THE LEAF.

FROM THE PRINCIPAL OF ANAETHETIC... Poor without leaf, where dost thou go...

My lone support, so much abused... The moans, out, so proud and tall...

By his uncertainty, sickle breath... The north wind, or the grog breeze...

From wood to plain, all through the day... From mountains into humid dale...

I follow him, all far and near... Without a murmur or complaint...

I go where leaves of roses blow... Where the laurels bloom, fade and die...

"BILLY THE KID."

A Boy Desperado's Apalling Record of Crime.

Cleveland Leader.

The editors of a noted boy desperado, known by the euphonious title of "Billy the Kid," have been frequently chronicled in the telegraphic columns.

"Billy the Kid" is bound to achieve even more fame than the noted Wild Bill, who, according to western lore, used to kill a man or two before breakfast.

This coming to the ears of a Leader man, he sought out the far western journalist, subjected him to the torture of an interview and elicited the following facts:

"The kid," according to report, was once a New York hoodlum. Heading some dime novel and trashy story papers turned his head, and he bought a revolver and started for the boundless West.

On the way he lingered long enough in Ohio to kill the first man, after which he made tracks for Texas, where he became a cow-boy. His deadly skill as a marksman and his unquenchable desire for gore soon gave him the name and fame he coveted—that of a brutal desperado.

He was one of the leaders in the Lincoln county, New Mexico, war, killing several men. After this fight, when he became the leader of a gang of outlaws and committed murderous atrocities. So offensive did his operations become that the governor of the state offered five hundred dollars reward for his capture.

The citizens combined to help the officers of the law bring the fugitive to justice, and after a hard chase of two weeks he was captured and jailed. He, with four companions, was tried at Mesilla, N. M., and sentenced to be hung on May 3, 1881.

While in jail he confessed to the law bying the gun which he used to kill the man, and the night of April 30.

He had warned the authorities that he would make his escape, remarking, "You know, boys, that in order to make this hanging a success you must have me there, and I don't intend to be present." He struck his guard over the head with the heavy shackles that were on his wrists, and then snatching the revolver from the belt of the guard he quickly ended the latter's life with a bullet.

He then coolly walked up to the house, just across the street, where the other guard lived, and picking up a shotgun, seated himself to await the guard's return.

A few moments later the latter, unconscious of any danger, strolled toward the house. A voice called out, "Hello, old fellow!" The guard looked up and saw "Billy the Kid" with the gun in his hand.

A second later there was a loud report and the guard staggered dying from a wound in the side. To make sure of his work Billy sent the contents of the other barrel into the guard's head. He was a second man that he had killed within ten minutes.

Dropping the shotgun he entered a rear room which was used for storing supplies and armed himself with half a dozen six-shooters. A Winchester repeating rifle and all the ammunition was conveniently carry.

The report of the gun had caused quite a number of people to assemble around the building, and when Billy appeared on the porch every man reached for his pistol. With his Winchester rifle at his side, not raising it, he shoulder, Billy began to shoot and the men began to scatter.

"I am fighting the whole world for my life," said he, "and I mean business." He then ordered one of the men to get him a horse and with the latter he mounted the shackles on one of his legs, and not stopping to remove the other, tied the severed manacle with its chain to his belt so that it should not impede his movements.

Not a man in the crowd dared to draw a bead on him, and, saying that he did not intend to steal the horse and would return it, Billy started out of town on a gallop.

Before he had gone far the horse "bucked" and threw him. He jumped up, and at the muzzle of his pistol compelled one of the men to catch the horse, which he mounted and rode away, and has not since been seen or heard of. It seems almost incredible that one man could take possession of a town and make his escape in the face of a score of armed men; but such is the case.

Billy is said to be a master of the use of the revolver. He is a dead shot and can shoot quicker than any man in New Mexico. He can use an ordinary Colt's revolver as quickly as another man can a self-loading pistol.

He is a crack shot with the soft hand as accurately as he does with his right, and his aim with a revolver in each hand, shooting simultaneously, is unerring.

With a Winchester rifle he can shoot as well with the gun at his side, without apparently taking any aim as most men can in the usual way. His equal for the quick and unerring use of firearms has never been known in New York.

Since coming to Cleveland, said Mr. Wilcox, I hear that the Kid since his daring escape has killed the horsemen who were in the employ of John Chism, the cattle king. The cow boys, four in number, were seated, so says a report, around a fire when "the Kid" rode up, and inquired, "are you working for old John Chism?" "Yes," they replied. "Then here's your pay!" A bullet from the kid's pistol pierced the man's brains at the same moment. Seeing the murder of their comrade, but the other cowboys sprang to their feet, but before they could draw their rifles they were shot and fell.

Pulling down on the one remaining the murderer shouted "Hold up." "Now," continued Billy, "I want you to live to take a message to old John Chism for me. Tell him that if he will give me five dollars a day for fighting for him, I will fight for him and never get a cent. Now I intend to kill his men whenever I meet them, giving him credit for five dollars every time I drop one until the debt is squared; and if I happen to meet him before I will kill him and call the whole account settled. All I am living for now is to get even with my enemies, and I expect to be in the country until I do that." The Kid then rode away toward the Peos, and the cowboy, after seeing that his friends were all dead, made all haste to the nearest camp, where he told his story and secured assistance to bury the bodies of the murdered men. Heavy rewards are out for the Kid, and there seems to be but one man in all that section with nerve enough to follow the Kid, and that is the sheriff, Pat Garrett, who is on his trail, and unless killed himself will get the Kid eventually.

Feel Playing For Drinks.

The following is the full text of a law passed by the Legislature and signed by Gov. Hoyt:

SECTION 1. That if the proprietor, keeper, lessee or manager of any saloon, hotel, tavern, inn, billiard room or other place of resort or entertainment shall keep, maintain or permit to be played upon his premises, or in connection therewith, or having passage or communication to or with the same, the game of chance, the result or prize of forfeiture of payment in any form of such game or amusement shall be by drinks of vinous, spirituous, or malt or brewed liquors, or any admixture thereof, he or she guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced for the first offense to pay a fine of $100 and to undergo an imprisonment of not less than ninety days, and for the second offense to pay a fine of $500 and to undergo an imprisonment of not less than one year; any license granted for the keeping of any such saloon, hotel, inn, billiard room or other place of resort or amusement shall, upon such second conviction, be declared null and void by the court in which the said second offense shall be tried.

Doctors Gave Him Up.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

Mr. Ira Mulholland, Albany, N. Y., writes: "For several years I have suffered from recurring bilious headaches, dyspepsia, and constipation, which rendered me almost unmanageable. I was finally induced to try your Barkley Cough Syrup. I am entirely cured. For sale at H. B. Cochran's Drug Store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster."

A Baptist Minister's Experience.

I am a Baptist minister, and before I even thought of being a clergyman, I graduated in medicine, but I was unwilling to practice for any present or future years. I was once suffering from cholera, and I bought your Barkley Cough Syrup. I am entirely cured. For sale at H. B. Cochran's Drug Store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster."

MEDICAL.

REIGART'S OLD WINE STORE.

Brandy as a Medicine.

The following article was voluntarily sent to me by a prominent physician, who has been for many years in the receipt of the Brandy, and it is commended to the attention of those afflicted with Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE.

This is now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of our most distressing diseases, which sweep away their annual thousands of victims.

When a physician extends and we therefore present to the favorable notice of invalids, precisely those afflicted with that insupportable disease, Dyspepsia, and those who have this medicine in nothing more or less than Brandy.

The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used judiciously,

A Sovereign Remedy or all their ills and aches. He it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is

REIGART'S OLD BRANDY.

Sold by our enterprising young friend, H. B. SLAYMAKER. This Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore offer it with the preference over all other Brandy. It is so named with how many law-breaking French cities they have broken down, and in many cases the money that is yearly thrown away on various inferior and spurious Brandy, would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or cases. In proof of the curative powers of Reigart's Old Brandy.

In cases of Dyspepsia, we can summon numbers of witnesses in cases in particular to cite—

A hard-working farmer had been afflicted with an excessive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he was so weak that he could not walk; he was obliged to use a crutch; he had lost his appetite—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and he was so debilitated that he was unable to do any work. He is a Methodist, and then, as now, he was advised to try

Reigart's Old Brandy.

In his case, he had been a Christian, and after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he had bought a bottle, and he was so much gratified by the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which he chose to eat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has his health, he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.
