PHILADELPHIA.

INDIA SHAWLS.
Now is a good time to choose here. Between $10 and $75 we do not expect to be beaten. JOHN WANAMAKER.

DRESS NOVELTIES.
Cashmere with self-colored silk Hamburg bonnet embroidered in same cashmere. All we have a month ago, except one, are gone, and more come. Three patterns of embroidery, brown, olive, bronze, fawn, and green cashmere. $35 to $45 a dress. JOHN WANAMAKER.

VELVETTES.
Velvettes of ten grades. 50 cents to $1.00 below 20 cents none. Velvet is in season the best of goods to judge. The best way to buy is either to see a good many sorts or trust an expert. JOHN WANAMAKER.

TRIMMED FUR COATS.
Fur coats, next-door entrance. JOHN WANAMAKER.

TURKEY-RED TABLE CLOTHS.
Some of the very same goods have found their way into other houses here. Compare prices. We ought to be an eighth below, for we alone among Philadelphia merchants, save the importers, Philadelphia, have our own mill. JOHN WANAMAKER.

LACES.
More laces from Paris; mostly combinations of crepe-lisse and edging. We buy nothing in quantities, but to get the styles that we can't make, or to get new styles quickly. Hand-knit laces of a sort that we have always had out of our mill. Last summer we found them at $1.00, which we could not get, we have them at 75 cents. JOHN WANAMAKER.

HANDKERCHIEFS.
Before new silk handkerchiefs come we are selling the old at 25 and 35 cents. The quality at 25 cents and at the lower quality at 20. There's nothing about them but the patterns, of course, the quality is the same. We have hundreds to choose from. JOHN WANAMAKER.

BEDDING.
Blanket layer, soft, good, warm, all-wool, a sour wool, and softness, some want soft wearing qualities, and know them when they see them. Some want high fineness and are willing to pay for it. JOHN WANAMAKER.

DRESS GOODS.
Here are stripes of serge and satin in hand to do justice to. The stripes are 1 1/2 inches wide. The serge, of course, in a variety of colors. The satin stripes is the simplest one. It is made of two sets of 1/2 inch crosses, which alternate with each other. For one of under-standing look at one of these bars separately. It is simple, shining from light and dark in the middle. Now look at the other set of bars. It is also simple, but shading the opposite way, from dark at the edge to light in the middle. Now look at the stripe as a whole. It has a double-lined effect. Think of one set of colors, now of the other. Now let the eye take in the whole piece. It is fairly beautiful with the harmony of colors. Why don't we tell what the colors are? Because there are several combinations; and even one of them is so hard to set forth in words that a full statement of it would be dull. And if we could make the colors of one piece shine here in the print, they might be the very wrong colors for you, who are reading, though we may have the right ones. $1.50 to $2.50. JOHN WANAMAKER.

BLACK DRESS GOODS.
Black silk figures, silk and wool damask, used for trimmings and over-dresses; better for trimmings; 25 cents. JOHN WANAMAKER.

LACES FROM EUROPE.
Hitherto we have applied the peculiar principles of our trade to the buying and selling of laces. I.e., we have bought as well as we could and sold as low as we could; and our lace trade has grown out of all proportion to any other trade. Now we begin to buy largely abroad. This is only carrying out our principles more fully. We bought last summer about $500,000 worth of laces of the manufacturers in various parts of Europe; and secured at least $200,000 thereby. This saving we give you, and, knowing the generous trade to come, we have higher grades of laces and greater variety. JOHN WANAMAKER.

NEW UPHOLSTERY.
Upholstery cloths and fringes; very rich. Mattress curtains of new patterns, cross stripes and stripes. Rattles, Holland and silk, with Madras nodes inserted. JOHN WANAMAKER.

ROMANCE OF THE COURTS.
STRUGGLING FOR A BABE.

The Remarkable sequel to a Matrimonial Trouble.

The particulars of a remarkable scene which was enacted in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania railroad depot in West Philadelphia on Monday evening were related yesterday to Magistrate Clark. Some months ago Mrs. Lizzie Odis, a resident of Somerville, Mass., in consequence of domestic troubles, left her home and came to Philadelphia, taking up her residence with her brother-in-law, Mr. Seth Craig, at Thirty-fourth street and Lancaster avenue. At the time of her hasty departure her husband's relatives refused her possession of her 14-months old baby, but the mother's heart yearned for her offspring, and, returning to Somerville, she watched her opportunity and succeeded in securing the babe. Then she lost no time in getting back to Philadelphia.

As soon as the child was missed its father started in pursuit, in company with his father and a Boston detective. After a short search in Philadelphia the residence of the mother was located. On Tuesday evening the child, Mrs. Odis went to the home and snatching the babe from the arms of a servant girl, ran at full speed down Lancaster avenue, with the mother chasing him and screaming at the top of her voice. At Thirty-second and Market streets the grandfather, who was stopped by some people who had observed the scene, and in a short time a large crowd had collected. The mother struggled for her child, and an attack by the crowd on the man was imminent, when Officer Boyd, of the Sixteenth district, stepped upon the scene and escorted him to the station house. At the hearing yesterday morning the defendant said that the child had been given to him by his father, and that the mother had forcibly entered the house and taken it while his wife was held by two men. The father informed him that he had proceeded the wrong way to obtain possession of the child the magistrate gave it in charge of his mother, and, dismissing a charge of kidnapping, held Otis in his own recognizance to keep the peace.

A BAD CASE OF MOTHER-IN-LAW.
The Young Husband Goes for Divorce and Liberty.

In the summer of 1877, when handsome young "Will" Neil, grandson of Dr. H. T. Helmbold, became engaged to Miss Clara I. Romberger, only daughter of the wealthy retired Philadelphia dry goods merchant, Balser W. Romberger, they were the talk of the city. The fashionable Congress Hall festivities at Cape May. A petite and pretty blonde, with a stylish taste in dress and indulgent parents, she naturally was a striking figure. The story goes that Mr. Neil, who was continually receiving small quantities of the finest of Hamburgs, on a sudden, one day, disappeared. His mother, who had followed him to Cape May, was shocked and distressed. She had seen him last at the fashionable Congress Hall festivities at Cape May. room to another, and then upstairs. Mrs. Rodgers was in the sitting room on the second floor with a servant, directing the arrangement of the carpets and furniture. A self-cocking revolver, the property of the widow, was lying on the mantelpiece, and Marston, without a word, seized it, and advancing toward Mrs. Rodgers placed the cold muzzle against her forehead. She screamed and the servant ran forward and threw up the man's arm just as he had placed his finger on the trigger. He was then induced to leave the house by threats and coaxing. An hour afterward two written messages were brought to the house by an American district telegraph boy, in which Marston requested Mrs. Rodgers to meet him in the street, threatening her with injuries if she refused. Thoroughly terrified, the widow called in Private Watchman Baker to advise her, and while talking to him at the kitchen door Marston burst in and was promptly seized by the watchman, and then turned over to Sergeant McNeil and Officer Woolston, who took him to the Sixteenth district station house on Lancaster avenue.

At the hearing before Magistrate Clarke Tuesday morning, while Mrs. Rodgers was testifying to the assault, Marston attempted to give her a signal, but it was ignored and he was committed. It is said that the prisoner has a quantity of valuable diamonds in his possession, the property of Mrs. Rodgers, and that he has blackmailed her regularly for money ever since she has been in this city.

The Montour Iron Works.
A correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin criticizes Mr. Bond's statement by disparaging the purchase of the Montour iron works in 1880 by the Reading Coal and Iron company. He said that $400,000 had been paid for nine-sixteenths of these works which were not altogether worth more than $270,000. The correspondent asks: why did he omit to state that the purchase included not only nine-sixteenths of the stock, but $600,000 of the first mortgage bonds of the Montour company, from the sale of which the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company was to deduct the $450,000 and to pay over the surplus to the Montour company.

Is such a transaction fairly described as the acquisition of 9-16ths of the stock of the latter company for the price of sum of $400,000? Assuming that the bonds are worth $450,000, the result of the transaction would be that the Reading company gets 9-16ths of the stock for nothing; but no matter what they are worth, the company holds a mortgage on the entire property for all that it is worth, and this is a very different thing from holding a bare majority of the stock. But what are the bonds worth? This depends on the carrying capacity of the Montour company. From Mr. Bond's statement it would seem that the company was to deduct the $450,000 from the Reading coal and iron company, which had actually made the investment. The direct advantage to the railroad company was the securing for its Calwassa Branch the transportation business of a concern of such magnitude as the Montour company. During the first of April, 1880, when the Montour company's business began, the profit of the company applicable to the payment of interest on the mortgage debt was $10,576.67 and for the ensuing nine months ending with August 31, 1881, the profit was $79,000.03. These figures speak for themselves and show that apart from the great advantage of securing the immense freight and coal business of the Montour company, the management of the Reading company was very fortunate in investing in its bonds and stock.

"The Commodore."
Jas. L. Foster, the Commodore, Edin., Ill., says: "Thomas' Electric Oil cured my ailment of sciatica in one application, thoroughly applied. It also cured me of a severe cold and cough. I think it a very valuable remedy, and will never be without it. Price 25 cents per box at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster."

A WIDOW'S MAD LOVE.
The story of love and pistols is laid in two cities. Mrs. Anna Rodgers, the widow, has been living since last Saturday morning at No. 325 1/2 North Queen street, one of a pretty row of new houses, to which locality she moved from Fortieth and Aspen streets simply to void the unwished for and dangerous attentions of a discarded lover named Henry Marston.

Mrs. Rodgers has been subjected to the annoying attentions of Marston for nearly three years. She formed his acquaintance in New York, of which city both were residents. Marston paid his addresses to the widow and matters progressed so far that the pair were engaged to be married, when one occasion even struck Mrs. Rodgers with the discovery that Marston was a married man. He continued, however, to visit Mrs. Rodgers as before, the rebuff only seeming to increase his infatuation. He became abusive and threatening, and on one occasion even struck Mrs. Rodgers in the face. To avoid scandal and for other reasons she refused to expose him, and sought to escape by selling her house on Forty-sixth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and removing to West Philadelphia. It only took Marston a few weeks to discover her whereabouts, and he renewed his unmanly attentions, assured by previous experience that he could do so without fear of exposure.

Finally the annoyance became so continuous and unbearable that Mrs. Rodgers attempted to escape a second time by quietly moving on Saturday morning. Marston called at Fortieth and Aspen on Sunday morning, and finding the house closed and obtaining no response to his ring he took a very suspicious method to gain an entrance. He broke in the shutter with a stone, and then discovered that the floors were bare and the furniture gone. It did not take long for him to find the carman who had removed the household goods, and the man innocently told him where he had taken them. About 4 o'clock Marston drove up to Mrs. Rodgers' new home in a coupe and, without waiting to gain an entrance, he broke in the front parlor window, which is on a level with the porch, and entered. He ran quickly from one
