A Surprise in in Store for Somebody. Philadelphia Ledger's N. Y. Correspondence The Republican state convention has finished up its work, and, by the time this reaches the Ledger office, its members from other parts of the state will be well on their way home. The result, you will ob- 1:45 p. m. serve, fully bears out the previous statement of your correspondent that peace and harmony would prevail, instead of a storm, in consequence of the astute management of the machine at the critical moment by President Arthur in keeping his friend Mr. Conkling out of the convention, and prevailing upon his "Stalwart" followers to retain from anything like factious resistance, either to a Half-breed organization of the convention or to the subsequent nomi nations. The Half-breeds, however, will make a bad mistake if they suppose they have made an end of the Utica "ex-boss," and an equally bad mistake if they sup pose that he voluntarily absented himself from the academy, as if from an apprehension that he would be beaten there.

There was another power quietly, but offsetually at work to approach is absented. effectually at work, to ensure his absence, and in due time that power (unless some unforeseen change in somebody's mind occur in the meanwhile ) will invite him out of the valley of humiliation to "go up higher." Depend upon it, there is a sensation in store for the Halt-breed brethren, of a character to make them suspect that after all "things are not what they seem." Meanwhile the president has not only preserved the unity of the party in New York, but obtained a vote of confidence from a convention which was engineered from first to last by open opponents or lukewarm friends. Mr. Arthur has always been credited with being the most adroit political manager in New York, and the great things which he has now so quietly and unobtrusively accomplished will have to be added to his account.

Voorhees to the South.

In his speech at the opening of the Atlanta cotton exhibition, on Wednesday, Senator Voorhees urged the Southern people to manufacture their own cotton. instead of sending it to New England and to Europe for spinning and weaving "at an expense which is always deducted from its price." Mr. Voorhees continuing said: The manufactures of the East and Middle states were nurtured by the government when unable to stand alone. I am prepared to say that within proper and sale limits and with primary consideration for the agriculturist as the foundation and beginning of everything, the same policy of encouragement thing, the same policy of encouragement thing the same policy of encouragement the same policy of encouragement things and with property of the same policy of everything the same policy of encouragement the same policy of en which has heretofore in general marked our legislation should now be continued to ST. PAUL'S M.E., CHURCH, S. QUEEN ST.

Live Minnesola Democrats.

The Democratic state convention of Minnesota, met in St. Paul. General H. Minnesota, met in St. Paul. General H. H. Selby was chosen permanent chairman. Resolutions were adopted declaring for the honest payment of all obligations resting honest payment of all obligations resting upon the state; expressing sorrow for the death of President Garfield and reaffirming the principles of the last Democratic nation of convention. A ticket was nomination of convention. A ticket was nomination of convention. A ticket was nomination of convention. nated, headed by General R. W. Johnson for governor, and Justices Clark, Dickens and Mitchell of the supreme court (the two latter Republicans), were endorsed for election.
