Social Depreciation of the "Songstress." Lucy H. Hooper's Paris Letter. What a mistake she has made, setting aside all the moral aspects of the case, die this gifted, petted creatura, who, so few years ago, was as much a social idol as she was a theatrical one ! She was sought for and caressed by the proudest dames of the old French noblesse, and the Marquise de Caux had as brilliant and successful a career off the stage as Adelina Patti upon it Now all that is changed. Every door that once flew wide open at her approach on the Faubourg St. Germain is now closed against her. She was not happy in her married life, it is true, but at all events the husband was her own choice; it was a love match on her side, at least, and moreover with her lay honor, and good re-pute, and the spotless name that had lent lustrue to art, being that of its greatest artiste. As a famous prima donna said to me sadly one day, "She had done as much to lower our profession in the eyes of the world as Jenny Lind did to exalt it." And poor little woman, in the headlong obstinacy of her infatuation, she puts it totally out of the power of even her warmest friends to say, "I do not believe it." will not even so act as to permit her friends to ignore the present state of affairs. Nicolini is always en evidence, in a box at the theatre or behind the scenes when she sings, at her side when she drives out, in her drawing room when she receives company-he is always the prominent figure in the scene, which is in abominably bad taste, to say the least of it. And from all that I hear poor little Patti did not improve matters much by exchanging her thralldom to M. de Caux for her bondage to M. Nicolini. Her chains in the first instance might be heavy, but they were hopest matrimonial fetters at least. Now, though they wear the semblence of gar-lands of roses, I am told that the iron underneath the flowers is no less weighty and galling. Nor are the claims upon her purse less heavyor constant. Instead of paying the play debts of the Marquis de Caux she is now called upon to support the whole Nicolini (or Nicolas) family, to give them their right name, including the five chil-dren of the gentleman hlmself. Then the purchase of the Welsh castle was another immense mistake. It has cost her oceans of money, and she can find no purchaser who will take it off her hands, even at a drug but are intended expressly to cure and great loss. The residents of the neigh-borhood refuse to associate with her, and The celebrated Dr. Hammond, of New even her servants treat the poor little woman with marked disrespect. "I ever give them champagne to drink," she said, piteously, one day, "but that does not make them behave a particle better." She actually fancied, this petted darling of society and art, that she could do as she leased without calling down upon her head the penalties inflicted upon other women, but she has found out her mistake when it is too late to seek for a remedy. What an ovation she would have had in America had she gone there as the Marquise de Caux, as well as the Queen of Song, the song-bird with unsullied wings as well as with silvery notes! Alas for the folly of so fair and gifted a woman, one, too, who for so many years walked

MARKET AND NINTH STREETS, PHILADELPHIA. DRESS CLOTHS AND CLOAKINGS.

Good judgment should be exercised in buying dress cloths, for, when well bought they make a most desirable and very serviceable suit or dress—something that can be worn almost at all times of the year by a lady or young miss.

Our cloths are manufactured on special orders expressly for us, and are prepared with great care with reference to quality, colors and finish. Some are shrunk, and when they have not been we have them steam-sponged, at the option of the purchaser.

We have these Cloths in low and medium prices. Also of the finest qualities of imported fabrics. ported fabrics.

CLOAKINGS.—We have hundreds of new styles, in lots that the piles reach our ceilings.

Dry goods buyers and cloak manufacturers are requested to make their presence known at the office, and trade prices will be named for quantities.

The most beautiful and handsomest cloths this season for a Lady's Coat, Dolman or Mantle, are the SEAL SKIN CLOTHS. The finest qualities cost high, but when the fact is considered that they require no expensive trimmings, the total cost of the garment is very little more than an ordinary Beaver, and yet they are handsomer and more durable than any other fabric worn for a lady's outside garment, or for trimmings. These goods never crease or press as the silk plushes do. Prices range from $5 per yard ($4 inches wide.) up to the finest qualities imported. For SEAL SKIN CLOTHS AND PLUSHES.

FALL SACQUES, WRAPS AND MANTLES We have the New Green Checks, Tan Checks, Blue and Green Checks, Blue, Green and Cardinal Small Plaids, Broken Plaids and Checks, Invisible Checks, many colors. BOYS' AND MEN'S CASSIMERES. Our Cassimere Department was never in better shape, stock, assortment and sales all large and increasing. This is where you will find many Job Lots bought low—some are not the latest styles, but all good, stong, durable fabrics, such as the boys need for school, in play suits, and men want for working pants and suits.
