From Our Regular Correspondent. We have an overabundance of dust on our roads just now and if it doesn't rain soon we will have it in our fields. A great deal of plowing for wheat was done before it became so dry, but a great many of our farmers are now waiting and prayingand farmers do pray-for rain. Our corn will be a fair crop, an excellent promise being countermanded by the drouth at earing time. Our general tobacco crop will not be as long leaved as it would have been with more rain; and the farmers say in the absence of rain there is an almost total absence of seed in the clover heads. If these farmers of ours only had the imaginative control over the weather possessed by Johnson's "learned astronomer," and could bring a shower just when they wanted it, they would certainly "knock the bottom out" of farming.

They might irrigate. Tobacco. We are crazy over tobacco, and we have acres and acres of as good tobacco as ever grew, a great deal of ordinary, and scarcely any poor. Buyers are kicking up the dust in every direction and blowing some of it into some of the farmers' eyes, too. A number of the buyers say they are merely on tours of observation and will buy for no price till the weed is marketable, and are calling their brother craftsmen, who are buying offering such tempting prices, ools," "Irregulars," "Jackasses," We will not sell much till it is stripped.

John Dougherty, the warmest Democrat in the state, says he raised on his, near Eldora, the biggest tobacco in three townships. He has it measuring 451 inches long and 26 inches wide. There's no use disputing the measure, for Mr. Dougherty

Miss Rachel Clark's friends gave her a very pleasant birthday surprise last week. The presiding elder preached at Zion church, Fairfield, Sunday.

Mr. Thomas McSparran and Miss Maggie Morrison, of Mexico, Missouri, who have been visiting their friends here for three weeks start West this week.

As Miss Sallie Sides and Sallie and Daisy King were driving through Fairfield, last Saturday evening, the holdingback-strap of the harness broke near S. J. Boyd's store, and the horse ran for about one-half a mile, when it was caught at S. C. McSparran & Co.'s store by Mr. Edwin Gregg. The ladies suffered no injury, but were well shaken up and dusted. Miss Sides exercised her proficiency in horsemanship to good effect, and at one time had her horse almost stopped, but coming to a hill she lost control of him and was completely exhausted when rescued by the gallant Mr. Gregg. The fair passengers made good use of their lungs in their rapid transit through the village, and as many people after them as followed the "miller of Dee" when he went to ride with "his three children." Miss Sides collided with Mr. Barton Acheson on the journey, and greeted him rather unceremoniously by taking a shaft from his buggy.

Artist and Fisherman.

Lord Engremont once invited Turner to stay a week at Petworth and paint two pictures for him of some favorite bits of scenery on the estate. On the first morning of his visit Lord Egremont asked Turner what he should like to do, and the great's painter replied that he would go The next morning at breakfast Lord E inquired again what it would please Mr. Turner to do; and he replied, that having enjoyed himself so much yesterday he would go fishing again. On the third morning Lord Engremont thought he would wait for Turner to aunounce his plans and was greatly amused when he quietly said he was going fishing.

On the fourth morning Lord E., unable to conceal his anxiety, said : "Well, Mr. Turner, I am only too glad for you to enjoy yourself, but you are talking of going away to-morrow, and I felt anxious about the pictures." "Come up-stairs to my room," said Turner, "and set your mind at rest." Nothing could exceed the sur-prise and delight of Lord Egremont when Turner introduced him to two exquisite pictures painted as he had desired. The great man had risen each morning with the sun, and before breakfast had, by a good day's work, earned his pleasure in

The " labor question " and the question of taxation are the great practical problems of Fijian life. It is not easy to ascertain how far "blackbirding" or cooley-stealing prevailed before the annexation. Mr. Cooper's own accounts of the matter seem rather inconsistent. At present the governor does his best to secure the return of imported laborers to their homes when their term has expired. Mr. Cooper thinks that these half-civilized returned emigrants raise the moral tone of their neighbors. It is certain that the Solomon Islanders seem to have become rather more than less savage during recent years. An amusing story is told of an imported Polynesian nurse who re turned to her own people after she had served her time. A "recruiting agent" met her and asked her if she would return

"Well," said the girl, "I like it, but I don't know if my pa will let me go." "O, I see; the old folks live here,

" My pa live here, but ma's dead. ' "Oh, how did the old lady die ?" "Gentleman come visiting, and pa get icalous; so he fight and kill ma, then he put her in a loco (or oven) and pa and his friends eat poor ma all up."
