6. Evangeline."

A Celebrated Song Written on a Fence with Charred Slicks by Moenlight.

"More than 145,000 copies of 'Evange line' were sold in fourteen months," said Will. S. Hays, the famous song writer, the will. S. Hays, the famous song writer, the other day to a reporter. The conversation was on the subject of his songs, their origin, number and history. Of all he has published, considerably over 200, "Evangeline," "Mollie Darling" and "Norah O'Neal" were probably the most popular. "Evangeline" is one of the most beauti ful popular compositions ever published in America, and just before the breaking out of the war was sung in every home and by every company of singers in the land. Strange to say, the author never received one cent for his composition, though at the usual royalty, three cents per copy, he would have made $4,850 out of it in fourteen months. How many copies in all have been sold he does not know, though it is still in demand, and the total number would probably reach 300,000. When "Evangeline" was first issued, it became immensely popular. The minstrels of antebellum days, whose specialty, next to characteristic negro delineations, was sen-timental ballads, sang the beautiful com-position for quintet in every city in the land, and, as is usual with popular ballads, the minstrel tenor, the famous Campbell, of Campbell's Minstrels, first introduced

"I was a wild young fellow when I wrote 'Evangeline,'" continued Colonel Hays, "and it grew out of a frolic. Just before the war I was visiting one summer up in Oldham county, near Lagrange.
There was a party of gay young ladies visiting at the house also, most of whom have children now as old as I was then. Among them was a beautiful girl who resembled the ideal picture of Longfellow's 'Evangeline' so closely that I called her by that name, and it clung to her as a nickname. One evening we were all in-vited over to a frolic at the residence of Hon. Robert D. Mallory, and all went. We danced and sang, and soon discovered that four of us could sing very nicely together. We tried, 'Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming' and other popular quartets, and got along so nicely that we became quite enthusiastic over our success. About 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning we started to walk home down the road. The night was as bright as day, with the full moon langing in the sky, and as we walked we sang. Finally we sat down in a nice nook in a field to rest, and 'Evangeline' began to suggest other songs to

"'I'll write you a song,' said I, 'if you'll promise to sing it before we go

"This was agreed to. On the opposite side of the road a rail fence had been torn away and a white plank fence had been erected. Where we were sitting a party of negroes had been roasting ears of corn over a fire, and the charred sticks lay all around. I gathered up a bundle of them under my arm, and, followed by the girls, walked over to the fence. With the char-red sticks I wrote the first verse of the song on the top plank of the fence, and the notes for four voices on the four planks beneath, making it a quartet. Then we stood off, and, as we all could read music, we saug it. The girls were delighted, and insisted on having a chorus, so I went down to end and wrote the chorus out on the planks. Well, we sang it over and over, and went home singing it. Next morning 'Evangeline' came down stairs humming the air and asked me to write it out and finish it. I told her I couldn't do it, but she might go down and copy it off the fence. She took an umbrella and a sheet of paper, and soon came back with words and music copied

"Then she insisted on having another verse, and so I wrote another verse, on condition that I was to have a kiss for it, and she to have the music. She went home to St. Louis and sang 'Evangeline' about there until it attracted attention, and she sent it back to me to have it published. I sent that song to every music publisher in America, until the MS. was nearly worn out, and the best offer I received for it was from Brainard, of Cleveland, who offered me $10 and twenty-five copies of music. I declined it. Shortly after I was in Cleveland, and Campbell's minstrells were there. I took the song to Campbell and we went to a music store and tried it. He said it was a great song, and sang it that night five times to persistent encores. Brain-ard heard of the new song, went to hear it, and then came to me to buy it. I was drinking in those days and was a regular '--- of a feller,' so I up and told him that John Howard Payne had died in a poor house, that Key, who wrote the 'Star Spangled Banner,' had died in destitution, and that the publishers in America were determined to starve the composers out; but I would make him a present of the 'Evangeline' to show him how little publishers know of the value of compositions. Well, it went selling right along like a whirlwind. Three months afterward he offered me $500 for another song like it, but I refused it, and have never written anything for him."

REIGART'S OLD WINE STORE. Brandy as a Medicine.

The following article was voluntarily sent to

Mr. H. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a prominent practising physi-cian of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice It is commended to the attention of those at-flicted with Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE. This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the destructive diseases which sweep away their annual thousands of victims. With a purely philanthropic motive we pre-sent to the favorable notice of invalids—espe-cially those afflicted with that miserable disease Dyspepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than Brandy.

The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly, A Sovereign Remedy or all their ills and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is REIGART'S OLD BRANDY,

Sold by our enterprising young friend, H E SLAYMAKER. This Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preference over all other Brandies no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifics would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or ascs. In proof of the curative powers of Reigart's Old Brandy, in cases of Dyspepsis, we can summon numbers of witnesses—one case in particular we hard-working farmer had been afflicted A hard-working farmer had been afflicted with an exhaustive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he had sour cructations constantly—uo appetite—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Root Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as now preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed earnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try Reigart's Old Brandy, In his case, he looked up with astonishment, but after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which hechose to cat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has this medicine he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.—A Practising Physiciam.
