Discussing the Action of J the Fire At the monthly meeting men's union in the Human nose house last night, President How and Secre tary Goodman in the ches, Chairman Jacob Gable, of the comn. tee appointls, to confer with the committee of councild reported that the conference had been he h and propositions submitted by the firemen (as already published), but they received no satisfaction from the councilmen. men

Mr. Cox, of councils and also of ived union, being called upon reported the recent action of councils on the fire department (as has been fully published in the INTELLIGENCER) and he said that though as a member of councils be did all in his power to prevent such action, he believed it was the duty of all firemen to assist councils as much as possible in making the new system a success. He explained that the city proposed to rent the houses and apparatus of some of the companies, elect engineers, etc., who will be paid salaries, and run the department entirely.

Mr. Joel Haines, of the American, exchief engineer, was at a loss to know if this contemplated a continuance of the company organizations, and their ownership of their present property; he did not young gentlemen who was present says he was "feeding" the girls "taffy" all evenwant to obstruct the city's purposes but the American would not allow its engine to go into irresponsible hands,

Mr Jacob Wilhelm, of the Humane, reported that his company had lately resolved to neither lease nor loan any of its property to the city; if the municipality wants to run a paid fire department let it buy and build the necessary equipment; it can buy the Humane house, but enough would certainly be asked for it. He was in favor of the resolution already passed, giving notice that the department would go out of service if the appropriations were not increased, except that the time given to the city was too long; he would have the doors of the engine houses nailed up within eighty days instead of six months. As to councils he thought that anybody that would do one thing and at the next meeting turn around and reconsider their action needed watching.

A. H. Hammond, of the Washington, reported that as yet his company had taken no action in the matter; they would likely at the next meeting.

Mr. P. S. Goodman, of the Shiffler, said that his company would hold its regular meeting on Tuesday next, and determine what action to take; the members were generally against the course of councils : they might rent their room but would not lease the apparatus.

Mr. Gable, of the Sun, counselled moderation and no decisive steps until the final action of the city government be officially determined upon. Wilhelm again took the floor and induly-

ed in a long tirade against councils, the ignorance and inconsistency of its members, and predicted that at the next meeting the call system would be abandoned on account of its expense. President Howell thought with Mr. Gable that it is best to take no action at

Sher Smith, of the Friendship, also exchief engineer, understood the call system, as he had seen it work, and if the object in adopting it was to prevent incendiary fires he did not think it would have that effect. He did not think that volunteer firemen are as a rule incendiaries. The class of men who fire these buildings (if the fires were incendiary) were as a rule those who have no employment, and in his opinion they would, if the system is adopted, continue their work in order to get regular employment as firemen. Mr. Haines was in favor of gracefully submitting to councils and giving the new scheme a fair trial. As to the hard knocks received lately by the American he believed that a great deal of the discreditable conduct charged upon its members was due to the discussion over the abandment of the volunteer system, which had led some of its members to the conclusion that if the volunteer department is to be abandoned it is best to break it up as soon as possible. A certain class of citizens opposing the department, its usefulness is destroyed, and this being the case it had better go out of existence and the new system take its place. Wilhelm again took the floor and scorned the idea of 'he city keeping up a paid fire department when it now regu larly fails to pay the appropriation in due time. He closed with an attack upon the newspapers for speaking in favor of a paid department. "The men running it, he said, "are Bobby Clark, of the INTEL-LIGENCER, Josh Lyte, of the Examiner, and Snowy Kendrick, of the New Era, the gospel sheet on the corner."

Haines said the volunteer department is already discharged; Wilhelm thought then the doors ought to be nailed up; President Howell suggested postponement of action; Mr. Gable favored enlightenment of ignorant councilmen; Mr. Haines was opposed to firemen lobbying as undig nified; and Mr. Goodman thought the union would go out of existence before long, as he firmly believed that the call system would soon be in working order, as in his opinion it should be. It was his most earnest desire that the volunteer system be abolished and the new system Adjourned.

Man Found Dead in Washington. "WASHINGTON BOROUGH, Oct, 12, 1831. 1. Deputy Coroner J. P. Frank : "Please come down immediately to hold an inquest over the body of a man found dead this morning. Call at my place when you arrive, as the case is in or near my residence. Come as soon as you can as the family is desirous to lay the body out. We can get a jury when you see me.

"Respectfully, J. L. SHUMAN."
The above dispatch was received this merning by Squire Frank, and its contents are the only points yet found out about the matter.

Perils of Railroading. It is a wonder that more accidents do not happen on the railroad. A great number of freight cars are without platforms, and 'he men either have to stand on top of the cars or on the bumpers, the latter being an exceedingly dangerous positition, as there is no telling when a coupling may prison. break, and in this case the person standing there runs great danger of being jerked off the train. Especially at this time with the cars from New Jersey and the west. Nearly all the P. R. R. cars have platforms on. It will be remembared that a short time ago, Mr. Jerry Long, a brakeman, met his death on one of these cars that had no platform. Superserviceable Police.

It is complained that some of our policemen have a new way of arresting vagrants. Some time ago a beggar went into the vard of a well known citizen and asked for something to eat, which was given to him. He also received permission to sit on the porch to eat what was given him. jury this afternoon rendered a verdict in While doing so a policeman entered the favor of the plaintiff for $150. yard and arrested him. The lady of the house requested that the beggar not be taken into custody. Thereupon the officer swore in a manner that was disgraceful.

At another time, when a tramp had been engaged to do some work at the house where the above incident occurred another policeman, well-known as the "tramp catcher," entered and attempted to arrest the man, but upon being informed that he was working there, after demurring a little while, went his way. By an act of Assembly passed in 1877, begging in this state is a crime, as is also swearing. But at the same time the officer, before arrestng the beggers, must see him beg or have a warrant. In neither case did the above officers see the men beg nor had they warrants. Arresting without warrants is too freely done here.

In the course of the meeting upon the announcement of Mr. Haines and at the motion of Mr. Goodman the union resolved "That in the death of George J. AN OLD TAVERN SIGN.

"Wm. Pitt, Earl of Chatham." Henry C. Demuth, tobacconist, is making some extensive improvements to the building No. 118 East King street, and fitting it up as a residence for his son Ferd. A. Demuth. During the progress of the work an old tavern sign has been taken down from the garret, where it has been stored away for the past forty years. The sign is of the old-fashioned pattern, about four feet in width and five feet in height, such as used to swing in front of almost every tavern. It has painted on both sides of it nearly full length portraits of Wm. Pitt, the Earl of Chatham. The painting was done by the late Jacob Eichholtz, Lancaster's most distinguished portrait painter, and was probably in its day a fine work of art, but the storms of many winters have eaten away a great part of the paint and left the wooden board on which it was painted almost bare. The earl is represented seated at a table on which are piled some papers, and in his hand he holds a manuscript. He is dressed in full court dress, including a large white wig, a white neck-cloth, a highly ornamented red coat, knee-breeches and white stockings. Above the portrait are the words "Wm. Pitt, Earl of Chatham, and in one corner is the name of the artist "Jacob Eichholtz, pinxt." On one side, the name Chatham, is spelled "Chat harm." Below the portrait hangs a narrow board on which is painted the name of the proprietor of the tavern "Henry Deffenbaugh,"

How long before 1808 Henry Deffenbaugh kept the tavern we do not know, but from that time on until 1838 he appears to have been proprietor, as the pro perty is assessed in his name and his name appears also in the list of sixty city tavern keepers license in that year. It is said that the first anti-Mason meet ing ever held in Lancaster county was held at the Wm. Pitt hotel. It is represented as being a small affair, but the meetings held there afterwards were "great outpouring of the people," and anti-Masonry swept the county, and kept control of it for many years.

In 1839 or 1840 the property was bought by Mr. Demuth, who remodeled it as a home for his mother, who died in 1841, in the 97th year of her age. Since then the property has remained in the possession of the Demuth family.

DR HOLLAND DEAD. The Distinguished Author Passes Away Suddenly this Morning.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12-Dr. J. G. Holland the author, died suddenly this morning. [Josiah Gilbert Holland, M. D., was born in Belchertown, Mass., July 24, 1819, and very early in life abandoned the practice of medicine for journalism. He was school superintendent of Vicksburg, Miss; associate editor of the Springfield Republican, and soon became one of the most popular and prolific of American litterateurs. He never reached the first rank of but his talents were varied and his style popular. He wrote the "History of Massachusetts;" "the Bay Path." a novel; "Bitter Sweet," a dramatic poem, and "Kathrina;" and his "Gold Foil Hammered from Popular Proverbs" and "Timothy Titcomb's Letters to Young People" were homilies with good moral tendencies, which achieved an immense circulation and have had a widespread influence for good.
