A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS.

Built up by Energy and Application. The difference between buck and labor is plainly visible at this season of the year at Williamson & Foster's, 36 and 38 East King street. That house is only about six years old, and by hard work and close application to business its proprietors have been most successful in building up a business that is equal to any in their line of goods in the city.

The following, we are told, are a few o their conspicuous features :

No misrepresentations are suffered. Goods are sold for what they are. Fabries, with a mixture of cotton and wool, are not sold for all wool. Colors are carefully selected.

Durability is never lost sight of. The workmanship is not excelled by any house in the trade.

Goods selected may be returned prompt ly and exchanged if not satisfactory. In case an exchange cannot be effected the money will be returned to the purchaser.

The one-marked price is strictly adhered to.

Doing their business upon a cash basis, as can be seen by their advertisement elsewhere in our colums, and marking goods at a small profit, realize for them large

If you will step in their store on a Saturday at any time at this season of the year you will see ample proof that labor is a better guide to success in business than luck. They occupy at present all of the three floors of that large building known as the "Coyle Building," and it is titted with clothing, hats, furnishing goods and trunks; and what they want to-day is more room to display the goods they have that cannot be shown to advan-

THE CITY IS FULL OF

And it is a good deal to say that one is unlike all the rest. First, in its dealings; and it is surprising that one House should differ much from another. Selling Clothing is so simple a matter that it is likely one would suppose to be done in very much the same way in all parts of the city; but to think that there is one House ahead of all the that there is one flouse ahead of all the rest, and to be ahead in all the dealing is to deal on a higher plane, in a more ilberal way to give the buyer more well-founded confidence without loss of the merchant's

A LIBERAL MONEY'S WORTH,

One way to arrive at this result is to mark a price in plain figures on everything we seil, which price is absolute, and to let you buy what you like, go away, and come and trade back again it you want to. We find by experience that this liberality is harmless to us. Of course customers like it, and it makes quick and steady dealing. We don't want you to bring back what you buy. It would cost us money every time, but we would rather you would bring back than keep what you don't like, so we try to see you get at first what you will like the better the more you. better the more you know of it This is really the whole philosophy of our dealing. The Clothing trade of the present day requires a great variety of patterns, which people like, because everybody likes to choose out of many rather than out of few.

There are just TWO THINGS we never after, viz: The PRICE and the TERMS. The Price of every Garment is Plainly Market and the Terms are Strictly Cash. With this understanding customers never waste time in trading, but select with the knowledge that if they change their minds afterwards they can bring the clothes back and have their money.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

Two Shocking Accidents Reported. St. Louis, Mo., Nov., 11.—A special lispatch from St. Joseph. Mo., says: On the Hennibal & St. Joseph railroad last night about eight miles from Kansas City two freight trains, bound in opposite directions, collided in the darkness. The engineers reversed their locomotives when too late and only saved their lives by leaping to the ground. Both engines were hopelessly demoralized, to-gether with 18 freight cars including two cars filled with oil. Daniel English, a brakeman was instantly kilied. Frank Newhall, conductor, was injured on the knee, and several others received injuries of a more or less serious nature, none of them, however, being fatal. town to see a lawyer for the purpose of instituting proceedings for a divorce from her husband. About noon she was met by her brother-in-law, who said: "Go right away home, Matthias is dead.' "Oh! What are you telling me?" said Mrs. Caspar. "I know all about that. He is not dead; I just left him this morning and he was very much alive then." "Oh, yes, he is dead, indeed. He heard why you went out and he went up stairs and got that old musket you know about, and now he is no more. ' Mrs. Caspar hurried home, and, sure enough, her husband was dead, with an ugly gun-shot wound in his head. The lady who had grown tired of being his wife was willing enough to be his widow. and yesterday put in a claim in the orphans' court for her legal share of the estate he left, much of which she claims, however to have given him. Judge Cox drives them into the police court, but the other counsel may not agree with them. He says he wants to see the president first and know whether the cases are to be pushed or not or whether or not he has the sympathy of the administration. He says they have better cases in the background, but it will take some time to get them before a grand jury. Colonel Totten, in an interview, says the bottom has fallen out of the whole star route business.
