The grand jury spent all of Monday and a part of Tuesday, visiting the public institutions, and on Tuesday afternoon court met at 2 o'clock, when their report was presented and read. It was as follows:

Lancaster Intelligencer.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, NOV. 30, 1881.

The Grand Jury's Final Report.

To the Honorabie the Judges of the Court of Quarter Sessions and General Jail Delivery of the Peace of Lancaster county: The grand inquest of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, impaneled to inquire into and for the county of Lancaster at the November sessions of 1881, respectfully report that they have acted upon all the in-dictments submitted to them, and have returned them to court-ninety as true bills, twenty-five ignored and two handed back to the district attorney because the witnesses could not be obtained, and one bridge view approved. We visited the home for friendless children, the alms-house, hospital and county prison.

In the home for friendless child:eu there are 108 inmates—25 girls and 83 boys. We found this institution well conducted everything in good condition, the children well cared for, the committee in charge and instructors taking an active part in the comforts of the children.

-67 men, 54 women, 8 boys, 9 girls. All weil cared for and the building kept clean. The management appears to be very good. In the hospital for the sick and insane there are 211 inmates—67 men, 59 women, 1 boy and 1 girl; in the insane department 128. In the hospital care are 28 men, 33 women, 3 boys and 1 221; in the colored department, 8 men. 6 women, 1 boy and 3 girls. They all appear to be well cared for and in as comfortable a condition as such unfortunates can be made. The buildings are kept clean and the management is We have examined the furnaces in the hospital and find the heat pipes in-secure, and would recommend that both the hospital and the department of the insane be heated by steam as more secure and more economical. In case of fire there is no escape except the stairway; besides we find the hose belonging to the department not sufficient, and would recommend that more hose be purchased for that department, and also outside fire escapes be erected. We would also recommend that iron bars be placed in the doors of the cell of inmates, instead of the small aperture in the door. We would also recommend an outlet for draining from the water closets, as well as better ventilation in said closets. We also examined the burial ground and find the parties in charge have assured us that every attention is paid to the burial of the dead. They are provided with shrouding and coffins, the moral instructor officiates at each funeral, and a ord is kept, each number to correspond with the graves. The graveyard is surrounded by a good fence.

In the county prison we found 149 pris-ers—64 convicts, 45 trial prisoners, and 40 for drunkenness and disorderly conduct; apparently they are all well cared for. In our examination of the workings of the convicts we find that a profit is realized upon the manufacture of cigars and car-pets; in the shee and basket departments there is apparently no profit.

The report of the prison keepers gives the cost of each prisoner at 13 cents per day, including the cost of the keeper's family, &c. With regard to the purchase of supplies for the different manufacturing departments, we would recommend that the inspectors advertise for proposals for such material wanted, and the contract given to the lowest bidder for the quality re. quired. With reference to your honor's suggestion to examine into the cost of the private department of the keepers, we find that he is not directly responsible for such excessive expenditures, but that it is no cessited by the entertainment of the officials and sometimes their friends, as well as the baker of the prison who is a permanent boarder, the night watchman and the sick of the prison.

the multiplicity of cases, and find that in Colerain township. Alderman Spurrier, of the Fourth ward of this city, has multiplied cases as represented in your honor's charge to the grand inquest—and we do unhesitatingly township. condemn such proceedings.

We recommend that the inspectors have an act passed by the Legislature of the state to make the fiscal year of the prison to end on the 31st day of December of each year, instead of Nov, 30, as it now does. Also, that the keeper of the prison should nominate to the board of inspectors for their approval the persons desired by him for the position of underkeeper, and then hold him strictly responsible for any over.

We refer with pleasure to the promptness and efficiency of the officers attending to the general inquest, and we are informed that but one adjourned court of quar ter sessions has been held during the term of the present district attorney, although the criminal calendar has been as heavy as of the proposed extension of St. Joseph formerly. The grand inquest return their thanks to the honorable court and the officers of the public institutions for the attention shown to us while in the discharge of duties. Levi Myers, foreman; F. L. few remarks to the grand jury. He said he was much pleased with their ac-tion and report. He understood that none of the members had ever served on a grand jury. It was astonishing with what rapid-ity they had dispatched their business during the entire week. He was glad to during the entire week. Sheep Raising.

Told on a Death-bed.

The Hanover Herald says: One of the most startling disclosures which ever the mortal anguish of a dying criminal brought to light has just been made known in Taneytown, by the confession, on his death-bed, of Patrick Tully, a well known horse dealer in that section.

About five years ago, at the Stone hotel in Taneytown, a man was found lying before the fireplace frightfully burned, but with a little life still left. He was recognized as Henry Heiner, and it was supposed that in an intoxicated condition he had lain down before the fire, that the flames had reached his clothes, and before he could call for help he was fatally injured. The sad affair occasioned considerable talk for a few weeks and then passed away, and the event was well-nigh forgotten.

In regard to the private department of the prison the court were Heiner's murder. It was to the effect that glad to hear that their report relieves the keeper, as many who know nothing about David Lieknat heard that Heiner had bethe matter believe him to responsible for come possessed of a large sum of money the excessive expenditures. The court and they determined to rob him. After was in accord with the suggestion in regard to having an act passed in relation to the ending of the fiscal year, and they also thought that the prison keeper should have power to appoint underkeepers and he should be responsible for them. After again thanking the jury the court disabarged them. and tried to avoid the discovery of their crime by giving the man the appearance of having been burned to death; they saturated his clothes with kerosene and applied the flame. Tully died soon after making the confesssion. He was widely but not favorably known and was gener-
