Ironsides 8, Friendship 6. Ever since the Ironsides defeated the Friendship club some time ago there has been a great deal of talk about both by lovers of the game in regard to their play- mouth-organ. ing abilities. Notes of	the Game.

There was considerable trouble about umpires during the day until Mr. Reiter of the Colle e nine was secured, and his decisions gave satisfaction to both nines. The Friendship club have not given up the game by any means, and it is said that they will again play the Ironsides. On Saturday next the Ironsides and College nines will play on the grounds of the latter, and an excellent game may be known.

Grateful Kains,

There was a fine shower of rain in this city last evening, which laid the dust, refreshed the vegetation and cooled the atmosphere. Since Saturday morning there have been showers in different parts of the county, all the river districts getting a refreshing sprinkle on Saturday. But the county can stand and sorely needs a great deal more to relieve the drouth and raise the streams. The equinoctial stor m cannot be far off.

The rain of last evening has at least done some good, namely, in cooling the atmosphere and in cleaning our streets and gutters which contained considerable filth. No severe shocks of lightning were felt nor loud explosions of thunder heard, although we had plenty of light cases of both. A large number of citizens, despite the drenching rain which was falling, gathered on the coal chutes and along Front street to witness the beautiful sight of the lightning running along the oppo-site side of the river. It would begin at the lower end of Wrightsville and the closely wooded hills would be brilliantly lit up as far as the eye could see. The river below the dam, as everyin Columbia knows, is dotted small and large islands, and with here the flashes of lightning would present such a grand scene that the many who saw will long remember it. About a quarter of eight a large ball of fire was seen coming directly from the clouds. At a point a short distance below the dam it appeared to touch the tops of the trees, and rom thence it went rolling along over hill and tree top until it was lost in the dim

IN MEMORIAM. Miss Edith Wilson Fell Asleep August 31, 1881.

The sad event being announced in the Sabbath School of the Presbyterian Church, of this city, a committee, viz.: Mrs. M. O. Kline, Miss Rachel Jackson and Chas. M. Howell were appointed to prepare an expression of sorrow or the demise of her whom we had learned to love and esteem.

Miss Wilson was pure and unselfish, amiable and affectionate. A gentle, modest presence, a smile of rare sweetness lighted up a countenance full of thought and feeling. These traits of character were most impressive and ever displayed as daughter, friend, teacher and companion, and sanctified by earnest Christian faith. She loved God's kingdom and was in earnest, faithful and efficient worker in the Church and Sabbath School.

In the spirit of sweet submission she endured the afflictions that were laid upon her. With a strong and steadtast hope she humbly waited for the call of her Master, and when he summons came, she was prepared for it and quietly and sweetly "fell asleep in Jesus." May He who thus' comforted His child, pour consolation into the Learts of those stricken ones who so deeply mourn her death.

We will cherish in our hearts the memory of the ardent love and steadfast devotion with which she served the Church and Sabbath School, while we rejoice in the blessed rest which has come to her, and the gracious reward which she has received from Him who never torgets His servants, nor loses sight of the works they do for Him.

Amusements. " The Connie Soogah."-On Wednesday even ing Charles Gayler's Irish drama of " The Connic Soogah" will be produced at Fulton opera house by a company with George Clarke at its head. From a notice of the performance in Scranton by the Republican of that city, the following is extracted: "Mr. Clarke's persona tion of the true-hearted Irish lad, as ready for fun as for fight, was as finished a piece of character acting as it is possible to present. His brogue was unctious and his singing and danc ing were taking. He was ably supported in his humor and pathos by Miss Jennie Yeamans. Her dialect is very good. She sings well, dances gracefully and quietly, and her business throughout is excellent. She is a born soubrette and her humor is decidedly intectious. * * The play is intensely dramatic and thrilling at times. The drama was superbly mounted, the setting of the Devit's Basin, flanked with basaltic rocks, while a cataract plunges into the basin, was realistic to a degree."

THE PRESIDENT HAS A GOOD NIGHT

DANGER STILL PRESENT. HOWEVER.

THE THREATENED ABSCESS.

An Unusually Good Night. ELBERON, September 12.-8:30 A. M .-Official—The president passed an unusually good night: his sleep being uninterrupted, except occasionally to enable him to take nourishment. The suppuration from the parotid has almost entirely ceased. The opening from which the pus discharged is rapidly healing. The cough is less, and the expectoration greatly diminished. Temperature, 98.4; pulse, 100; respiration, 18.

The Apprehended Abscess. LONG BRANCH; N. J., Sept. 12 .- 10:15 M.—The morning bulletin has had the effect of allaying somewhat the apprehension which was caused last night, and it is generally conceded by the attending surgeons that the patient is in a more favorable condition. Whether the lung troubled will pass away or develope into an abscess cannot yet be predicted. If the patient passes a quiet day and maintains the gain made during the night his condition will be more favorable, but until this time lapses it cannot be said that he has entirely overcome the lung trouble. A continued favorable condition, however, may enable him to gain sufficient strength to override any serious results from this apprehended abscess on

He had taken nourishment freely warrant a postponement of the proposed and had some milk punch with brandy trip to the White Mountains, and Post- in it; that the affection of the lung was master General James said this morning nearly if not completely under control, that he would go to New York, but should and that it was a local lobular inflammareturn this evening. The day is bright tion, and would pass away without serious and bids fair to be quite warm. Dr. Bliss More Cheerful.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 12.-12:20 P. M.—Dr. Bliss feels better this morning. He says that the president's pulse is about 100, temperature normal, and respiration but slightly above that point.

ELBERON, N. J., Sept. 12 .- 11:20 A. M .-Postmaster General James saw the president this morning. He says he found him in good spirits and generally much better than he had dared to expect. A brief conversation occurred, during the course of which the president firmly grasped the general's hand and spoke in a very clear voice. The general says his eyes to-day are especially bright and natural looking. The postmaster general was so imprersed with the improvement that he thinks he will yet be able to go to the White Mountains. He has gone to New York this morning on business.

The Lung Complication Less Threatening. As the day passes the president improves, and the surgeons feel more encouraged and express the opinion that the lung complication is under control. The more cautious profes waiting for a time. more cautious prefer waiting for a time before resuming the sanguine feeling with violent symptoms of lead poisoning, which generally prevailed previous to the and at one time were thought to be at the new complication.

A Bright Day. LONG BRANCH, Sept 12, 1. P. M .- Unofficial Bulletin.-At 10 o'clock Dr. Bliss says the president's pulse is 100, temperature 99 and respiration 20, and that he is having a bright day.

Review of the Day LONG BRANCH, Sept 12, 1:15. P. M .-The day opened bright and pleasant, excepting a trifle warm. The morning bulletin was generally considered to be encouraging, and had the effect of allaying to a considerable extent the excitement which was occasioned by the cloomy and decided feeling of apprehension for the patient last night. As the morning progressed the president appeared to gain and the surgeons are of the opinion that the lung complication is now under control and that it will not do serious harm.

At about 10 o'clock Postmaster General James called on President Garfield. On entering the room the postmaster general said, "Good morning, Mr. President." The president returned the salutation and asked Gen. James to be seated.

"Oh," said the general, "I merely called to pay my respects and to ascertain how you were getting along." "But you must sit down," insisted the James-" Splendidly; we have assumed a civil service basis. Since you have been sick there have been no appointments or removals of any note. " The president smiled at this and inquired how the star route investigation was progressing. The postmaster general said : "The investigation is continuing satisfactory. The attorney general and myself are still engaged upon it and we have matters in very good shape." The President-"How much have you saved in your department this year?" James—"In round numbers about $1,500,000."

eyes were extremely bright and was gen erally cheerful. "In fact," said he, "I think his condition, if it continues as favorable as it is this morning, will warrant our going to the White Mountains."

What Swalm Says. General Swaim said a short time before noon to day the president slept from 10 to 2 o'clock last night. He then awoke and took some nourishment and immediately fell asleep again and did not wake till 4 a. m. At this hour he was sponged off and in the course of a few minutes fell asleep again and did not wake till 7 o'clock at

The colonel compares the expectoration with a bad cold, and says to-day that it is very similar to a cold that has been loose and is passing off. "It should be borne in mind," said Col. Rockwell, "that when an improvement in the president's case is noted it is not a great improvement. but rather a slight gain His better days are only slight improvement over his more unfavorable days and often I take his general condition as my guide and can plainly see an aggregate improvement. while it would be almost impossible to point out any particular point which had materially changed."

"Well, Colonel," inquired the reporter, there has been a decided rally since last night, has there not ?"

Attorney General MacVeagh feels very much encouraged to-day and expresses the opinion that the surgeons are confident that the alarming features of the lung trouble have passed away and that ordan is entirely under control now. He does not think that any serious result will be encountered from the affection of that organ heretoforeexplained, "Everything," said Mr. MacVeagh, " looks more encouragaing and I feel much relieved."
