REV. DR. GREENWALD'S MINISTRY.

Services Yesterday Morning, Afternoon and Evening of Overshadowing Interest—Cel-obrating the Semi-Centennial of Dr. Greenwald's Ordination to the Lutheran Ministry—Sermon by Rev. Dr. Seiss.

SUPERB FLORAL DECORATION.

Tributes to the Venerable Pastor.

History of a Life Well Spent. Yesterday was a red letter-day in the church of the Holy Trinity. The services had especial reference to the celebration of the 50th year of the ministry of the Rev. Dr. Greenwald, pastor of the church, who was ordained to the ministry just half made by the vestry and the congregation. The church was most elaborately and tastefully decorated. The chancel was fairly filled with the choicest native and quets of beautiful blossoms raised around arch covered with laurel-the outer arch golden colored grasses, bearing the legend "50 years." In the open space to the right and left of the medallion were the dates "1831," and Greenwald, and addressing him, Dr. Seiss flowers. Surrounding the sides and top of and honored pastor of this congregationing their arrangement in charge. Mr.

was filled in every part, and late-comers years, and may your last days be your best a peep inside the gorgeous auditorium.

The opening liturgical service was conduted by Rev. Chas. A. Fry, the assistant pastor, and in the chancel were scated Rev. Dr. Greenwald, pastor, Rev. Dr. Sciss, of Philadelphia, Rev. C. E. Houpt,

The musical part of the services was very fine, being performed by the three choirs of Trinity, Grace and Christ, with organ accompaniment by Mr. B. Z. Shreiner, and orchestral accompaniment by Keffer's orchestra. The chief musical feature was Lloyd's Te Deum, which was well rendered, the solo being well sung by Walter Heinitsh. Luther's battle hymn. 'A mighty fortress is our God," was well rendered, as was also the hymn No. 270, sung to the tune of the National Austrian Seiss from the text found in Luke xii, 42, 43, 44: "And the Lord said, who then is that faithful and wise steward whom his lord shall make ruler over his household to give them their portion of meat in due great day shall say to you: "Inasmuch as season? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Of a truth I say unto you that he will make him ruler over all that he hath.

The reverend preacher said the Saviour likens the church to the family, which consists of a variety of members requiring a watchful oversight for their well being. Order must be enforced; food provided the different members tutored and instructed. To do all this a steward, an officer to administer affairs is necessary. It is clear, according to Christ's own words, that such an officer is necessary to administed the affairs of the church The nature and duties of the office are defined he is secondary to the Lord; one who administers for another, under whose direction he acts. A steward, though a servant, is quite distinct from all other ser vants; there may be many servants but only one steward. He is distinguished from the rest by possessing a delegated authority. He is over the others as the lord is over him. Precisely after this sort has God established His church. He is the Supreme head; His ministers are menial to him; they are His dependants, and have no rights or powers except those conferred by Him. They are not lords over the people, but neither are the people lords ever them. No one can be true to God and disregard the authority of God's ministers. They are the means of communication between Him and his other s ervants; it is from him that the words of duty and direction go out so that all things may move smoothly. Every congregation is a household, a body of servants of the same Lord ; the minister is the steward and representative of God. The steward has many duties to perform: he distributes the necessary food; is entrusted with the storehouses of the Lord and must deal out to all others with a liband must deal out to all others with a liberal hand their necessary supplies, their portion of meat. The proper food for souls is Jesus Christ; He is the Bread of Life; the true Manna that cometh down from heaven. It is the duty of His steward to deal out plentifully to all His servants that no one may be left hungry or anfed. But he must use judgment and give proper food at proper times and places. All are not of the same capacity and do not all require the same kind or quantity of food. Some are babies and must have milk; some are the same kind or quantity of food. Some are babies and must have milk; some are strong men and must have meat; some are weak and feeble and need careful help, and some arrogant and stiff-neeked and need the severity of the law. The wise steward deals out to all classes, and in due season; an ill-timed administration of the bread of life may be as deleterious as unsured to the same with the same and that here he have been the years that are past.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered in the lupon our minutes; that they be published in the church and city papers, and that a conv of them be framed and presented to wholesome food. No one can become a steward unless he has a call; he cannot usurp the place; he that intrudes himself into the ministry by irregular means is a the above resolutions, Wm. G. Baker, suthief. A square base of elegant flowers was surmounted by a large globe entirely covered with red geraniums, studded with white tue, or learning that we enter the pulpit dianthus, the front of the globe bearing to preach, or administer the blessed sacrathe figures "50" wrought in white flowments, but because God has so appointed. ers. The church was even more densely crowded than it was during the morning and afternoon services. Every seat in the auditorium was occupied, the aisles were than the vestibule, and many went away unable to even get a view of the inside of

In the chancel were seated Rev. Dr. Greenwald, his assistant, Rev. Mr. Fry, and the venerable Prof. Haverstick, who, like Dr. Greenwald, was ordained to the ministry just fifty years ago. The open-ing liturgical service was read by Rev. Fry, after which Miss Ella Bardwell, of Philadelphia, sang in exquisite voice, and with much expression the beautiful so-prano solo "Nearer my God to Thee," as composed by Albert J. Holden, and sung by the celebrated prima donna, Miss Emma Abbott.

After the conclusion of the second part of the evening lesson and the singing of a hymn by choir and congregation, Dr. Greenwald arose in the chancel and said he had confidently hoped to be able to preach to the congregation the sermon he Before even the first tap of the big bell in Trinity steeple was heard, the church May God in his providence spare you many weak physical condition and his want of voice would prevent him from doing so. had poor chance of getting either a seat or a peen inside the gorgeous and itorium.

No Such Store.

If there is any such store as Oak Hall in either England or France I could not find it. The nearest approach to it is "La Belle Jardiniere" Paris on the Seine, but any one visiting this store will say Oak Hall does better in quantity to select from, style and make-up of goods, though the prices in the main are cheaper in Paris; because of the cloths without duties, and the cheap labor of France. The people here, however, think our prices are quite low enough, considering all things. American Clothing outranks all other throughout the world for real gracefulness. We have here none of the narrow-breasted and contracted shouldered coats that are so universal abroad. Some of the New York Tailors who have opened branches in Paris are among the most popular artist-tradesmen there, and are well patronized.

The English and French open their eyes wide when told of the size of the Oak Hall Clothing House and its vast stock of ready goods for

It is our purpose and hope always to have Philadelphia lead the retail clothing trade and we are giving our best efforts to improve every year on our cutting, patterns and workmanship. The character of materials we use is no longer an uncertain question. The people know that we are to be depended on for sound judgment (based on experienced) in the goods selected. This year our fashions and finishing would warrant higher rates, but our prices are as reasonable as ever. Signed, were crowded with members of the congregation and others. The regular opening Sunday school services, were gone through with, after which, Rev. Mr. Fry, assistant paster of the church read to the children of the Sunday school a biographical sketch of the life and pastorate of Rev. Dr. Greenwald.
