LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.
FROM TOWN AND COUNTRY.
IN THE TOBACCO FIELDS.

Concerning Bugs, Plants and Other Workers of Nature.
That Trot.
The great race between Hiram Ham-bright's and Hiram Snyder's huckster horses, to have come off on the Columbia turnpike next Saturday, has been postponed until the succeeding Saturday, as the Democratic primaries come off on the 27th.

Second Crop Locust Blossoms.
In front of the residence of Charles E. Frailley, East Frederick street, is a locust tree containing a second crop of blossoms. It is very seldom that the locust tree blossoms twice in the same summer, though some other varieties of tree are prone to do so.

Tail Potato Vase.
Levi W. Groff, of this city, has shown us a potato vase grown on his premises that measures 8 feet and 7 inches in length. It is one of several roots, some of which are nearly or quite as long as the specimen above measured. The best of the matter is that there was a nice nest of potatoes at the root of the vase. Mr. Groff must be regarded as the "big game" grower until some one else successfully contests the championship by showing a longer vase.

Surprise Party.
James H. Pagan, near Bethesda, Martic township, became 62 years of age on Thursday last, and his friends determined on a surprise. Mr. Pagan was deceived from home, and detained until near 9 o'clock p. m., and when he returned he found about seventy of his friends and neighbors in possession of his house. They had brought ample stores of good things along with them and the banquet board was attractively spread with the most tempting viands when Mr. Pagan was ushered in. After hearty congratulations the feast of reason and the flow of soul continued till near midnight, when the party broke up—all being well pleased with the successful and happy result of their surprise to Mr. Pagan.

An Old Date Stone.
Lewis Haddy, marble mason, has shown us a "date stone" taken from an old house on the Reading road, near Landis Valley, which is about being rebuilt. The stone is very soft and light, is about a foot in length and eight inches in width, and has cut on the surface in Roman letters, "1738, H. I. S." The letters are said to be the initials of Henry I. Snively who built the house, which is now being rebuilt by Henry Landis. The old stone will be placed in the new building, and under it will be placed a date stone containing the words: "Rebuilt by Henry and Catherine L. Landis, 1881."

Lancaster Commercial College.
The fall term of this popular institution, conducted by Profs. Weidner & Messer, commences on Monday next. August 23, and its past success is the best surety of its future usefulness. The college is patronized by the best families in this and other cities, and has had in attendance during the past year over fifty students, a number of whom have obtained desirable business appointments in consequence of the thorough course of instruction given them by the able teachers in charge. The college rooms in Rhoads's building, 4 West King street, are large, airy and well lighted, and have been fitted up in the most complete style. Every branch of a commercial education is as fully taught at this college as at any other in the state. Full particulars may be had by addressing or calling on the professors in charge.

THE TOBACCO MARKET.
Continued Drouth—A Short Crop—Sampling the crop.
It is pretty well settled that the crop of 1881 in Lancaster county is a short one, possibly not much more than half, certainly not more than two-thirds as large, as was expected earlier in the season. The nature is owing, together with the long continued drouth, which extended over the greater part of the tobacco area of the county. In some favored localities where there were local rains the tobacco is large and fine; and in all sections of the county—where the leaves are very small, they are unusually free from insect holes or other defects. Probably there was never a "cleaner" crop grown in the county; but instead of the 2,000 pounds per acre that the farmers were hoping for, a majority will have to content with 1,000, and many of them with a crop from 500 to 1,000.

A considerable part of the new crop has been cut off and placed upon the poles, and cutting is still going on actively; but many farmers, whose plants are small, are holding back in hopes that a good soaking rain will come, and that the long continued drouth, which extended over the greater part of the tobacco area of the county. It is reported that some of these anxious people have waited too long, and that their short-leaved tobacco, which ought to have been cut sooner, is assuming a foxy appearance, and will not be worth anything.

It must not be assumed, however, that the crop of the county is a failure. Some tobacco has been cut off and some is still growing, as good as any ever grown in the county; and some of the late planted, which is yet short, may be saved by timely moisture.

From different sections of the county we continue to hear of exceptionally fine crops of tobacco. John J. Long, of Liberty Square, is said to have the "boss" acre in Drumore—the leaves being very large, uniform in size and entirely free from holes. An acre grown by James Ewing on the same farm is nearly as good. Edw. P. Ambler, on an adjoining farm, has two acres of splendid tobacco, the leaves being from 28 to 37 inches in length.

Wm. McComb, near the Buck, has an acre and a half that is hard to beat, either in size or quality.
Thomas Bellamy, of Mount Noto, Martic township, has two acres of extraordinarily large tobacco. Patrick Moss, of the same neighborhood, has three acres examined by a representative of the INTELLIGENCER, who measured leaves 42 by 20 inches; 30 by 23 inches, and 41 by 20 inches. Rolandus Brubaker, of the same neighborhood, has a very fine patch of two acres.

John A. Alexander, of Martic township, near York Furnace, has a patch of five acres, and another of one acre, both of which are very fine—some of the leaves measuring 40 by 27 inches.

J. W. Johnson, of this city, has a farm on the road leading from the Buck tavern to McCall's Ferry, on which he has grown 91 acres of tobacco that will yield not less than 2,000 pounds to the acre.

Many leaves of this crop have been measured which were from 24 to 33 inches in length, and from 20 to 24 inches in width, the entire tract being of very regular growth.
These are only a few of many samples that might be cited of excellent crops in the county; there are hundreds and perhaps thousands of others equally good; and there can be no doubt that the crop will receive high prices for them. Even the short tobacco will probably bring fair prices, as it is very clean, and the crop of seed leaf is short, not only in Pennsylvania, but in other states.

Buyers are already on the war-path prospecting for choice ground, and we hear of a number of crops that have been sold in the field or on the poles. From Conestoga township alone it is said that twenty-seven acres were thus sold, at $25 per acre for wrappers, $20 for seconds and $10 for fillers.

Not much is yet doing in old tobacco; but there will be, probably, a "boom" before long. Both packers and buyers have been "laying off" until the crop of '80 should be sampled. Sampling commenced this week, and as far as it has gone, has proved very satisfactory to the holders. The leaf comes out in good color and quality, and is almost entirely free from "damage," of which there was so much complaint a year ago. Holders of the '80 crop, on account of its exceptionally good condition and the shortness of the crop of '81, are inclined to be a little stiff in their views, and they will probably make a good thing of their investment.

There has been no damage to the growing crop by hail since our last report, and we find it impossible to tell with accuracy the extent of damage heretofore done or the amount of insurance realized by the sufferers. The only serious hail storms were the two heretofore mentioned in the INTELLIGENCER, one of which devastated a tract of territory southward from Marietta and the other eastward from Quarryville. The insurance agents say the loss falls upon the company more heavily than was at first supposed.

From a Regular Correspondent.
The festival held in the grand hall for the benefit of the Gap M. E. church, was a success financially. Some persons or persons who must have had an incomparable appetite for confectioneries, broke into Swigart's restaurant and took about ten cents worth of candies and departed. Any plan that can beat this robbery, please step to the front.

About twenty-five persons of this place went with the excursion to Atlantic City, on Thursday morning.
Ex-Mayor Stauffer and family, of Lancaster, arrived here on Thursday morning. They are the guests of Mr. Isaac Stauffer, of this place.

The tobacco is slowly being cut and stored away, but owing to the dry weather for the past couple weeks, it is not as good as it might have been. Mr. C. L. Eckert, has about the finest crop of tobacco in the neighborhood. It averages about 35 by 18, all over the lot. Mr. Eckert may be considered a "boss" grower of the weed.

The Spectre Insect.
Mr. J. V. Campbell, tobacco dealer of Lancaster city, brought us to-day a specimen of the "Spectre Insect," or "Walking Twig," (Spectra fenestrata) which he captured in the neighborhood of this city. These insects have never been very numerous in Lancaster county, and have been heretofore usually found on trees and shrubbery, notably the sassafras; and that it should have been captured in a tobacco field is a situation which is very unusual. Mr. C. L. Eckert, has about the finest crop of tobacco in the neighborhood. It averages about 35 by 18, all over the lot. Mr. Eckert may be considered a "boss" grower of the weed.

On Monday the schools of this township (Salisbury) commenced. Miss Sallie Linville took charge of the primary school of this place, and a Mr. Johnson, of Berks county, took the secondary school.

In the Home of the Rattler.
The snakes which "Clum" Smith, His Dog, a Boy and a Neighbor Got Away With.

The table lands of the Lackawanna valley lie several hundred feet above this village, although only a few miles distant. Some time ago the old Lannery and Escension mill in the neighborhood discontinued operations, and these heights have since grown up with a thick covering of scrub-oak, pine and chestnut, which renders travel through them exceedingly difficult. The farms of the residents of the valley start up against the heights. One of the well-known tillers of the soil of that region is Christopher Columbus Smith, familiarly known as "Clum" Smith. He has a celebrated dog, nicknamed Old Abe, who has won renown as a hunter of both woodchucks and rattlers.

Mr. Smith is very proud of a dog with these dual accomplishments, and encourages him at every opportunity in his expeditions. One day this week "Clum" heard Old Abe barking among the rocks on the farm of his neighbor, P. D. Turner. Seeing that gentleman so excited, he went to investigate. "That rascal dog is after a woodchuck again, let's go and get him out."

Agricultural operations were at once suspended and both men started for the ledge behind which the dog continued to bark. As they approached the spot a peculiar whizzing sound, like the noise produced by a buzz saw, fell upon their ears.

"Hullo! Clum exclaimed, 'I guess we'll have some rattler grease instead of the rock!'"

Coming into position to view the space beneath the ledge, the men saw four large rattlesnakes coiled up at an entrance, while Old Abe, a few feet distant, was making the echoes with his baying. Clum took in the fine condition of the snakes at a glance, and began a mental calculation as to the best method to be employed to secure the prizes without allowing them to bite themselves and destroy their value. Seeing a boy down in the valley, he called him to go after the gun in the house. While this arrangement was being executed, the two men, with the aid of forked sticks, dragged out three of the snakes, and turned them over to the dog, which killed them. On the arrival of the gun the head of the fourth was blown off. A fifth rattler, which still continued to crawl, was also killed. The dog, which had not a rattler remained alive. A count revealed seventy-one dead snakes, the largest being eight feet in length.

"That dog is the tamest snake crawler out," said Clum, as he inspected the heap of reptiles, which still continued to crawl and turn. "but it isn't every day he's got the opportunity to whip his weight of the varmints."

Table Etiquette.
Miss Nye's Delicate Mince Upon Table Manners in Fashionable Society.
Boomerang.

There are a great many people who behave well otherwise, but at table they do things that if not absolutely outrageous and ensemble, are at least pianissimo and sine die.

It is with a view to elevate the popular taste and etherealize, so to speak, the manners of our country, that we give below a few hints upon table etiquette.

If, by writing an article of this kind, we can induce one man who now wipes his hands on the table cloth to come up and take higher ground and wipe them on his pants, we shall be amply repaid.

If you cannot accept an invitation to dinner, do not write your regrets on the back of a pool check with a blue pencil. This is not regarded as ricochet.

A simple note to your host, informing him that your washerwoman refuses to relent, is sufficient.

On seating yourself at the table draw off your gloves and put them in your lap under your napkin. Do not put them into the gravy, as it would ruin the gloves and cast a gloom over the party. If you have just cleaned your gloves with benzine, you will leave them out in the front yard.

If you happen to drop gravy on your knife blade back near the handle, do not run the blade down your throat to remove the gravy, as it might injure you, epiglottitis, and it is not entourpant, anyway.

When you are at dinner do not take up a raw oyster on your fork and playfully ask your host if it is dead. Remarks about death are in very poor taste.

Pears should be held by the stem and peeled gently, but firmly, not as though you were skinning a dead horse. It is not bon ton.

Oranges are held on the fork while being pulled, and the precious juice of squirting the juice into the eyes of the hostess is now an error.

Stones in cherries or other fruit should not be placed upon the table-cloth, but slid quietly and unostentatiously into the pocket of your neighbor or noiselessly toward the table.

If you strike a worm in your fruit do not call attention to it by mashing it with the nut-cracker. This is not only unclean, but it is regarded in the best society as blasé and exceedingly vice versa.

Macaroni should be cut into short pieces and should be eaten with an even, graceful motion, and absorbed by the yard.

In drinking wine, when you get to the bottom of your glass do not throw your head back and draw in your breath like the cat-eater of a healthful order to get the last drop, as it engenders a feeling of the most depressing melancholy among the guests.

After eating a considerable amount, do not rise and unbutton your vest strap in order to get more room, as it is not exactly an fait et deshabille.

If, by mistake, you drink out of your finger-bowl, laugh heartily, and make some facetious remark which will change the course of the conversation and renew the friendly feeling among the members of the party.

Ladies should take but one glass of wine at dinner; otherwise there might be difficulty in steering the male portion of the procession home.

Do not make remarks about the amount your companion has eaten. If the lady who is your companion at table, whether she be your wife or the wife of some one else, should eat quite heartily, do not offer to pay your host for his loss, or say to her, "Good Scott! I hope you will not kill yourself because you have the opportunity," but be polite and gentlemanly, even though the food supply be cut off for a week.

If one of the gentlemen should drop a raw oyster into his bosom, and he should have trouble in fishing it out, do not make facetious remarks about it, but assist him to find it, laughing heartily all the time.

Koumiss.
A Summer Drink and How to Make It.
Food and Health.

Into one quart of new milk put one gill of fresh buttermilk and three or four lumps of white sugar. Mix well and see that the sugar dissolves. Put in a warm place to stand ten hours, when it will be thick. Pour from one vessel to another until it becomes smooth and uniform in consistency. Bottle and keep in warm place twenty-four hours, it may take thirty-six in winter. The bottles must be tightly corked and the corks tied down. Shake well five minutes before opening. It makes a very agreeable drink, which is especially recommended for persons who do not assimilate their food, and for young children may be drunk as freely as milk. Instead of buttermilk, some use a teaspoonful of yeast. Made from mare's milk, it is the standard beverage of the Tartars, who almost live upon it in summer, and is also used largely by the Russians. The richer your milk, which should be unskimmed, the better will be your koumiss.

Indigestion.
The main cause of nervousness is indigestion, and that is caused by weakness of the stomach. No one can have sound nerves and good health without indigestion. Hop Bitters to strengthen the stomach, purify the blood and keep the liver and kidneys active, to carry off all the poisonous and waste matter of the system. See other column. auis 2nd w

Joseph Durringer, Broadway, Buffalo, has induced by his brother to try Thomas' Blood Bitters and was enabled to walk round again all right. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

Kidney Complaint Cured.
B. Turner, Rochester, N. Y., writes: "I have been for over a year subject to serious disorder of the kidneys, and often unable to attend to business; I procured your Burdock Blood Bitters and was enabled to walk round again all right. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster."

Mr. Riffenstein, Boston, Mass., writes: "Your Spring Bitters has cured me of dyspepsia, of four or five years standing. I have regained my normal appetite, can sleep well and feel like a new man. Price 50c. For sale at H. B. Cochran's Drug Store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster."
