Miss Emma Kessler, after a lingering illness of a couple of months, died at her home last evening about six o'clock. Miss Kessler is a graduate of the high school and had taught one term in one of the primary schools. Her death is mourned by a large number of friends with whom she has ever been a favorite...

Mr. Harry E. Bremer, of Lancaster, who was at Yorktown on Oct. 3, spent Sunday in town. He claims to have the finest lot of relics brought from Yorktown and he says the Lancastrians will go wild over them. He has a piece of the tree under which Cornwallis surrendered; a seat of the brick oven of the Moore house, where the terms of the capitulation were made; a shell that Washington used to carry in his pocket and a button shot off the coat of Gen. Lafayette...

A three feet log lay on the Lancaster tracks, near Hope hotel, on Saturday afternoon, between two tramps. They had been begging at the different houses in that neighborhood and then sat down to divide the spoils. One accused the other of getting the larger portion; but words were exchanged, and a discussion came to blows. The younger was severely cut about the head and face by a brick in the hands of the other, who after throwing him to the ground jumped upon him. Outsiders interfered in time, or murder might have been committed. The one who was so severely whipped was taken into a house and his wounds dressed. The last seen of them they were together; thick as twins...

Co. C returned home from Yorktown on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and a few of its members were in the parade of the regular hours and were hardly fit to eat. They consisted of hard tack, coffee, cheese, one egg, three sweet potatoes, and some very good jam. Before they reached Yorktown they had drunk water and they were forced to drink adulterated salt water or do without. The quarters on the Galatea were very poor. The majority of the companies were compelled to stay in the hold, and those near the gangways were very few minutes drenched with water by waves striking at the side of the vessel. While at Yorktown all had an enjoyable time. Very few of company C's members were seasick, but those who were had it very bad. The hold of the Galatea had a wonderful amount of interesting things in the matter...

A large congregation assembled in the E. E. Lutheran church last evening to hear the "Autumn Sermon," delivered by the pastor, Rev. W. P. Evans. The church has handsomely and elaborately decorated the pulpit and the altar. The sermon was taken into a house and his wounds dressed. The last seen of them they were together; thick as twins...

The Coyle Ferry Tragedy. In the trial of Coyle, of the ferry opposite Marietta, for the murder of Emily Myers, quite a number of Mariettians have been called upon as witnesses for the defense, testifying to the prisoner's weakness of mind, evidenced by his drunkenness, his childishness, his amours and his frivolity, and arising it is held from his views. Among those who were subpoenaed and examined were Thomas Scott, Nicholas Macdonald, Miss Emily Rollins, Melcher Horne, P. B. Shoek, H. G. Beatty, John Campbell, Geo. Spangler, Mrs. Susan M. Carr, Dr. H. M. Alexander, John Stall, James Hogan, John Sargent...

Off for Frederick. The Washington fire company, which leaves at 2:30 p. m. to-morrow for Frederick, Md., will take with it 35 members in uniform and about 20 in citizens' dress, accompanied by the City band. Harry Blicker, who will marshal them, assisted by Fred Yeager. They will return on Thursday evening. Before leaving to-morrow the company will make a short street parade, starting from the engine house at 1:30 p. m. up North Queen to James to Prince, to Orange, to Lime, to East King, to Centre square, to the depot. The hose carriage was shipped to day.

Funeral of Mr. Hockelsteld. The funeral of the late Meshack Rockfield, took place from his residence on Strawberry street, near South Queen, Sunday morning. There was a large attendance of the friends and neighbors of deceased, with a large representation of county and city friends. The funeral discourse was preached by Bishop Kohr, and constituted a glowing eulogium on the good qualities of deceased. Interment took place at Lancaster cemetery.

Passed Through. The new style locomotive, the Fontaine, a full description of which appeared in the INTELLIGENCER on Thursday last, passed through Lancaster this afternoon at 2:40 attached to the second of the express train. It is a curious looking machine and attracted a great deal of attention from the throng gathered in the depot. The only medicinal soap adapted to easy shaving-Cuticura Sizing Soap. A superior improved, strength restored and disease arrested by Malt Bitters.

Runaway Accident. About half past ten o'clock this morning as Rees & Hartman's oyster wagon was backed up against the curbstone in front of the Pennsylvania railroad depot the horse took fright and, dashing across Chest street, almost ran into one of the stores on the opposite side, then making a sharp turn on Christian street to the east end of the depot; and ran to Hartman's stable. The oysters were spilled out and the harness torn, but not much other damage was done.

OBITUARY.

Death of E. F. Cox. Benjamin F. Cox, superintendent of the Lancaster county hospital, died at that institution this morning between 9 and 10 o'clock, after an illness of about two months. His death was caused by a softening of the brain, which is said by Mr. Cox during one of the intensely hot days early in September, when Mr. Cox over-exerted himself in mastering the necessities of the attack of the Western Penitentiary, who met with a fatal accident near Leaman place, this county. Mr. Cox recovered somewhat from the effect of the stroke, and a few days afterwards visited Litz to attend a wedding. While there his mind became materially affected and he had to be brought home. Soon afterwards he was taken on to New York in hopes that he had to be brought home, but he grew so much worse that he had to be brought home, and has been in a critical condition ever since. For several days past his death has been almost hourly expected, and the end was reached this morning at 9:40.

Mr. Cox was born in this city, was a son of the late Thomas Cox, well known in his day as the superintendent of the Slaymaker stage-coach factory, on North Duke street, above the railroad. He was a brother of S. B. Cox, the well-known coach builder, and has two married sisters in Columbia. He leaves also a wife and one married son, and a host of other relatives in this city.

Mr. Cox has held several important offices. He was several years ago a member of common council and president of that body. He was, also, some fifteen years ago, a member of the board of directors of the Lancaster stage-coach factory, and nearly ten years ago was elected superintendent of the hospital, and re-elected year after year up to the present time. He was regarded as a careful and efficient officer, kind to the unfortunate people placed under his charge, and courteous to all having any business transactions with him.

Mr. Cox belonged to several beneficial societies. In 1850 he became a member of Washington camp No. 11, passed through the chairs, and was for some years Dist. Dep. Grand Patriarch of the company. Almost as long ago he joined the Eschakone tribe, No. 22, I. O. R. M., and occupied the "stumps" of that organization. He was also a member of the Conestoga council, No. 3, O. U. A. M. He was a member of all the above organizations at the time of his death. He was also a member of the Old Fellowship association, and his life insured in the Equitable insurance company. He was also, we believe, a member of Trinity Lutheran church.

Mr. Cox was one of the most magnificent physiques, standing six feet two or three inches in height, and of manly and symmetrical form. In his social relations he was pleasant, affable and entertaining, being well informed on most matters of current interest, especially those pertaining to the care of the poor or insane.

Death of Andrew Balmer. Andrew Balmer, freight agent, died at his residence, 510 North Queen street, at an early hour this morning, aged 65 years. About the 1st of July Mr. Balmer went to the state of Indiana on business, and while there was attacked with malaria, which on his return home developed into a malignant affection of the liver, finally terminating in death. Mr. Balmer was a native of Manheim township, this county, and was brought up on a farm. He married a Miss Johnson, by whom he had two daughters. He resided in Lancaster more than 30 years ago, and secured employment in the firm of Miller & Powl, who were then engaged in the transportation business, their warehouse being the large building corner Lemon and Water streets. Subsequently he bought out Mr. Powl's interest and continued the business for some years. Soon after the Pennsylvania rail road company bought from the state the Columbia railroad, Mr. Balmer engaged in doing their heavy hauling and continued in that business until recently stricken down by disease. He was an industrious, hard-working man, a kind husband and father and a good citizen. His wife died suddenly of heart disease a little more than two years ago. His two daughters survive him.
