Swindling Prominent Philadelphians—How Chief Justice Sharswood was Taken In. The bunko men who operate between Philadelphia and New York have been reaping a harvest of lete. The leader of the gang has in four instances represented himself as a nephew of Anthony J. Drexel or a member of the well-known banking house of which Mr. Drexel is the head. One of his victims was Mr. Evan Randolph, an experienced business man, whom he swindled out of $110. The second was Mr. Hazlehurst, a leading member of the Philielphia bar, whom he caught for $2,400. The third was Mr. J. A. J. Sheets, a proserous lumber merchant, who lost $2,900 by his confidence in the scoundrel. The fourth victim is no less a personage than the Hon. George Sharswood, chief justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania. In the latter case, however, the amount involved was only $10. The story of this operation was given by him as follows: "As I was strolling up Broadway in New York a well-dressed young man addressed me by some name not my own, which I do not recall, and seemed both insulted and incredulous when I told him he was mistaken. He, however, apologetically said that I bore a striking resemblance to the gentleman whom he supposed me to be, and that he would be grateful if I would tell him who I was. I gave him my name, and he left me with every mark of courtesy. I had not gone much further when another gentleman, youthful, well dressed, and of remarkably pleasing manners, crossed the sidewalk toward me, and, charming are some of the attendant cereextending his hand, addressed me by name, and professed to be delighted to have met me. His face seemed not unfamiliar to me, but I could not recall his name, and I supposed my puzzled look led him to relieve my mind, as he said : Ah, I see you don't remember me. am F. A. Droxel, jr. I have been abroad so long that you have lost sight of me. I have been studying art in Paris, and reabroad, mentioning incidentally that he turned only last week.' He then asked many questions about the welfare of prominent Philadelphians, with whose names, occupations and social standing he seemed thoroughly familiar. II: also conversed very interestingly on art matters had been an extensive purchaser for the account of his uncles as well as himself. We walked up town, chatting thus pleasantly, and not a suspicion that my companion was not what he represented himself to be entered my mind. At length he mentioned that he had just received a very expensive painting from Paris-one for which Belmont's and Vanderbilt's agent had bid against him, but which he had bought for 50,000 francs. It was a very steep price, and I didn't know how father and Uncle Tony will like it,' he said. He then invited me to look at his treasure, which, he said, was only a block or two away. Nothing was occupying me F. A. Seraich, druggist, Ruthven, Ont. writes: "I have the greatest confidence in or two away. Nothing was occupying me Turning down one of the cross streets we came to a handsome brown-stone house, into which we entere I after ringing the bell. While we stood on the steps my companion told me that he had drawn the grand prize, 11,000 francs, in a lottery designed for the benefit of some Parisian art association, and was only waiting in the city for the money to come to hand. He then would go to Philadelphia and visit his relatives. The door was opened by a liveried porter, and we were admitted to a saloon parlor that seemed to have been turned into an office. Mr. Drexel introduced himself to the gentlemanly individual who occupied the desk, and said that he had brought me. mentioning my name, to see his famous picture. The gentlemanly individual was sorry that the picture had just been sent to Philadelphia, and he showed the express receipt in confirmation. Apologizing for the disappointment, my companion made a move as though to go away, when the gentlemanly individual, after brief consultation of what seemed a book of entry, said : 'Mr. Drexel, I received the remittance of your grand prize, 11,000 francs, this morning. Here is the money.' to be that amount. The gentlemanly in-dividual then suggested that it would be well to take some tickets in another lottery drawing for the benefit of some other art association. Drexel was willing. He said he patronized such schemes for the benefit of art, and always turned his prizes over to desetving artists. I had scruples against such methods, tu: he insisted, and I handed him $10. Then they brought out a numbered chart, and gambling implements. I saw at once that the whole thing was a trick and device, and I repossessed myself of the $10 which I had given my companion, and which was lying on the table and made my way out of the room without opposition. The pseudo Drexel came along and agreed entirely with me in my estimate of the character of the place.

money falsely so obtained." Judge Pierce, who has been on the common pleas bench of this county for twenty years, was another intended victim and the picture game was the same. While he did not suspect the nice young man of dishonest purposes, he escaped by refusing to view the painting, regarding the confidence operator merely as an intelligent

The Lava Beds Fiend Settles Down as a Successiul Farmer. St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr. D. B. Dyer, of the Qaumpan Agency, Indian Territory, accompanied by Mr. G. D. Williams, was in town to day. Mr. Dyer is well known as one of the most successful Indian agents in the employ of the government, and his agency is one of the largest and best managed in the territory. "How are your pets getting along?" we asked.

"Very well," replied Mr. Dyer. "They are taking to civilized ways very rapidly, and are much more tractable than you would think. They all wear citizens' dress now, and are the most industrious farmers you could imagine."

"What tribes are stationed with you? "The Quapaws, Peorias, Miamis, Ottoways, Wyandottes, Senecas, Shawnees and the remnant of the once famed Modocs.' "How many of the Modocs remain?"

"About 100. They are quiet and docile, and are not at all like the fiends of the lava beds. Scar-Faced Charley, Captain Jack's old partner, is the chief now, and a better behaved old farmer could scarcely be found. The last agent removed him, but I gave him his place again, and his people are pleased. He has settled down, and there is not a more faithful Indian.

"How mary acres of land have you under cultivation altogether?" "Nearly 10,000. We have 1,500 Indians altogether. The Modocs alone attend to 400 acres. "

"What is their condition?" 'Very satisfactory. We have three day and two boarding schools, the latter accommodating 200 pupils. The teachers are white ladies and gentlemen, but I have a few Indians employed in that capacity. The old bucks and squaws are very anxious that their children should go to school and they all appear to like to learn. We have fifteen policemen and the community is just as orderly as any country settle ment. No serious trouble has occurred during the year, and none need be fear "Are the Indians still as mixed as they formerly were on the subject of marriage. 'That's the chief trouble. They still have an idea that one wife is scarcely enough, and they cling to the old practice of putting away a wife when they grow tired of her. We are gradually stopping this. If this matter were corrected I should be ready to boast about them."

Preparations for a Scandinavian Marriage. ohn Habberton, in Harper's Magazine for November. Preparations for a wedding feast begin weeks beforehand, and are so extensive that M. Du Chaillu was utterly amazed at the quantity of solids and liquids that he saw stored against an approaching marriage feast. Invitations to weddings are sent out well in advance of the happy day so that the guests may prepare for two or three days' absence from home; and the poorest person invited is never without a wedding garment. The happy couple eat, drink and dance with every body; and it seems never to have occurred to the people to inquire how they do it. There is a limit to the endurance of the native head and stomach, and this generally is found on the third day; then the guests, on bidding good-by to the bride, tender their wedding presents, which always consist of money, and are deposited, without being examined, in a box which the bride wears at side. How many American girls will wish -only to themselves-that a similar custom might prevail here can not easily be estimated, but all of them will understand why there are but few bachelors in the land of the midnight sun. Long as are the wedding festivities, those of Christmass far exceed them, for feasting and fun are industriously kept up from Christnasseve to Twelfth-night, and quaint and

ASTRICE ASTRICE ASTRICH ASTRICH ASTRICH ASTRIC ASTRICE ASTRICH ASTRICH ASTRICE ASTRICH BROTHERS

Men are fond of saying that their wives and daughters waste time in "shopping." They cannot understand why a lady should ever enter a store, except to purchase some article which she absolutely needs, and they regard the time as absolutely wasted which ladies spend in passing from store to store and counter to counter, looking over goods which they do not intend to buy, and asking prices for things for which they have no immediate

It is to ladies who understand this art of shopping that this advertisement is addressed. We want to remind them that they should never regard a shopping tour as complete without a visit to our establishment, at this eason especially, when so many articles are needed for the approaching cold weather. It s well for ladies to remember that in many departments our prices are habitually lower for the same quality of goods than can be found elsewhere in the city, while in no case lo we allow ourselves to be undersold; and there will almost always be found in every one of our departments some special lot of goods which we have secured at less than the usual wholesale price, and can therefore afford to sell extraordinarily cheap.

TRIMMINGS.

In this important department we are exhib iting an entirely new stock of goods embrac-ing all the latest and most fashionable Noveities, and comprising everything that can by any possibility be needed. We strongly advise ladies, even if they have no intention to purchase to call and examine our assortment which will give them a more accurate idea of the tendencies of fashion than they can obtain in any other manner.

DRESSMAKERS especially will find it to their interest to visit this department, as not only is our assortment remarkably full, but our prices are lower than those of other houses. Among the various items of attrac-tion we may mention

FRINGES, GARNITURES, PASSAMENTERIES, SLIDES, CRESCENTS, ORNAMENTS, BALLS, etc.

In CASHMERE, IRIDESCENT, RAINBOW, BRONZE and COMBINATION EFFECTS. BLACK BEAD FRINGES and TRIMMINGS OF ALL KINDS are also a specialty of this department, and our assortment of BUTTONS, BUITONS, embraces styles to match every variety and shade of Trimming.

TRIMMED HATS.

This is another department that our patrons should not fait to visit. We have appropriated to it for this season the entire rear building, and are able to display an assortment which for variety of style, beauty, finish and range of prices is unsurpassed in the city. All the newest fashions are fully represented, and we do not exaggerate in saying that ladies can there secure hats and bonnets of the best materials and most tasteful make, at less than one half the price charged for similar goods elsewhere.

CLOAKS.

This department is now supplied with a complete assortment of Wraps of every kind for fall and Winter Wear-all well-made and in Fall and Winter Wear—all well-made and in the greatest variety of styles and prices. Among the items worthy of mention are WALKING JACKETS, of foreign and domes-tic make, in Light Shades and Plushtrimmed; Diagonal and Beaver Cloth DOLMANS, trim-med with Fine Passamenterie, Plush, Friage and Gimp, and, in short, a thoroughly com-plete line, equal in quality to the, best and lower in prices than the lowest.
