FRIDAY EVENING, SEPT. 16, 1881.

Thrilling Story

A few days ago, as I was riding on an out-of-the-way railroad in one of the old second cars of some more prosperous road, I was very much annoyed by the incessant rattling of the car windows. 'Tis said that misery loves company, and I at last shouted my feelings on the sub ject to the passenger beside me—a middle aged business-looking man—who shouted

"Yes, it's pretty noisy, but it don't mean anything and ain't dangerous." "What!" I shouted, thinking he had not caught my meaning.

"I say it's perfectly meaningless, and don't mean any mischief," he shouted, smiling. "What the mischief do you mean?"

shouted. "You probably never heard a window talk rationally, not to say intelligently ?" he shouted.

"Not that I can remember," said I a little ironically. "Did you?" "I have," said he, "and as soon as we stop I will not only make a window talk, but will probably get an answer from some

I began to think that I had let the man cod me long enough and became very much interested in the scenery along the "Centreville! Twenty minutes for

" Now, just let me sit by that window and I will show you something amusing, and afterwards tell you a story-for thereby hangs a tale.'

I changed seats with him, and he taking hold of the window, began to rattle it at a lively rate, pausing every few seconds to listen. Pretty soon I was surprised to hear a window in the other end of the car behind us rattle in the same manner.

"Now," said the stranger, "ask me a question about the back of some special person sitting behind without either of us looking behind." "Well," said I, "describe to me the appearance of the back of the head of, say the outside passenger in the third seat be He rattled the window and then listened to the answering window. Then he said: "There is no person sitting just there: Try again.' I looked, and sure enough, he was right.

So made it the lifth seat. "Short, black hair, parted behind, one side grey, high shirt collar and coat collar turned up. Railroad ticket in the back of his hat," said my companion, as he lis-

Stepping back I found that the description was correct, one side of the man's head being turned white, probably from disease.

"How did you do it?" I asked as I took my seat again. "By telegraph," said he. "I at first sounded the signal word 'Fire!' over and over till it caught the trained ear of an operator in the other end of the car-and he telegraphed what I wanted to know. So you see that a window may rattle in-

"Yes," said I, "and now about the tale which hangs thereby." He was about to begin when the train started and the unintelligible rattling of the windows stopped him, so he deferred it till we arrived at the junction, where we were to wait a few hours for another. Then we three (the operator had joined us) seated ourselves comfortably, and the stranger began. "Ten years ago I was a telegraph operator at a small town in New Jersey, but my health failing, I gave up my situation, and taking an agency, traveled westward until I reached San Francisco. While there I took a ancy to visit a mining region; so selecting suitable goods for mining, I went and satisfied my curiosity, made a little money and was returning in the stage coach, when the accident I am about to relate occurred, or at least began to sixty and two roughly dressed men, apparently miners. These two men sat at opposite ends of the coach, not appearing to know each other, while the old gentleman and myself sat close together. I noticed that the old gentleman had a tin or iron box between his legs which he seemed to be anxious to keep out of "All right, Bob. We will be at the Big Jump in twenty minutes and then give the word and out he goes."

"Taking a eurious look from between was telegraphing by vibrating the knifeblade between his teeth, while the other used the window for that purpose, neither of them appearing to notice the other.

I knew the precipice to which they re-ferred, a terrible place where a miner had once jumped off in a fit of despair at his bad luck, from which it was known as the Big Jump. How to communicate to the old gentleman I was at a loss to determine but finally I took out a newspaper and underscored the words in a lengthly editorial which, if read consecutively, would read, "Be cautious, sir. These two villians here intend to murder and rob us in ten minutes. When I arise you attack the one with the moustache and I will take the

"Horrible!" said he, slipping his hand into his breast pocket, a stern look coming into his face as he added: "I be-

The next minute I was on him knocking him senseless with my revolver. The old gentleman did equally well, the ruffians being taken completely by surprise at our sudden attack. We had passed the precipice now, and calling to the driver to stop, he and the one outside passenger helped us to bind our prisoners, whom we left inside, while we climbed on top. But when we had reached Sacramento we found they had dropped out along the Curious Hail Storms.

Hundreds of Birds Killed and Much Property Destroyed Near Geneva. A Geneva letter to the London Times says :--Wednesday's hail storm, the occurrence of which I mentioned in my despatch of that day, has occasioned much greater damage in this canton and in Savoy than the first accounts led me to suppose. The phenomena that attended it were both singular and impressive. Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning a thunder storm of extraordinary violence, coming from the region of the Jura, burst over the valley of the Leman, above Geneva. For the space of more than an hour the thunder and lightning were incessant. The lightning was of a bright red color, the flashes followed each other so rapidly that there was no visible solution of their continuity. All this time there was no down-fall. Then, about 4:30, two great columns of "Three weeks' stop at Rose Hill, Mr. hall, unaccompanied by rain, were pro-stamford's home, with its lovely walks jected from the clouds. One seemed to come from the west, by the Fort de society of Ella and Blanche Stamford, l'Ecluse, the other from the northwest, by the Col de la Faucille. In three minutes the hail was followed by a heavy down-fall of rain, which continued several hours; but in those three minutes incal culable damage had been done.

So thickly did they fall that the fields in many places were as "About this time Mr. Stamford at his white as in mid-winter; and in the after noon, after twelve hours' rain and sunshine, they lay on the ground in heaps Even this morning they were not all gone. with bunches of grapes, pears, apples and plums, and a grape, if ever so slightly touched by a hailstone is spoiled. After a few days' exposure to the sun it begins to decay and is of no use for wine-making. Many of the paasants are in despair, for they were counting on the vintage, which was of splendid promise, to make good to them the losses they have incurred by the long drouth. There was no wind and the hail fortunately fell straight; otherwise the damage would have been much greater. Skylights were broken, roofs damaged and conservatories and other glass houses almost destroyed; but the windows, for the most part, are untouched. "One quiet summer night I had retired to my room in the second story, and lay thinking of the happy possibility of other side of the lake, 600 dead and mutilated swallows, shaffinches, and sparrows were picked up in the Place de l'Eglise, under three plane trees, in the branches of which they had sought refuge from the storm. Bellerive, also on the other side of the lake, was still more unfortunate ; it was both devastated by the hail and struck by lightning. Many fine trees were burst asunder; and the pieces were thrown to a distance of fifty paces. On Saturday last an equally destructive storm visited the district of the Morges, also on the lake, and on Sunday a pillar of hail, as it is here the custom to designate a hail storm, committed great havoe in the valley of Broie, canton Vaud. The tobacco plants were pretty nearly all destroyed, and Granges alone (a small commune of only 800 inhabitants) sustained damage to the extent os 40,000f. But calamitous as these storms have been, they are surpassed by that of July, 1875, when hardly a whole pane of glass was left in the canton of Geneva, trees were stripped of their foliage, and calves killed while grazing in the fields; or the one that befell a few weeks ago in Aargau, when the hail literally plowed up the ground, smashing ungathered potatoes as if they had been pounded in a mortar. A gentleman who had passed a long life in the canton assures me that the hail storms of July, 1875, and that of last Wednes day are the most destructive that have occurred within his recollection; and his recollection goes back half a cen The midnight marauder should not be ban ished from our dweiling any more quickly than should a Cough or Cold of any kind be driven from the system. SUGGESTIONS IN TIME.

What a Woman of Prominence in the Medical World Has to Say About Her Sex.

Synopsis of a Lecture Delivered by Mrs. Doctor Kenton, Before the Woman's Society of New England.

From the Home Journal, New York, From the Home Journal, New York.

In all ages of the world, poets, scientists and men of prominence have looked with enthusiasm often akin to reverence upon woman; but it is only within the last few years that she has begun to assume her right place, not only in society, but with the world in general. Why so desirable an end should have been so long delayed it is difficult to understand; but that it has at last come is certainly cause for gratitude. In her social sphere, in her mental development and especially in her physical improvement, woman has shown wonderful advancement and such as astonishes the world.

They who have made a careful investigation They who have made a careful investigation tell us that heathen women are much more able to endure pain than are the women of civilization, but civilized women would resent the charge that they are weaker because they are civilized. A distinguished writer "If the women of civilization are les None of the hailstones were smaller able to endure the taxation of their physical resources than are heathen women, it is a mere accidental circumstance and one within their control," Let us consider for a moment the possibili ties which present themselves to every wo-man. When the body is healthy beauty is cer-tain to appear, even in features and forms once plain; indeed, it is the only known way to become beautiful, and all other preparations, powders, stays and laces are contemptible de-lusions. With health and beauty in all their attractiveness a new life dawns.

ENJOYMENT BEGINS

body come forth. The maiden feels the glor-ious responsibilities of life; the mother be-comes conscious of the grandeur of maternity and the joys of a family. All this is not only woman's privilege it is her duty, and it em-bodies the highest definition of "woman's After enumerating many of the blessings that follow perfect health the speaker con-After enumerating many of the blessings that follow perfect health the speaker continued:

All these desirable things can be accomplished, but in one way only. The creator has given both woman and man perfect physical forms, and cach is constitutionally equal to all natural demands. It is a mistaken and pernicious notion that one is strong and the other weak. No curse was pronounced upon woman which did not apply with equal penalty against man. If women believed the intalism that discuse is a necessary condition of their existence is it chefty because the disciples of the schools of medical practice have been utterly incapable of competing with the multitude of ills which, by personal carelessness or professional incompetency, they have permitted to fasten upon women.

A few weeks ago I received a call from a charming lady, whose carnest face clearly showed that she desired advice and assistance. Upon questioning her she stated that she believed she was suffering from a paralyzed liver and wished to know if I could in any way aid her recovery. Now, imperfect as her statement was in regard to the disease which troubled her, there is no doubt that THOUGANDS OF WOMEN are suffering to-day, from similar troubles this lady did. Paralysis means death of the member paralyzed and torpidity of the liver is the first stage of its dissolution. This is one of the most serious questions that can arise in the experience of any woman; for a torpic and discased liver cannot be cured at once and it carries with it the elements of diseas to all the other parts of the system. With ar imperfect liver, billiousness, languor, a sense imperfect liver, billiousness, languor, a sense of bearing down, constipation, displacements, uterine troubles and the thousand ills which are coupled in their train, come thick and fast. Then follow impure blood and all the evils which an imperfect circulation cause. A derangement of the kidneys or liver causes disease in the organs which adjoin them just as certainly as a bad peach injures the other peaches in the basket. Not only this, but when these organs are in a healthy state they restore hese organs are in a healthy state they restor and keep in order any irregularity which may occur in the lower portion of the body. No woman was ever seriously sick for any length of time when such was the case. No serious inflamation can occur when the blood is pure and no blood can be impure when the liver or history are in perfect order. idaeys are in perfect order.

I have seen very much of the troubles and ills to which women have been subjected, and I have learned to sympathize while I have sought to relieve. In endeavoring to carry relief I have tried to be free from prejudice and have in view but one end-namely—to help those who are suffering; and I feel it is my privilega to-day to state that I believe there is a means whereby those women who are suffering can obtain complete reliet and those who are in health becontinued in its en-joyment. A few years ago a prominent and wealthy gentleman residing in Rochester, N Y., was given up to die of Bright's disease of the kidneys. By means of a simple and purely vegetable remedy he was restored to perfect ealth, and has since been the means of saving he lives of many others. So efficient did prove in the case of many well-known men, that it began also to be used by ladies, and te-day, thousands of women, in all parts of the land, owe their restored health and continued happiness to the wonderful power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Mr. Warner has the writien testimony of hundreds of the best ladies in the land, enthusiastically praising the remedy, and thankfully expressing their grat-itude for health. These letters are sacred, and cannot be given to the public, but they over whelmingly verity all the lacts above stated Nature has given woman a delicate, watchful alert instinct and she has found this remedy to be whather to reason has needed, to restor by what her ext for years has needed, to restore and maintain the pertection of nature. She resents the imputation that she is bound to suffer all the fils that attack her. She recognizes that suffering is but an incident of her existence, and that this incident is wholly within her control, if she can find the necessary helps which nature provides. The changeable character of our climate, the oftimes exacting enervating customs of society, of fashion and of necessity, all conspire to impair the vitality of women. If we add to these the exhausting duties of motherhood, and the mental anxiety for the success of her husband in all his laudable ambitions, which play upon her energies, is it surprising that thus burdened she should break down under the physical strain? By no means—on the contrary the wonder is that she has maintained her physical strength as she has.

I have not the time to claborate this point. You yourselves very well know what the cir-

You yourselves very well know what the cir cumstances are which have rendered her life a burden. You also know that the PRIMARY CAUSE

I physical degeneration is impure blood. The performance of the natural functions of womanhood and motherhood is not a disease, nor should it be so treated. Disease is the re-sult of the transgressions of physical laws by our ancestors or by ourselves, and the natural coursings of the blood should not be so con-sidered. If, however, the blood be impure, it is certain to produce its poisonous effects in the paris with which it comes in contact, and thus cause inflammations and the innumer able ills that make the physical life of woman so hard to endure.

An enumeration of the troubles to which

An enumeration of the troubles to which woman is subjected, and the adaptability of the remedy above named for their cure was then made by the speaker, who continued:

I am aware a prejudice exists against proprietary medicines, and that such prejudice is confirmed of the well-founded, but we should discriminate in our judgments and not condemn all because some are inefficient. The merits of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure have been proven beyond a doubt, because they all because some are inclinent. The merits of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure have been proven beyond a doubt, because they deal directly with the causes of all female troubles; they effect and control the body of the tree rather than its branches. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has indeed been a blessing for the rich; a boon to the poor. It has lifted men from a bed of death and restored them to vigor and health. But greater and better than all this, it has come to woman, has raised her, restored her and kept her in constant hopefulness and health. It has kept back disease by fitting the systemeto resist its attacks; it has regulated the life, purified the sources of life, and brought innumerable blessings out of numberless wees.

The women of America, both young and eld, have greater opportunities to-day than those of any land in any age. Their rights are more fully recognized, their privileges greater and their possibilities unlimited. They are permitted to enjoy life to its fullest extent, and to do this their bodies must be unimpaired. I their possibilities unlimited. They are permitted to enjoy life to its fullest extent, and to do this their bodies must be unimpaired. I congratulate the women of this free land that the keenness of their perceptions has led them to discover their necessities and what will satisfy them. I congratulate them that they, who have reaped the greatest benefits from the scientific researches of independent investigation, are to-day the most enthusiastic proclaimers of the merits of this great remedy of which I have spoken. The spirit of intolerance, I may say in conclusion, so rampant in this age of free investigation when all things are judged by what they are and not by what they seem, must eventually give way to the better, wiser, nobler liberality in which alone can be found true security, true peace, true health and true happiness,
