BART NOTES.

Items of Interest About Georgetown, The general tenor of quiet Bart is disturbed by but little of anything of note.
Mr. George Starrett, wife and daughter have left for Walla Walla, W. T., after a visit of about ten weeks. They go by rail to San Francisco, and from there up the Pacific coast to Washington Territory.

Ben. Fritz, proprietor of the Georgebar room repainted and papered, and things look quite inviting around his public place.

John Martin, M. D., is having his stables and carriage house rebuilt and enlarged, and the premises look considerably better. He contemplates the building of a professional room, or office independent of his house, which will be something he has long needed on account of his large and increasing consulting practice.

The burying grounds of Bart township have been considerably used for the past two weeks, but the interments have been generally persons from other neighborhoods; in fact only one death, that of Mr. Rowe, occurring in this township.

Surprise parties are still numerous; the important ones being one by the children of Israel McFadden on Thursday, the 13th inst., which was a complete surprise to birthday surprise to our constable and load of good country butter that was left for his future use, and considering that butter is hard to get just now at 28 cents. Mr. C. was the gainer of a few days the grocery, "Any good butter?"

B. F. Reed, one of the jurymen from this township, left here this morning, 17th inst., on foot for Lancaster. This was his only way to keep his farm work going on, and he moved off from the "corner" with a lingering gait as much as to say, "Scenes of my leisure I reluctantly leave you-when I have to walk." He will be known in Lancaster by his light brown

Political matters "kind of don't get with eyes wide open." out" among the people here. The issue between the two factions of the dominant party is so conglomerated that the loud thinkers do not know exactly where to stand in the present condition of affairs -Wolfe and reform don't go down all right but the alternative of Democratic Nobie or Stalwart Bailey does not make the thing any too clear to those who made a note of the assassin's cry when the late president was shot." "I am a Stalwart of the Stalwarts and Arthur is president." Stalwart blood is so mingled with the halfbreed blood in this section that it is hard to tell which will be coursing the most free in November next.

HEBREW BALL.

A Grand Affair at Schiller Hatl. The Jews of the city gave a grand ball and banquet at Schiller hall last night. There were about fifty couples, comprising most of the clite of this city, besides several visitors from abroad. Mr. L. Sylvester was master of ceremonies, and Messrs. David G. Hirsh and Louis Astrich floor excellent music for the occasion. At midninght the merry daucers took a rest, and sat down to an elegant banquet. The affair throughout was a very pleasant one

The Kiraify's Not Coming.

The company has undergone a number of changes, but there remain some first-class names, chief among which stands that prince of merry-makers Mr. Wm. A. Mestayer. The music will include selections from "Olivette," "Billee Taylor," "Patience," "The Musketeers," and the famous Tourists' Jubilee Song. Emma Abbott Opera Company .- On Friday afternoon and evening next the Emma Abbott grand opera company, probably the largest and finest English operatic combination now traveling will appear in this city. In town hotel, has had his sitting room and the afternoon Baife's "Bohemian Giri" will be sung and in the evening Gounod's "Faust." The New York Herald has the following notice of Miss 'Abbott's Marquerite in the latter: "Her effort was a magnificent success in every respect. Her words vibrated with emotion warm from the heart. Facial play and gesture born of the sentiment, blended with the song into a full and rounded performance in which art was lost sight of, and Marguerite herself breathed and moved upon the stage. It was a general remark in the audience, that such a consummate actress has not been seen upon

THE NINETEENTH OF OCTOBER.

Why the American People Celebrate the To-morrow will be the one hundredth anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. The salient points in this famous siege deserve the careful study of all who take pride in the glorious chronicle bequeathed to us by our Revolutionary forefathers. We cannot fail to admire the stern precision, efficient discipline and perfect unity displayed in the movements of the allied forces. No Gates and Conway disgraced the cause of free-A Large New and Handsome Steamer for dom by forming cabals; no Lee attempted a dastardly retreat under fire ; no Arnold sold his honor for British gold; and no mean jealousy existed between the French and American troops. All hostility was directed against the common enemy; all acted well their part, and the leading commanders seem to have possessed

That birth-hour gift, the art Napoleon,

Of blending thousands till they move as one. The plan of the campaign was so well concealed that both Clinton and Cornwallis were led to suppose that a movement against New York, rather than an attack on Yorktown, was contemplated by their antagonists. Subsequent operations were also conducted with vigor and efficiency. A well directed fire was poured in upor the British fortifications with such telling effect that the enemy's headquarters were rendered untenable at an early period of the siege. Detachments of American and French soldiers made a successful attempt to capture two hostile redoubts, and a counter movement of the British was repulsed. Next to the skill displayed by the besiegers, our admiration is challenged by the sturdy resistance of the besieged. Howe, Burgoyne and Clinton had contended with comparatively raw recruits, but Cornwallis was greatly outnumbered by troops fully equal in discipline to his own. The numerical superiority of the allies was largely offset by his strong fortifications, but it is impossible to deny that his determined courage had been rarely, if ever, equaled by any British commander since the death of Clive.
