MONDAY EVENING, AUGUST ,1, 1881 A SEASHORE ROMANCE.

HOW A PHILADELPHIAN REGAINED HIS LONG-LOST WIFE.

Saved from Drowning to be Married in the Fall—" Protty Darling Poss" Nearly Leads to a Cowhiding.

Atlantic City Correspondence Philadelphi Ten years ago Charles Voysey was the confidential clerk of one of Philadelphia's merchant princes. He was steady, honest and industrious, inclined to picty, but as poor as a church mouse. His employer was proud, haughty, imperious, but he could draw his check for a million, and the bank cashier would merely say

" How will you have it?" Once every week, sometimes oftener, especially if she wanted the needful for some trinkets or gewgaws, the merchant's daughter paid a visit to the private office back of the counting house. She was sweet sixteen, buxom in form, fair in complexion and winsome in manner. In the eyes of her parent she was more precious than gold, for she was an only child and bereft of a mother's tender care, and he was never happier than when stroking the ringlets which fell over her shoulders and listening to her rippling laugh. By and by he noticed that his darling's visit to the office became less few and far between. At first this fact did not strike him as having any particular significance but when she began to "drop in" every afternoon his suspicions were aroused One day when he returned rather suddenly from a ride up town he found the pious clerk and the buxom damsel engaged in a confidential talk, without room enough between their two chairs to run a pin through. The explosion which followed is remembered by the other clerks to this day. Madamoiselle was sent home with instructions to stay there for the future, while the confused employe was soundly berated for his presumption and audacity. "This," thought paterfamilias when he had cooled down, "will be the end of it." But for once the level-headed man of busi ness was mistaken. Leas than a week later, while taking a ramble through the wooded grounds which adjoined his elegant Germantown home, he came upon the pair in much the same atti-tude as he had seen them in befere, only that the green sward took the place of the chairs. Neither knew of his presence until the presumptuous clerk received a sudden and unromantic application of boot leather. Then there was a yell, a girl's shrill shrick, and the fainting damsel was hastily carried to the house by her father, while the nonplussed swain rubbed his base and hastened away in the opposite direction. Six days later the daughter was on the ocean, booked for several years' residence in Paris, while her adorer, with a mouth's salary in which can only be found in an emigrant train bound to the far West.

Last Wednesday a week the name "Charles Voysey" was inscribed in a round, bold hand on the register of one of our most select hotels, and a couple of magnificent bays, a similar number of grays, an elegant drag and an equally handsome phaeton were lodged at a neighboring livery stable under the same name. When the same evening one of the teams with a liveried footman in front and a "tiger" behind drew up in front of the piazza, and the owner stepping in took the lines, the gossips of the hotel were all "Who is he?" they asked, and the question was taken up by the folks who watched the attractive turnout as it went up and down Pacific avenue. Nobody could answer, however, until the story came from the servants' quarters, where the footman had been making love to the colored servant, that the stranger was a wealthy Californian, with a big sheep farm, hundreds of acres of vineyards and any amount of real estate in the Golden City of the Pacific coast.

A few evenings ago, just as the sun was going down in the clouds, while the new arrival was strolling along an unfrequented portion of the beach, his attention was attracted to the graceful movements of a swimmer who was enjoying the water some little distance from the shore. (This, it may be observed, in parenthesis, is no unusual occurrence in the evening this seasen.) Suddenly the faint cry of a woman was borne over the breakers, and at the same moment the swimmer threw up her arms, and a huge breaker hid her from sight. To kick off his shoes, throw off his coat and pluage into the surf took the stranger but a moment. A minute or two later his strong arms were bearing the exhausted woman to the dry sand. As he laid her down upon the beach her eyes opened, and met those of her preserver.

"Nellie!" The exclamation came in one breathe, and the recognition was complete. The double trial, however, was too great for her strength, and she had barely managed to whisper the name of the hotel at which she was stopping when she fainted away. A carriage was procured and she was quietly taken to her home, so quietly that not half a dozen persons outside of the doctor, coach driver and the principals knew any thing of the occurrence. The next morning before "Charlie" had risen paterfamilias was at the hotel, and to make a long story short, Germantown will see one of the most brilliant weddings this fall which has ever taken place in that quiet · suburb, while California will gain one of Philadelphia's fairest daughters. Meanwhile the bays have a heavier load to carry every evening. Neither of the lovers had married; neither had forgotten the other, although they never expected to meet But literally, in this case at "Time at last makes all things

MEDICAL. REIGART'S OLD WINE STORE.

Brandy as a Medicine. The following article was voluntarily sent to Mr. II. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a prominent practising physi-cian of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice. It is commended to the attention of those af-

Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE. This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the destructive diseases which or some of the destructive diseases which sweep away their annual thousands of victims. With a purely philanthropic motive we pre sent to the favorable notice of invalids—espe-cially those afflicted with that miserable dis-ease Dysnemaia, a smedife remady which is ease Dyspensia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than

Brandy. The agest, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly, A Sovereign Remedy or all their fils and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is REIGART'S OLD BRANDY, Sold by our enterprising young friend, II E SLAYMAKER. This Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preference over all other Brandies no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifics would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or ases. In proof of the curative powers of Reigart's Old Brandy, In cases of Dyspepsia, we can summon numbers of witnesses—one case in particular we bers of witnesses—one case in particular we cite:—

A hard-working farmer had been afflicted with an exhaustive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind- of food; he had sour eructations constantly—uo appetite—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Root Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as now, preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed earnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try Reigart's Old Brandy, In his case, he looked up with asionishment, but after hearing of its wonderfut effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which he chose to cat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has this medicine he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.—A Practising Physician.
