----The President's Removal.

The majority of the physicians in charge of the president have decided that it is not now prudent to gratify the president's desire, and that of the public, that he shall be moved from the White House. This is not a unanimous opinion of the physiciaus.and we unfortunately do not know who were the dissentients. The majority in numbers in the medical board is a very different thing in the public judgment from the weight of its opinion : Dr. Agnew's judgment would be generally accepted as of more value than that of any of the others. He is superior to Dr. Hamilton because he has had great experience as a physician as well as a surgeon. If we knew his view of the propriety of the president's removal we would be quite content to accept it; though we do not see why such removal could not be made without injury to the president even though no good would come of it. The president is desperately ill; and it may be that it is prudent in his physicians to do no extraordinary thing, such as his removal would be, to bring down criticism upon them in the event of the fatal termination of his illness, which now seems so probable. If this selfish view of the matter has been taken by the majority of them they have been wise in their decision : and there was so much selfishness displayed by Dr. Bliss in seizing upon this case that we do him no injustice in suspecting that he has been moved by a regard for his own skin in voting to keep the president where he is. It is stated that he was opposed to the removal; and that is a very good reason why the wisdom of the decision should be distrusted.

The physicians unanimously declare that the president is not affected by malaria; and that must be accepted as a fact. But this is not a declaration that the atmosphere of Washington is the best that the patient could have. We have the judgment of physicians here in whom we have confidence, that the president should have been removed from Washington immediately after his wound. Dr. Carpenter long ago declared that he should have been taken away from the air that blows over the is the first student from this vicinity. adjacent marshes to a purer atmosphere, which might have been found even so close as the Soldier's Home, if it was impracticable to take him to the mountains; and Dr. Atlee has lately expressed a similar view to one of our contemporaries.

We are sorry now that we did not keep quiet about it until the Honorable Commissioner got home ; we would, if we had every citizen, and in time of war or other known he was away : for we do not wish to prematurely cut short his summer ramble among the delightful mountains sities or his deserts-has any 'claim' to and sulphur springs of Virginia. The doctors claim that the operation was successful and that no more troble will come from the swelling. They telegraphed to Dr. Agnew, however, to come on at once, and last night a consultation was held upon the question of removing the president from the White House as a last resort. From all sources, except the attending physicians, it is learned that the president' condition is worse than for several days. The issue hangs upon the next fortyeight hours. If the patient can be revived through such liquid food as can be safely admitted to his stomach sufficiently to improve his shattered system he may yet suc cessfully meet and overcome the complications of a poisoned blood, a suppurating wound, the terrible fever and the periodihowever, it may as well be acknowledged,

State Soldiers' Orphans.

The soldiers' orphans of the state had a reunion in Harrisburg last night, at which Governor Curtin, who founded the schools at which they were maintained and educated until they were sixteen years old, made the principal speech. In his remarks the ex-governor, referring to President Garfield, said that his death would be followed by no agitation except the grief which it would produce in the hearts of the people. The foremost duty of the people would be to properly support his successor. Soldiers' orphans' schools in this state were organized in 1863, and since then about twelve thousand children have been admitted, ten thousand of whom have graduated from them. These orphans have been maintained and educated at an expense of about $7,500,000. The object of the private meeting is to perpetuate the memories of school life.

Sad Fate of a Family Camping Party Canada Lake.

A son and two daughters of Alanson Coe, of Gloversville, N. Y., having been camping out at Canada Lake, about twelve miles from the village, they took their meals at a house close by. They left their prosperous condition. boarding-house after breakfast Saturday morning to go up the lake, and did not come back to dinner, which excited the apprehension of friends, who waited until funeral of Mrs. H.'s brother. after supper, when a search was begun, but darkness coming on, it had to be aban doned. Sunday morning their tent on the island was still empty. A A in height, built of brick with marble trimboat bottom up, was found floating mings. It adjoins that well known localnear the island. On the island the searchers found the clothing of a man, except the trousers, and the embers of a fire, upon which was something that had been cooking. The people on the spot believe that the brother was cooking, and that the two girls got into the boat to row about the island ; that by some mishap the boat upset, and the brother went to the rescue and was drowned with them. A messenger was sent after the father, and he has gone to the scene of the accident. The younger girl was twenty-five years of age. Both o the young ladies were unmarried. The young man leaves a wife and two children.

AT HYMEN'S ALTAR.

Marriage of a Former Lancaster Lady in the Far West.

The following from Maj. Jas. F. Dow-ney's Mining Register, published at Lake City, Col., will be read with interest by the many friends of the bride, formerly of this city :

Hail wedded love ! Thou word that sums all

LOPER-DOWNEY. - Tuesday. August 16th, 1881, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. A. D. Drummond, Harry A. Loper and Miss Josie Downey.

The ceremony was private, only the elatives of the family and two or three personal friends of the groom being present. No cards were issued. This plan was pursued that no friends of the bride's parents might be slighted. After the beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal church had been said the bridal party sat down to breakfast, which had just been finished when the Gunnison coach drove to the door, and in another moment man and wife were speeding down the Gunnison on their way to Eureka Springs and a tour of the states. Bold heart has again won fair lady, and two more hearts heat as one. Thus does history in the life of man and woman repeat itself day after day. Our little darlings, sweeter and dearer than all else ou earth, grow into womanhood. Life links itself to life, and the shalows creep downward, downward, one generation melting into another and finally into eternity. This time it is not the " well wishes of the Register" that follow the happy twain, but the blessings of a father and a mother.

Notwithstanding the privacy of the wedding, the bride was the recipient of a number of very handsome presents. The groom is a real old-timer, and the " boys" parted with their companion of other days regretfully.
