THIRD EDITION.

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1881. THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION. HIS SYMPTOMS MORE FAVORABLE. CONSULTATION OF THE DOCTORS. The White House Bulletin. Of the nature of the president's wounds Dr. Agnew has said: "The wound is in the right side, from the spine. The ball passed in between the tenth and eleventh ribs, fracturing the latter and passed apparently through the right lobe of the liver, making a hole plenty large enough for me to put my finger in. The presumption is that the ball has lodged somewhere in the abdomen. Any attempt to extract it would have been obviously improper."
