Lewis Clipman, of Oxford, Chester county, is reported to have raised this year ninety-two bushels of Early Rose potatoes of the prospects for the continuance of of the tubers weighing within a fraction of which has placed us so advantageously in large onion, two slices of bread cut into the grain and the provisions the Old small pieces. Cover the bottem of the pan World may want, and we shall probably onion until all the material is used up; Germany to aid us in that respect. over all spread two tablespoonfuls of butter and dredge salt and pepper; just be-fore setting in an oven, add half a cupful of boiling water; bake in a brisk oven for one hour. This is a capital dish not widely known.

The Poultry Monthly says that the Plyand Hamburgs, do not suffer to any ap-preciably extent when hatched late in the season. For late breeding the Brahmas and Cochins are preferred by the Monthly when it is desired to raise them for mar-When well cared for and liberally fed, these late hatched chicks grow wouderfully fast, acquire flesh rapidly, and in six weeks reach a remarkable size.

One of the most productive fruit orchards in New Jersey is owned by S. S. Thompson, a few miles from Pennsgrove. It contains 700 vigorous apple trees, com-prising 100 varieties selected with great care. Of these trees, 509 are in full bearing this year, and a very heavy crop is anticipated. Of the 500 pear trees on this farm, 300 are Bartlett. While the yield of the latter is moderate this year, the size and quality of the fruit are above the aver-

Up to within thirty years Connecticut was famous for its abundant yield of superior peaches; but for many years the trees failed to mature their fruit. Now, however, they are again bearing plentifully, and a good yield is assured this year. Many years ago New Jersey was celebrated for its peaches, but the trees became diseased, and for twenty years after but few peaches could be matured in that state. Within the past two or three years, however, the trees again present a healthy appearance, and much choice fruit is grown there. In Morris county this year there is a heavy yield and the fortunate growers are realizing large profits from the sale of the crop. The Crop of Cornfodder East.

Our Western friends have little idea of the value which cornfodder has in the eyes of the Eastern man. He simply estimates how many bushels of corn he has to the acre, and then wonders how an Eastern man with a less yield than he has, poorer land, and higher rent and taxes, can make the corn crop pay. But the difference, besides of course proximity to market, is in the value to him of cornfodder. In many places quite as much could be had for a field of good cornfodder as for the whole yield of corn. While the Western man suffers his corn to remain uncut to the very last moment, in order to get the fullest ripening to the farthest end of the car, the Eastern man cuts his before it is dry, and as soon as possible after danger of moulding has passed, without regard to whether he has obtained the last pound of grain possible from the crop. Not only does the fodder as well as the corn come into calculation in the profit of an Eastern corn crop, but the husks for cabinet-makers' purposes yield a considerable revenue. It is very difficult to get at the exact profits of this branch of corn product. We have heard farmers say that it was more profitable to feed the husks than to save them for sale; while others contend there is greater advantage in disposing of them, and we should say there was. These things enable one to form some sort of a judgment as to the value of corn husks.
Of course the distance from market will as the estimate that may be placed on them for feeding purposes; but it all goes to show that there is something more than the mere grain which to an Eastern man gives value to the corn crop.

Shoeless Horses. The question of the non-usage of shoes for horses is being again, we notice, revived in England; but we can see no new argument advanced in its behalf. The statement about Xenophon marching his "horses unshed from Cumaxa over the Armenian Highlands to the walls of Trebizond," is again ground over, without there being any positive proof that such was the fact. The argument goes further and says that it would be better for horses to go unshod even over the rough and slippery streets of London; and then at once, regarding this as feasible, the writer figures up how many millions of dollars would be saved annually in consequence. Next somebody—unnamed—is referred to, where this somebody allowed his horses to go unshed for two years "without any trouble." The theory is advanced that nature has provided in the hoof of the horse all that is necessary under all circumstances and in every emergency.

It seems that these questions are started merely to have something to get up a discussion on. It cannot be for any other purpose : as it is wholly improbable—in-deed the idea in fact is ridiculous—to think for a moment that if there was the slightest truth in the practicability of carrying out this project, it would not have been done hundreds of years ago; or that now the shoeing of horses would be continued for a single day. Again, there must have been the strongest possible reasons for originally introducing shoeing at all, involving, as it does, these annual millions of useless expenditure. Working oxen are frequently shod also, and cloven hoofs require it far less than horses. The only reason that such savans continue to exist may be owing to the neglect of the fool-killer in visiting their neighborhood,

Cotton, Iron and Wheat. Before the breaking out of the civil war the greatest cotton crop ever raised in our Southern states in any one year did not exceed 5,300,000 bales. But that crop was quite an unusual one, and was not equaled subsequently until that of the last year, which exceeded it several hundred thousand bales. It is now apparently conceded by all authorities on the cotton question that the cotton crop of the season will reach at least 7,000,000 bales, according to the detailed account received in New York, or 7,250,000 bales, according to the reports made up by the cotton dealers in England. This enormous increase is easily accounted for by the extraordinary prosperity of the South, the rapid increase of railroads in that section, the growth of cotton factories there, and the enhanced magnitude of the staple.

Simultaneously with the appearances of these statements, there appears in print from the American iron and steel association an official publication showing the production of pig iron in the United States in 1880 to be 4,295.414 tons. It wil be perceived that although the pig iron manufac-ture in the United States does not keep pace with the magnitude of the produc tion of cotton, it has got far beyond the limits within which some of its excessively prudent friends have so long sought to restrain and regulate it. We can only, of course, conjecture what will be the pro-duction of iron in 1881. But if we may judge of the unexampled prosperity of the railway interests, and of all the advanced forms of iron manufacture, the production this year may be quite as much a surprise in pig iron as in cotton.

Meantime it is beginning to be apparent that the American grain crop this year would be a fair average one, and that the demand for it from the Old World will be sufficiently large and vigorous to give ample employment to the export trade. ciencies in various countries of Europe and Asia. Here, then, we have the three great leading conditions by which to judge e-third of an acre of land, a number the remarkably favorable balance of trade pound each.

Six medium sized tomatoes sliced, one ized world. We shall have all the cotton, with picees of the bread; above this put a be able to supply all our own wants in the layer of the potatoes and a few slices of way of raw iron and steel, so that we shall onion, then again bread, tomatoes and not need to call upon England, Belgium or

The Harvests of the World. The volume of reports on the harvest of the different countries throughout the world, brought out by M. Estienne annually, is now being issued.

The reports of the wheat crop in France are this year from over a larger area and mouth Rocks, as well as Leghorn, Houdans indicate a better crop than last year. This year's barley is not so good as in 1880 but it is fairly good. The maize crop is very ordinary. Oats and rye are fair. On the whole the crops are not up to those of last year, but wheat is not much below the average. None of the crops will be very bad, but none will be very good.

The crops in Great Britain are described as follows: Wheat is ten per cent. below the average, and likely to realize only ten million quarters. Barley is ten per cent. above the average and oats are twenty per cent. below the average. The year is one in which farmers are not likely to recoup themselves for losses during the past five

In Austria and Hungary the crops are good all round. Wheat and barley are both above the average. Rye is very much, and oats are slightly under the average. The reports from Italy agree that the crops are of medium quality, and much below the abundance of those of 1880. In the Turkish provinces on the Danube the wheat harvest will be medium. Rye is good and abundant. Barley is good as regards quantity, but bad in quality. Oats are very much above the average. All the reports from Russia agree that the barley is the best crop of the year, doubling that of 1880 in quantity, but not so plnmp and weighty. Rye is abund-

Wheat is good throughout Germany. Winter and spring sowings are in marked contrast, the forming yielding good, and the latter very defective crops. Oats are very good. Barley is thin. None of the crops are of the average. In the Prussian states the crops are fair.

The Swiss wheat crop is very poor in quantity, owing to drought, but in quality it is very fine. Oats and barley are good in quantity and quality, but there is a small area sown of the latter. Belgian wheat is far below the average good. Rye and oats are fair. All crops in Spain are bad. All cereals in Holland are in good condition. All reports from the United States agree that the yield will be under the average.

119 Persons Burned in a Barn. Some years ago Russian letters reported that 117 persons had been burned in a barn. Naturally, the story was received with incredulty, but the St. Petersburg Golos declares that it is only too true. According to this journal, 119 women and girls employed on a large turnip farm in the district of Putinol, in the government of Koursk (Southern Russia), were much issatisfied with the bread supplied by the farm steward, alleging that it was unfit for food, and threatening to leave off work. After their dinner they all withdrew to a barn to rest during the hottest period of the afternoon. The steward locked them in and went away; but four farm laborers came and set fire to the barn.

The fire spread rapidly through the building, which was like tinder, and soon the whole barn was in flames. The shrieks have much to do with their value, as well of the unfortunate prisoners soon brought some people to the spot. They could not help because the doors opened inward, and already the mass of frantic women so jammed the doors from within as to make any effort to open them fruitless. Five women were taken out alive, but so burned that they died immediately.

All the remaining 114 perished on the spot. One of the incendiaries went off and drowned himself straight away; the other three are in prison.

Complications It the thousands that now have their rest and comfort destroyed by complication of liver and kidney complaints would give nature's remedy, Kidney Wort, a trial they would be speedily cured. It acts on both organs at the same time and therefore completely fills the bill for a perfect remedy. If you have a lame back and disordered kidneys use it at once. Don't neglect them.—Mirror and Farmer.
