HEATERS AND BANGES.

tory to going out and 'shaking' the mayor for the lemonade, after which I intended to breathe in a little fresh atmosphere and go home for dinner. · It had been a hard day in the temple of justice that day, and the court was weary. It had dealt out even-handed justice at regular rates since early morning at so much per deal, till fatigue was beginning to show itself in the lines upon that broad white brow. Therefore, when a halting step was heard on the stair, there was a low murmur on the part of the court, and a half-surprised moan that sounded like the tail end of an affidavit. "The young man who entered the hallowed presence of eternal justice and the all-pervading and dazzling beauty of the court in its shirt sleeves, was of about medium stature, with shoes cut decolette and Roman striped socks clocked with brocaded straw-colored silk. "He wore an ecru-colored straw hat with navy-blue brocaded band and necktie of old gold, with polka dots of humberta and cardinal, interspersed with embroidered horseshoe and stirrup in coucherde soleil and ultramarine. His hair was dark and oleaginous, and his shirt was cream-colored ground, with narrow baby-blue stripes, cut-away col lar and cuffs that extended out into space.

"He also had some other clothes on. "But all over, and pervading the entire man, was the look of hopelessness and corroding grief. With all his good clothes on he was a hollow mockery, for the eyes were heavy with woe.

"The nose also was heavy with woe. "This feature, in fact, was more appropriately draped in token of its sadness than any of the rest. Few noses are so expressive of a general and incurable gloom as this one was. It had evidently at one time been a glad, joyous and buoyant nose, but now it was despondent and low-spirited.

"There was a look of goneness and utter desolation about it that would stir the better impulses of the most heartless.

"The feature had evidently tried to cen-tralize itself, but had failed. Here and there narrow strips of court plaster had gone out after it and tried to win it back, but they had not succeeded

"I said, 'Mister, there seems to be a panic among the component parts of your nose. It's none of my business, of course, but couldn't you get a brass band and call it together? Then you could hold a meeting and decide whether it had better re-

"The gentleman from Chicago went through the motions of wiping the wide waste and howling desolation where his once-joyous nose had been, and then, putting away the plum-colored silk handkerchief with the orange border, he said:

You see in me the victim of a base misrepresentation. In Chicago this season of the year is extremely unhealthy. The intense hot weather carried away the innocent and the good, and I feared my turn would come soon. I heard of the salubrious clime of your mountain city, where the days are filled with gladness and the burning heat of the mighty city by the inland sea never comes. I came here two brief days ago, and you can see with the naked eye what the result has been. It is not gratifying. The climate may in the abstract be all right, but there are certain sudden and wonderful atmospheric changes | KIDNEY DISEASES, that I cannot account for, and they are very disastrous.

"I was sitting in a Second street saloon to-day, talking about matters and things, when the conversation turned upon physicial strength. One thing led to another, and finally I made a little humorous remark to a young man there, which remark I made in Chicago many times without disastrous results, but the air clouded up all of a sudden, and in the darkness I could see Roman candles going off, and pin wheels, and high priced rockets, and blue lights, etc.

"Shortly after that I gathered up what fragments of my face I could find, and went down to the doctor's office. He held an inquest on my nose, and I paid him for it. I shall go back to Chicago tomorrow. I shall not be as handsome as I wss, but I have gained a good deal of in formation about the broad and beautiful West which is priceless in value to me.' "All I wished to say was this: If you see fit to mention this matter to the public, tone it down as much as possible, and say that for a bilious, nervous tempera ment perhaps the air here is too bracing. "I have considered his sensitive feelings, and have tried to give the above account in fair and impartial tones."

DEIGART'S OLD WINE STORE. Brandy as a Medicine.

The following article was voluntarily sent to Mr. H. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a prominent practising physican of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice It is commended to the attention of those afficted with Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the destructive diseases which sweep away their annual thousands of victims. With a purely philanthropic motive we present to the favorable notice of invalids—especially those afflicted with that miserable disease Dyspepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE.

Brandy. The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly, or all their ills and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is REIGART'S OLD BRANDY.

A Sovereign Remedy

Sold by our enterprising young friend, H E SLAYMAKER. This Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preterence over all other Brandies no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifies would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case of ases. In proof of the curative powers of Reigart's Old Brandy,

In cases of Dyspepsia, we can summon numbers of witnesses—one case in particular we cite:—
A hard-working farmer had been afflicted with an exhaustive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he had sour eructations constantly—no appetite—in fact, he was obliged trestrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Root Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as now preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed carnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try Reigart's Old Brandy, In his case, he looked up with astonianment, but after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily: the used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which herehose to eat. He still keeps it and uses a lit-tle occasionally; and since he has this medi-cine he has been of very little pecuniary bene-fit to the doctor.—A Practising Physician.
