper was also introduced to prove that the barber must have had the hair in his possession prior to going on board the steamer, because immediately upon his arrest the hair was confiscated, and Ruchfuss had no access to it afterward. To rebut this defence the United States District Attorney Keasby produced a witness who said he had weighed the hair and found that the real weights were far different from those which Rauchfuss had given in his memorandum. The barber's counsel insisted that the witness must be mistaken, and there was quite a wrangle in the court room between the counsel. The matter resolved itself into a simple question of veracity, when one of the jurors remarked to the judge: "Here is a postoffice man; why could not he weigh these goods and settle this dispute?" and he pointed to Mr. James Bingham, whose shiny bald head was reflecting all the colors of the prism and, while attesting to youthful innocence and front-seat performances, contrasted strongly with Inspector Barrett's gray hairs, which are the glory of old age. Mr. Bingham obtained a pair of scales, weighed the goods and found that the barber's memorandum was correct. Here, then, was a vital point made against the government, and a plausible theory set up for the barber. The jury retired; and after being out all night returned on Friday morning with a verdict of acquittal.

Now comes the sequel. In a late mail Mr. Bingham received a note from Rauchfuss, who, in grateful recognition of Mr. Bingham's timely services, presented Philadelphia's assistant postmaster with a jaunty wig made from the supposed smuggled goods and dyed to correspond with Mr. Bingham's sparse locks. Mr. Bingham looks so much younger that it is said he had to be formally introduced to the postoffice clerks.

"I Am All Played Out"

is a common complaint. If you feel so, get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it and you will at once feel its tonic power. It renews the healthy action of the kidneys, bowels and liver, and thus restores the natural life and strength to the weary body. It can now be had in either dry or liquid form, and in either way is always prompt and effective in action. —New Bedford Standard. jul3-lwd&w
