THE DRAMA.

Miss Fanny Davenport as "Camille." By far the most satisfactory performance that talented actress Miss Fanny Davenport has given in this city was that of last evening, when she played the title role of Dumas' very powerful work "Camille" before an audience which in numbers and quality constituted ample testimony of the high regard in which the lady is held in this community. The entire lower portion of Fulton opera house was filled, and upstairs there was a goodly gathering, the assemblage as a whole being made up of the most highly cultivated class of our amusement-goers. Miss Davenport's previous represenations here have been of a character so completely circumscribing her abilities that an accurate estimate of her latent powers was well nigh impossible. Last night she exhibited herself in a wider sphere and one in which she appeared to vastly better advantage. The portrayal of the role of the heroine of Dumas' story is harmful drug. She has all the emotional qualities needful for a proper apprehension of the part, and these joined to a handsome face and figure, a mobile and expressive countenance, and all the attributes of a volatile nature. admirably qualify her to present an ideal picture of an exceptional womanhood, as the hand of the French novthat go to make a conceit uncommon in its design, striking in its development. If in its rendition Miss Davenport dees not furnish evidence of native genius, there is something very nearly akin to it, and there is, too, all the proof of conscientous and intelligent study, acute observa-tion, shrewd application, and withal a vein Hair Color Restorer," the most cleanly and de of originality. MEDICAL. DEIGART'S OLD WINE STORE. Brandy as a Medicine. The following article was voluntarily sent to

Mr. II. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a prominent practising physi-cian of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice It is commended to the attention of those at-

Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE. This new much abused Alcoholle Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be of some of the destructive diseases which sweep away their annual thousands of victims. With a purely philanthropic motive we present to the favorable notice of invalids—especially those afflicted with that miserable disease Dysneysia a specific remety which to ease Dyspepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than Brandy.

The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly,

A Sovereign Remedy or all their fils and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is REIGART'S OLD BRANDY Sold by our enterprising young triend, H E SLAYMAKER. This Brandy has stood the first for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefor as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preterence over all other Brandics no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifies would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case of ases. In proof of the curative powers of Reigart's Old Brandy, In cases of Dyspepsia, we can summon numbers of witnesses—one case in particular we cite:—

A hard-working farmer had been addeted with an exhaustive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he had sour eructations constantly—no appetite—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Root Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as now preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed earnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try

Reigart's Old Brandy,

In his case, he looked up with astonishment but after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which he chose to eat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has this medicine he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.—A Practising Presicial.

THE JURY COMPLETE. TWILVE GOOD MEN AND TRUE.

Some Incidents of the scenes Attending their Selection. WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 .- The attendence at the Guiteau trial to-day was much larger than heretofore. About fifty la-dies were present. Guiteau occupied his usual seat. The nine jurors already chosen answered to their names, and the work of securing the remainder commenced. After challenging several talesman, William H. Browner, a merchant, was accepted as the tenth juror. More challenges followed, some of the talesmen saying they had formed opinions which nothing under the sun could change. After several others had been excused for various seasons Thos. H. Barron, a carpenter and builder, was called, and after being closely questioned, Scoville made up his mind to accept him, but the district attorney interposed a peremptory challenge. Several others were called and ex cused and then S. Heinlein, an iron worker, was accepted, and sworn in as the eleventh juror. John Hayes, a paper hanger, said hi opinion of the case was materially change by the daily bulletin of Garfield's con dition. He was therefore peremptorily challenged by the government. Guiteau smiled when flayes made that remark and turning whispered to a newspaper correspondent "Put that in." He seemed much gratified, as the remark tended to establish the idea of malpractice. Joseph Prather, a commission merchant, was accepted and sworn as the twelfth juror.

At 12:25 court took a recess for half-an hour. Upon reassembling the jury was sworn in as a whole. Mr. Scoville then arose to make a personal explanation regarding the paper obtained from the prisoner this morning. Mr. Scoville did not approve of that document.

The prisoner then arose and, in an excited manner, insisted that he had not yet accepted the services of counsel, and until he did so he wou'd defend himself. The court then at 1:45 adjourned until

During the progress of selecting jurors, statement was prepared by Guiteau a given to the press. It is signed by him, saying he is on trial for his life, that he has only one counsel.
